Summer Doldrums.
They Are Saying.
Some Cheerful News.
Two Old Fairs Decay.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THIS IS THE real midsummer, the doldrums in human activity.

The President is on his way home from Hawaii and may have something cheerful and exciting to tell us.

He will learn that mutual savings bank accounts have reached a new high peak throughout the nation, depositors have increased in the past six months by 273,898. Total number of individual depositors now 13,686,947, and total deposits nearly ten thousand million dollars, a good deal of money.

THAT IS GOOD news for those that have something and know enough to save part of it. It means, however, that many open or increase savings accounts because they do not know any other safe way to invest money, and that is not so cheerful. Good times depend on new ventures, bringing more employment.

STEEL PRODUCTION, a sort of industrial and prosperity indictator, is down, off 5.7 percent in a week. Total production is only about one-quarter of what the industry could do. Dull steel production means a dull labor market.

Steel makers look for improvement this month and next from automobile makers.

THE AUTOMOBILE news is more cheerful. Pleasant proof that citizens are "lifting up their hearts" and beginning to spend again. Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., gives his General Motors stockholders good news about increased sales and profits. No concern in the country has made a harder, more courageous fight against the depression than the fight made by General Motors.

Encouraging, and important also, is the announcement by S. Bayard Colgate, president of a big soap manufacturing company, of profits increased 215 per cent during the past six months, $2,416,887 net, as against $765,120 for the preceding six months.

THE WORLD becomes more commonplace with the passing of time. Now the famous Stourbridge fair comes to an end by official proclamation. The great British University of Cambridge is said to be a by-product of that fair, which has existed for one thousand years. King John saw the fair, and the good monks of St. Mary Magdalene received revenues from the fair to help them in their benevolent care of lepers.

THE ANCIENT Russian fair of Nijni Novgorod has also fallen into decay. A wonderful gathering place that was, for merchants of China, Tartary, Muscovy and the vast eastern regions of strange people and products. There Ivan the Terrible committed some of his worst atrocities, as when he promised a group of priests that had displeased him "an interesting surprise," and then put them in a pit to fight against huge bears, with no weapon but a short spear. All were killed, although one young priest of amazing strength and courage first killed his bear, then died of his wounds.

DON'T FORGET to see Chicago's Century of Progress Exposition this summer. If you saw it last year, you will see an entirely new exposition this year. And in any case, you will congratulate yourself on the trip, whether you go by railroad train, automobile, motor bus or plane.

And make the visit a "See America First and Frequently" trip. Going and coming, from North, South, East or West, you may see everything that you want to see, Niagara, the Grand Canyon, yawning awe-inspiring caverns, great national parks and above all, the Pacific Ocean, the biggest, most thoroughly American thing we have.

IF YOU START from the East, push on to the Pacific. Run North and South along the Pacific's edge, for 1,000 miles and more, from San Diego to Seattle, and on up to giant Alaska, if you have the time.

Above all save plenty of time for San Francisco. There you will find as perfect a summer climate as exists anywhere on earth, a hospitable modern city of intense enterprise and activity. You will see the beginning of a magnificent work, the great bridge that will span the Golden Gate, through which ships from all the world sail into a magnificent harbor.

The strike is a thing of the past, all settled, almost forgotten. All classes will welcome you, eager to prove that while

POLICE GIRD TO BATTLE TROOPS

New Orleans Mayor Defies 'Kingfish' On Martial Law

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—National Guardsmen, carrying arms under the banner of Senator Huey P. Long faced Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley's police today, ready to battle for control of New Orleans.

The city was tense, fearing the first hostile move by either side might precipitate an actual clash between the state soldiers and the city police.

Senator Long, self-titled "Kingfish," moved about like a war general, "commanding" 500 National Guardsmen mobilized at Jackson Barracks, on the edge of the city.

POLICE TO RESIST

The embattled Walmsley, once a friend of Long, held 1,400 regular and special policemen in readiness to resist any possible attempt of Long to usurp the city police power.

Mayor Walmsley announced he had appealed to the War Department for an investigation, but in Washington Acting Secretary of War Woodring said the War Department would take no action.

Almost two score militiamen held the city registration voting office, which they stormed Monday night. Machine guns looked from the windows across a narrow street toward City Hall.

Gov. O. K. Allen's proclamation of partial martial law, applying to the City Hall area, continued in effect.

Ward and precinct leaders of both factions muttered. Ordinary citizens stared wide-eyed at the fully-armed state soldiers in the voting office. Some stopped to laugh and joke with the guardsmen.

BATTLE OVER RADIO

Mayor Walmsley and Senator Long lambasted each other over the radio last night.

The whole affair pointed to the coming Congressional primary in September, in which Walmsley and Long are supporting rival candidates.

Along with that issue was Long's announced determination to clean up the "vice and corruption" in the city, which Walmsley interpreted as a ruse for Long to seize control of the New Orleans administration.

Mayor Walmsley in his radio address last night described Senator Long as a "cringing coward," hiring bodyguards like "an Al Capone" and said the Senator would "pay the penalty as other carpet-baggers have done" if a single life be lost in defense of the city.

The Mayor said "we will never surrender to this madman" and compared the Louisiana Senator with "Caligula, Nero, Attila, Henry the Eighth, Louis the Eleventh and dozens of other madmen who have arisen to almost unlimited power."

Troop Guns Trained on Strikers

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Heavily armed troops in quieting striking truck drivers today raided the Central Labor Union where scores of men and women were found.

Twenty army trucks with machine guns lined up outside the building within three blocks of the heart of town, and the guardsmen took control of the place.

An estimated 2,000 spectators, many of them shoppers, jammed adjacent sidewalks to watch the troops.

Officers said some firearms were found in the building.

It was the second raid of the day by the armed forces.

At dawn, the men in khaki had seized headquarters of striking truck drivers, arrested the ring-leaders, and smashed before it got started, an organized movement to stop all truck transportation in defiance of military law.

GUERRILLA WARFARE

The defiant strikers, daring the iron heel of the military rule, waged guerrilla attacks against moving trucks in widely separated districts of the city.

A flood of reports of picketing with subsequent arrests, flooded National Guard headquarters a few hours after scores of the strikers at their seat of strategy, an old garage building, had been dispersed, five of their leaders arrested, and records and papers

FAZIO GETS PEN TERM IN BLAST

Philip Fazio, freed in the "barrel murder" of William J. Gregory three years ago, was sentenced to serve from four and one-half to nine years in Western Penitentiary today in connection with the racket bombing of a Swissvale physician's home.

Nick Consolo, 23, found guilty with Fazio of possessing explosives, was sentenced to Huntingdon Reformatory.

In Consolo's case, Judge Samuel H. Gardner took cognizance of the jury's recommendation of mercy. The court a week ago had refused the two o new trial.

Fazio, former wholesale beer dealer, of Swissvale, and Consolo were arrested following the explosion of a bomb under the garage doors of Dr. George Seitz, of 2220 Woodstrock avenue, Swissvale, last April 24. Seitz, a borough councilman, had been active in an anti-racket campaign.

Signs of Nudism Seen by Laundrymen

HUTCHINSON, Kan., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Laundry owners have been convinced about 90 per cent of Hutchinson's male population practice nudism in varying degrees.

Out of 100 bundles of men's laundry, they say, only about 10 will contain complete pajama suits. Five will contain trousers, and five jackets. The remaining 80 bring no night clothes whatever to the laundry.

FATHER OF 4 SHOT DEAD BY LADS

Alleged Confession Tells of Plotting Crime for Week

CANTON, O., Aug. 1.—Ernest Schwarz, 33, of Dormont, suburb of Pittsburgh, a buyer of old gold, was shot to death near here last night. Two 15-year-old boys, both residents of Massillon, were being held today charged with murder.

The boys, according to Sheriff George Dailey, of Stork County, admitted the slaying. Robbery was declared to have been the motive.

The boys charged with the killing are William L. Gruber, son of Fred Gruber, railroader, of Massillon, and Willard Tschan, Jr., son of a grocery clerk. Gruber was captured at the scene of the crime by Clarence Lawson, 40, a farmer attracted by revolver shots, and Tschan was picked up by Massillon police after a radio broadcast had been sent out.

FATHER OF FOUR

Schwarz, father of four young children, went to Canton yesterday on business. On a previous trip, according to police, he had met the boys at the Silver Maple tourist camp, on the edge of town, and told them about his purchases of old gold. He promised them a commission if they would take him to any person having old gold for sale, the boys told police, Sheriff Dailey said.

Last night, according to the alleged confession, the boys met him at the tourist camp and offered to go with him to a place "somewhere out in the country" where a man had some old gold to sell.

ALL 3 RIDE IN AUTO

Schwartz and the two boys got into the former's automobile and drove to East Canton. Turning south in East Canton the three proceeded along Indian Run road until they came to the lane leading to the Lawson farm.

Tschan, who claimed to have visited the home previously, told Schwartz, according to police, that the lane had been washed out by recent rains and suggested that they walk up to the Lawson house.

The three started up the lane, police say, Tschan in the lead, Schwartz in the middle, and Gruber trailing. About half way to the Lawson house, Gruber, who was carrying a .32-caliber revolver, according to police, called to Schwartz to put up his hands. When Schwartz started to turn around Gruber fired, police say, the bullet striking Schwartz in the left side.

Schwartz fell. Regaining his feet, he started after Gruber, who, police say, had taken to his heels when the gun jammed after the first shot. Schwartz, according to police, caught up with the Gruber boy near the entrance to the lane. He tripped the youth, who wheeled in falling and pressed the muzzle

BLAME FOR NAZI DRIVE PLACED ON GERMANY; TENSION INCREASES

Hindenburg, Dying, Sees Hitler

BULLETIN.

NEUDECK, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The physicians of Reich President Paul von Hindenburg issued the following communique tonight:

"The President's weakness is increasing. He is gradually losing consciousness. His heart is slowing."

NEUDECK, Germany, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Chancellor Hitler spent one hour and a quarter with the dying President von Hindenburg today, then left by automobile with his full staff.

The official cars took the road toward Pinkenstein, but it was believed possible that the Chancellor might go direct to the airport at Marienburg and from there fly back to Berlin which he left this morning.

Physicians attending the President issued the following bulletin at 12:20 p. m.:

"Condition as compared to this morning is unchanged. Full consciousness remains. Toward noon the patient took light nourishment."

HE GROWS WEAKER

The bulletin, issued at 8:30 a. m., said:

"The President had a quiet night. There is no fever but his weakness increased. The President is fully conscious."

A cordon of black-shirted schutz staffel (picked Nazi guards) men was thrown about Von Hindenburg's ancestral seat early this morning.

Neudeck castle is now sealed from the outer world by both secret police and the S. S. men.

Nation Looks To Powers For Aid

By ALFRED TYRNAUER
International News Service.

VIENNA, Aug. 1.—Austria has spurned Chancellor Adolf Hitler's peace gesture in appointing Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen his special envoy to Vienna to straighten out tangled Austro-German relations after the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss by Nazis.

A government spokesman informed International News Service this afternoon that while the new Schuschnigg government would agree to the appointment of von Papen as an ordinary diplomatic representative of Germany, it finds him unacceptable in the role of special representative of Hitler.

OTTO PLANETTA

Nazi Planetta, confessed assassin of Herr Dollfuss, hanged by Vienna with a cloth, like her on his neck. This is a Wide World News Photograph Service radioed picture.

At the same time he announced that the Schuschnigg government is conducting no direct negotiations with Germany at present but expects the big powers to put an end to the Austro-German conflict. The spokesman said:

"Prompt action by the big powers is relied upon by Austria to clear up the situation."

But he did not make it plain whether military intervention or diplomatic pressure was being counted upon to bring peace between Berlin and Vienna.

But on the question of the von Papen appointment, heralded in a sensational announcement from Berlin last week as evidence that Hitler desired only friendly relations with Austria, the government spokesman was explicit.

Though Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg and von Papen are old school friends—and Berlin had counted heavily upon this—there have been no negotiations

Italy to Withdraw Troops in Fortnight

LONDON, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—Confirmation was obtained in high diplomatic quarters here of reports that Italy intends to withdraw her troops from the Austrian border within a fortnight unless Austrian Nazis attempt another putsch.

Premier Mussolini, these sources said, has no intention of invading Austria unless he is satisfied that her integrity is threatened.

British Order Fleet To Jugo-Slav Port

PARIS, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—Seventy units of the British Mediterranean fleet, under command of Admiral Fischer, will move into Jugo-Slavian waters in the Adriatic, according to a dispatch to L'Ere Nouvelle from Spalato, the chief Jugo-Slavian port on the Adriatic coast.

Jugo-Slavian authorities, the dispatch stated, have been advised of the move.

Third Nazi Faces Gallows in Putsch

INNSBRUCK, Austria, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—Frederick Wuraig was sentenced to death and his accomplice, Christian Meyer, to 20 years at hard labor today for the murder of Franz Hickal, former chief of the Innsbruck police during the recent Nazi putsch. Both were Nazis.

MOTHER WINS FIGHT FOR BABY

A mother today fought for and won possession of her 2-year-old daughter, taken from her, she claimed, by a trick of her husband.

Before Judge James H. Gray today the mother, Mrs. Virginia F. Harmon, testified that the husband, John E. Harmon, of Idlewild street, Homewood, took the baby, Emily, out for an automobile ride Sunday and didn't return it.

The court ordered the baby's return and ordered Harmon to pay Mrs. Harmon $5 a week for Emily's support.

Both graduates of Duquesne University, the Harmons have been living apart since the birth of the baby. The wife has been living with her father in Wilmerding.

Attorneys suggested today that the mother and father discuss the problem with Judge Gray in his chambers. The mother refused, saying:

"I came to court to get my child and that's what I want."

She said she had custody of Emily since she separated from her husband.

Short Beer Glasses Bring City Warning

Health Director Ray P. Moyer today issued a warning to beer dispensaries against short-weighing customers.

Dr. Moyer said investigation by the Division of Weights and Measures during the last two weeks revealed customers ordered a "20-ounces for 10 cents" special in various beer parlors received only 13 ounces of brew and three ounces of collar. The "20-ounce special" is dispensed in 16-ounce glasses, he said.

FACES POVERTY ON SICKBED

John Kane, the man who gave up house painting at the age of 70 to introduce to the world of art a new "primitive" style in international competition, was nearing the end of the ladder of life today.

Brush and pallet covered with thick dust in the squalor of a two-room walkup apartment at 1700 Fifth avenue, he lay with life ebbing from his emaciated frame of skin and bones. His faithful wife, nearly blind, his companion through prosperous years of house and boxcar painting and the later years of inter-

'Midget' Wolgast Freed in Theft

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Midget Wolgast, the boxer, accused by Joseph Manning of stealing $300 from him after administering "knockout drops," was discharged by a magistrate today after Manning failed to appear at the hearing.

Manning caused the arrest of Wolgast, saying the boxer took the money, representing a soldier's bonus payment.

Chess Wizard Leaves 2 Millions in Debts

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—Julius Finn, who was master of the most complicated maneuvers in the game of chess, left debts of more than $2,000,000, a tax appraisal of his estate revealed today.

Finn, considered America's greatest blindfold chess player, died in 1931.

Youth Surrenders in Co-ed's Death

Pharmacy Student Sobs His Love for Dead Beauty

BULLETIN.

NORMAN, Okla., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Neal Myers, pleaded not guilty at arraignment today on a charge of murdering Marian Mills, 20-year-old former campus beauty at the University of Oklahoma.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Neal Myers, facing murder charges in connection with the death of Miss Marian Mills, former University of Oklahoma beauty queen, insisted today he had committed no crime as he left for Norman to face arraignment.

The young pharmacy student, who surrendered to his attorney early today after three weeks of eluding officers, said he did not know his sweetheart had died until he read it in a Corpus Christi (Tex.) newspaper. He said:

"I committed no crime. I just couldn't face the disgrace.

"She was feeling fine right up to the time she collapsed. I got scared then because I thought she was dying. Then, as I got more scared, I didn't know what I was doing. It came on her so quick that I couldn't even think.

"All that came to me was the awful scandal that would come to the Milses and my family. I loved Marian and we had planned to get married. I had tried to get her to marry me before but she wouldn't."

Tired and worn from his wanderings in three states, the 21-year-old university student appeared at the home of his attorney, W. P. Morrison, and disclaimed responsibility for the death of Miss Mills.

Young Myers fled from Norman following the death of the girl at the apartment of Mrs. Hazel Brown, a fraternity house cook. Mrs. Brown told authorities the girl had been taking quack medicines in an effort to avert motherhood.

Myers is the son of Dr. and Mrs. P. B. Myers, El Reno, Okla., whose pleas for him to surrender went unheeded for three weeks. Miss Mills was the daughter of Prof. and Mrs. M. Elbert Mills, of Norman, seat of the university.

Miss Mills was chosen by Frederic March, the actor, as the university's "most beautiful girl" in 1930.

She was found dead by Dr. E. F. Stephens, who had been summoned by Myers just before his flight.

Girls in Shorts Ousted From City Tennis Courts

Although Public Safety Director A. Marshall Bell declares its all right with him if the ladies and girls wear shorts in public, the city Bureau of Parks officials think the opposite.

And to show just how they feel about shorts, park employes today ordered six young Squirrel Hill girls from the Schenley Park tennis courts. And the ban on shorts must have been put into effect within the last few days as all the young women stated they had played on the same courts in shorts last week.

The girls ordered from the courts were DeVera Syna, 13, of 2317 Pittock street; Reva Rosenberg, of 5929 Phillips avenue; Revera Perlman, 14, of 5901 Phillips avenue, and her sisters, Rena, 8, Seola, 13, and Lois, 10.

According to Revera Perlman, she and her friends had been playing 10 minutes this morning when Philip Tugassi, a park employe, ordered them from the courts. When they asked for an explanation, Miss Perlman said, the park employe told them that he had been given his orders by Supt. R. E. Griswold.

Supt. Griswold was not in his office when inquiries were made there today.

His chief clerk, H. B. Bassett, declared:

"While we don't see any great objection to women wearing shorts, we feel that there should be some rule against it. If there were not a rule, many persons would abuse the privilege. We had to stop the men from playing ball at the oval in their undershirts, and it's only fair to make a similar rule for the women."

U. S. GRAND JURY INDICTS 28 IN DETROIT BANK COLLAPSE

HEADS NAMED WITH LESSER OFFICIALS

Many Counts Based On 'Window Dressing' An 'Loans'

International News Service.

DETROIT, Aug. 1.—The federal grand jury, which for the past month has been investigating affairs of the First National Bank-Detroit and the Guardian Detroit Union Group, Inc., returned 28 indictments today, naming prominent bankers and businessmen throughout the district. Collapse of the two institutions in February, 1933, precipitated the national banking crisis.

Those named in the indictments included E. D. Stair, president of the Detroit Bankers' Company; Wilson W. Mills, chairman of the board of the First National Bank; John Ballantyne, president of the Detroit Bankers' Company, before Stair; Donald N. Sweeny, president of the First National Bank; Wesson Senburn, director of the First National and co-founder of Detroit Bankers; Mark A. Wilson, federal receiver of a bank in Flint, Mich., and Oscar Webber, prominent businessman.

The manifold counts of the single indictment were based on loans to employes, officers and directors with insufficient stock as collateral.

OTHERS NAMED

Others of the First National named were: James Thayer McMillan, James S. Holden, Ralph Gilchrist, Julian P. Bowen, Ralph Stone, James O. Murfin, John R. Bodde, D. Dwight Doughlas, Edwin K. Eckert, George Wiley, William P. Barbour, Thomas W. Palmer Livingstone, John M. Donaldson, William B. Mayo, Robert Schiell, Herbert L. Chittenden, Fred J. Robinson and Richard H. Webber.

Another indictment cut into the Guardian Detroit Union Group, Inc., charges of "window dressing" through false entries in the books of the Union Industrial Trust and Savings Bank, of Flint, named:

Herbert R. Wilkin, last general manager of the Guardian group; Col. James L. Walsh, executive vice president of the group, and Robert O. Lord, president of the Guardian National Bank of Commerce.

PREVIOUSLY INDICTED

Walsh and Lord already have been indicted on conspiracy charges of "window dressing" in other units of the Guardian group, while Wilkin and Walsh were named in state warrants charged with an identical offense.

Thirteen bankers were named in indictments returned by the federal grand jury in June. Ballantyne, Sweeny and Bodde were named then also.

The grand jury has not yet finished its work. More matters, chiefly concerned with the Guardian National Bank of Commerce, the Guardian Detroit Union Group, Inc., and its nine banks outstate, affiliated either with the national banking system or the Federal Reserve System, are to be taken up.

Ill-Fated Balloon Reached 60,613 Feet

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—The ill-fated stratosphere balloon, Explorer, reached an official altitude of 60,613 feet before a rip in its bag forced it to descend, it was announced today by the National Geographic Society.

there are many fine places for the traveling American to see, San Francisco is the place.

THIS IS WRITTEN on a train running down the western shore of the Hudson River. Many things have happened along that stream since Hudson sailed up and gave it his name only a little while ago. Many bridges cross it, and the biggest, one single span, will soon be built at New York City.

Railroads run on both sides, highways are cut out of the solid rock high up on both sides.

And from high hilltops here and there, far above the water, numerous new lighthouses have been erected to guide fliers. More than anything else, they would surprise Hendrik Hudson, his sailors, and the red Indians that saw Hudson's boat and thought there could not ever be anything more wonderful.

WHAT ELSE will this and other American rivers see as they roll slowly down through the ages, back to the oceans, the masses of water that the sun lifts from the sea and pours into them?

Will they see their waters impounded, saved for seasons of drought and for irrigating the nation's deserts?

Will the millions of tons of fertile soil that they now wash out to sea, be taken from them and saved?

There will be many things left for enterprising men to do after NRA shall have finished its temporary emergency labors.

Legal Contest 'Reunion' for Bancrofts

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—George Bancroft, motion picture star, today expected to meet his first wife, Mrs. Edna C. Bancroft, face to face for the first time in 19 years.

Mrs. Bancroft

Bancroft said he would appear in Mrs. Bancroft's lawyer's office to give his deposition in connection with her separate maintenance suit, brought on the grounds he has never divorced her although he had since remarried and has an 18-year-old daughter by his second wife, who was Mrs. Octavia Broske.

Mrs. Bancroft's lawyer, S. S. Hahn, said she would attend the taking of the deposition, which will concern the star's financial status and his claim he obtained a divorce from his first wife.

Bancroft said he had had difficulty in locating papers recording his divorce, which he asserted he obtained in an eastern city.

RACE BALLOON COMES DOWN

ATLANTA, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The Goodyear VIII, one of five entries in the national balloon race, landed at Bolton, an Atlanta suburb, shortly after three gas bags were sighted here.

The Goodyear entry was piloted by Lieut. Karl L. Lange and Verner L. Smith. The landing was made safely. The other two balloons drifted in a northeast direction.

Two of the balloon had not been reported.

All took off from Legion Field at Birmingham last night to decide the nation's three entries in the Gordon Bennett trophy race at Warsaw, Poland, September 23. The air line distance between Atlanta and Birmingham is 125 miles.

Devilfish Slays 650-Pound Shark

BELLINGHAM, Wash., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Two terrors of the deep, a 650-pound tiger shark and a devilfish, battled to their death in one of the fish traps of the Bellingham Canning Company.

The devilfish smothered the shark by getting an unshakable grip around his gills. Before the battle ended the devilfish also was near death. Its existences was ended by the wide-eyed fisherman who saw the battle.

Johnson Fraud On Labor, Says Mrs. Pinchot

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Mrs. Gifford Pinchot called Gen. Hugh S. Johnson a "fake" last night in addressing a group of waitresses on strike. She said: "He was anti-union when he accepted President Roosevelt's appointment and has consistently ruled against labor ever since.

Mrs. Pinchot

"He never intended to enforce the labor sections of the NRA."

She said present labor conditions throughout the country created the impression that rioting and disorder were necessary to force action by the federal government.

Weather Conditions

A ridge of high pressure stretches from Hudson Bay southward to the Gulf, and, as a result, the weather was cool over that section during yesterday and this morning. It is cool also over the northern plains and the Rocky Mountain states, while over the central and southern plains the weather is unusually warm this morning; minimum temperature 88 degrees at Kansas City. High maximum temperatures occurred over Kansas, Western Missouri, Oklahoma and Northern Texas yesterday, the highest reported, being 110 degrees at Dodge City and Wichita, establishing a new high temperature record at Dodge City. Pressure is low over Manitoba and southward to another center at Kansas City, barometer 29.56 inches. This disturbance is producing light rains over the central plains and more generous amounts over the lower Ohio Valley.

MILITIA'S GUNS ON STRIKERS

placed under guard in the dawn raid.

Undeterred, cruising pickets launched their attacks on trucks, keeping guardsmen on the jump answering calls for aid. Wholesale arrests of pickets followed. Some were armed with lead pipes. Shortly before, word was received from a hospital that John Belor, second victim of the current strike, had died.

He was among those shot by police July 20 when a loaded truck was attacked by pickets.

TRUCKS OVERTURNED

Reports were received that several farm trucks were overturned outside town. At least one driver was slugged.

After a survey of the strikers' quarters, Ajt. Gen. E. A. Walsh said sanitary conditions were deplorable. The strikers' physician, who described himself as Dr. J. A. Enright, was taken into custody.

Officers announced three more leaders of the strikers had been picked up. They were William Brown, president of the truck drivers union; Myles Dunne and Henry Trank. All were placed under arrest.

Forty automobiles used by the pickets were confiscated during the raid on the central labor union.

Albert Goldman, Chicago labor attorney, immediately began consideration of legal moves to obtain the release of strike leaders under arrest.

Goldman expressed the belief "we might question the legality of the martial law order and also the legality of the arrest."

CHICAGO PROBES DILLINGER BRAIN

Scientists Also Study Heart and Lungs of Slain Gangster

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Coroner Frank J. Walsh said today that scientists under his direction were studying portions of the brain and vital organs of the slain John Dillinger.

The official said one or two ounces of the archcriminal's brain and parts of his lungs, heart and kidneys had been removed during a post mortem examination conducted shortly after the gang chief was shot to death.

These were subjected to a minute scrutiny by pathologists for traces of abnormality or disease which might have had some influence on Dillinger's antisocial tendencies. A report on their findings will be made soon, the Coroner said.

Walsh said similar examinations had been made of the vital organs of other notorious gangsters killed since he took office. He said:

"We are seeking to determine whether the brains of these criminals are deformed or abnormal in any way—whether their murderous lives were caused by some brain or organic phenomenon."

The coroner recounted the results of a study of the organs of "Handsome Jack" Klutas, former University of Illinois student who became the director of a kidnap ring. The coroner said:

"Klutas was suffering from anemia of the brain. There was a decided lack of blood there. Otherwise, the brain was normal and neither it nor the vital organs showed ravages of disease."

The scientists hoped to reach a definite conclusion, he added, on the age old question of whether criminals were made or born.

Revival of Confidence Must Be Keynote of Nation's Recovery, Says Richard Washburn Child

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Noted Author and Former U. S. Ambassador to Italy.

NATIONAL confidence!

That is uppermost in the serious thoughts of hot weather Washington.

If either political party is looking for a good slogan and is willing to play fair on it the best word for the fall campaign is CONFIDENCE.

Mr. Child

Children know that even the enjoyment of adventure must be taken on a background of safety.

The rosy dawn theorists will hear now that, whatever new medicines they put up, the most popular of all medicines will be the elixir of CONFIDENCE.

The worker wants his year round job.

The business man wants to feel safe in restocking and in borrowing for a turnover and —a profit.

The manufacturer wants to know that he can give substantial orders for new raw materials.

The farmer, who is in the riskiest business of all, wants to know that government measures will steady his boat and not rock it by trying to ballast it with kick-back sticks of theorists' dynamite.

THE investor — this means every man who saves a few dollars—wants a place to put his money to work in safety, not only safety from being wangled away by Wall street, but safety from being scared to zero by Washington.

Without safety no one buys goods.

Without safety no one employs men.

Without safety no one builds structures.

Without safety no one lends money.

Without safety we live in today and shudder about tomorrow.

Without safety we expect repudiation of decent obligations and slide into an ethical swamp of evasion all around.

Without safety morals begin to wilt because they are largely founded on beliefs and hope for next week and next year.

Without safety we invite the Communist and the foreign intriguer.

Without safety all the schemes to legislate human welfare and send the bill to the taxpayer (whoever you are you are the taxpayer, direct or indirect) go into the cocked hat!

BUSINESS, production, jobs, normal recovery, trade, contracts, promises, work of brains, work of hands, purchase of goods, behaviors, even the possibility of upholding any deal—square deal, New Deal, fair deal depend upon CONFIDENCE.

Take-a-chance is mere luxury.

The wiser heads in hot weather, meditative Washington begin to realize that the confidence needed is not merely confidence in government.

No government ever succeeded in being a complete papa and mamma for mankind. None ever will.

THE confidence needed is the confidence that NORMAL impulses will aid NORMAL recovery.

Confidence that jobs can be had.

Confidence that consumers will buy.

Confidence that banks will lend.

Confidence that raw materials can be processed.

Confidence that money will not be taken from Peter the taxpayer to pay Paul the needy while money is taken from Paul the taxpayer to pay Peter the needy.

Confidence that the government will say to industry:

"Go to work! Government can't do it for you and never can."

Confidence that the wage earner will get what is fair from the only source he can ever get it—an employer who makes a fair profit from a consumer who pays a fair price.

Confidence that the Constitution, which is our document of confidence, will not be rewritten by modernistic poets. Confidence that our laws will not be composed by torch-singers.

THIS program is open to either party. It is open to the will of the public to express with UTMOST VIGOR.

This is not a laissez-faire program.

The President has led strongly through the storm of an emergency.

But when the wind ceases to blow and the sun begins to come out and the thunder stops, no magic, no rabbits from the Washington hat, and certainly no clap-trap of changing the United States by bureaucratic regulations will replace work, industrial peace, production, savings, square dealing, profits, incentive for tomorrow.

MORE CONFIDENCE—LESS CURE ALL.

MORE WORK—LESS WASHINGTON.

MORE SAFETY — LESS SALVE.

This is just as open to those who are friendly to the President as to his critics and just as open to the Democrats as to any opposition, whatever its name.

BRITAIN FEELS NEW SLUMP

LONDON, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Parliament adjourned today with British recovery as a crisis.

For the first time since 1932, when Britain began her steady climb out of the depression, business activity has slumped.

The drop is a slight one, but it is the first, and the dominant economic question is whether it is merely temporary or the initial sign of a serious recession in the near future.

Whichever it turns out to be, observers say, the limits to Britain's recovery will be reached at a point well below her pre-depression prosperity unless there is an upward trend in world trade.

The reason is that the recovery to date has been fashioned largely out of internal, not external, demand.

Belief that there are limits to such a prosperity has been voiced by Rupert E. Beckett, chairman of the Westminster Bank, who said:

"The British people can never gain real prosperity merely by taking in each other's washing."

300 Taken Off Ship Disabled on Lake

DETROIT, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Approximately 300 Detroit-bound passengers on the steamer Greater Detroit were transferred to the steamer Eastern States in Lake Erie this morning after the Greater Detroit had been disabled by a broken connecting rod.

Officials of the Detroit and Cleveland Navigation Company, which owns both ships, said the two steamers were lashed together in the lake and the transfer of passengers made without mishap.

TWO OHIO BOYS KILL DORMONT SALESMAN

Alleged Confession Tells of Plotting Crime for Week

of the gun against Mr. Schwartz's head and again gred, police declared.

STAGGERS TO CAR

Although twice wounded, Schwartz made his way to his automobile, got in and started the motor. He backed into a ditch and then started down the road toward East Canton. Gruber, police say, jumped on the running board of the machine and struck Schwartz over the head with the butt of the gun.

In the meantime the Tschan boy fled, according to police. Later, they say, they learned he walked to Canton, boarded a bus and rode to the end of the line, where he picked up a ride into Massillon. He reached his home a short time before Massillon police reached there to place him under arrest.

Lawson, attracted to the scene by the first shot, ran down the lane in time to see Gruber fire the second shot, he said. Lawson ran up nad disarmed the youth after he had struck Schwartz on the head.

FIRST AID AT FARM

Lawson took young Gruber back to the house. Schwartz got out of his car and walked back to the house with them. In the house Mr. and Mrs. Lawson administered first aid.

Lawson sent two of his children to East Canton to bring Marshal Louis Stauffer and Dr. Orin Miller. Schwartz was taken to Mercy Hospital.

Police say they learned that the revolver used in the slaying had been purchased from a gunsmith at Wooster last Wednesday by Tschan.

Sheriff George Dailey and deputies went to Wooster at noon today accompanied by the Tschan boy to identify the shop in which the gun was bought.

BOY TELLS DETAILS

In a written statement made today in the presence of the Sheriff, Marsal Stauffer, assistant Prosecuting Attorney A. C. L. Barthelmeh and several detectives, the Gruber youth explained in detail all of the circumstances leading up to the shooting. He said:

"We had planned to hold him up last Wednesday night. I happened to be in Wooster that night visiting my sister, Mrs. John Fry. I told Schwartz to come to Wooster because we had some gold to sell. When he came that night, he brought Tschan in his car.

"That was the first time I saw the gun. Tschan had the gun and he told me to take it and carry it because I was wearing a coat and he was not. I took the gun and we had planned to hold up the man on the way from Wooster to Massillon. I thought about it on the way over, but I stalled because I did not want to do it at that time.

"HAD GUN IN POCKET"

"Last night we met Schwartz again after we had talked about holding him up while walking around town in the afternoon.

"We went to Silver Maples, a sort of tourist camp on the Lincoln highway where he was staying and both got in his car to go to East Canton. I had the gun in my pocket.

"Tschan had relatives at East Canton, and he knew the directions. Schwartz drove where he told him to go and when we arrived at the lane, Tschan said we would have to get out and walk back to the house because the lane was washed out.

"So we got out of the car and started to walk, Tschan and Schwarz in the front and I walked to the rear and to the right. In planning the affair, Tschan said that he knew Schwarz carried some acid for testing gold in a small black case, and that I should be careful when I held him up. If he opened the case to get his money, I should be careful not to get any of the acid on me.

'DREW OUT GUN'

"While we were walking up the lane, I drew the gun and told hi mto put up his hands.

"When he resisted I shot him in the back. He turned immediately and started after me and I couldn't shoot again because the trigger stuck. So I ran and he followed me about 500 feet.

"Schwartz finally caught up with me and tripped me some way. I still had the gun and when we both went down I fired again. That is where I got the blood on my clothes. I then helped him to his feet and he started to walk toward the car and I followed. He got in the car and started the car.

"I thought he was going to run over me, so I jumped off the way and then jumped on the running board. He backed the car into a ditch and then I started to go to the farmhouse to look for my buddy.

DENIES HITTING VICTIM

"At the top of the hill, I met a farmer and asked him to go along with me to the farmhouse. When I reached the house the officer from East Canton was already there.

"I didn't see Tschan after the first shot was fired."

He was interrupted once in his statement by Sherff Dailey who asked if he struck Schwarz over the head when he jumped on the running board of the car. This, the boy denied. The sheriff said Schwarz told him he had been struck on the head.

M'NAIR MUSTACHE, CHEERED BY CROWD, BANNED BY MISSUS

CAP ALSO GOES ON WIFE'S RETURN

Mayor Dons 'Panama' And Mows Fuzz From Lip

His Honor the Mayor's publicized mustache was a thing of the past today.

Following the return of Mrs. William N. McNair from a vacation trip last night, the Mayor appeared at his office this morning, bereft of the fluffy 10-day growth on his upper lip.

Likewise a cap which he had substituted last night for more formal headwear was missing. In its place was a spotless, new Panama hat. Also he was wearing a natty gray suit.

The Mayor had appeared enamored of his new adornments. Both had stood the acid test at a meeting of Fifth Ward Democrats last night in the Herron Hill Park. Instead of being booed as at a former Hill district meeting, he was loudly applauded.

MAYOR McNAIR
Mr. McNair, pictured today in his smooth-faced era.

DOOMED BY MISSUS

Then the decree of Mrs. McNair appeared to have sounded the doom of both mustache and cap. The Mayor himself shaved off the hirsute growth, this morning.

The Mayor hesitated last night when he visited a barber shop in the St. Nicholas Building. He had announced he would rid himself of the appendage on his upper lip in anticipation of Mrs. McNair's return.

But as he surveyed himself in a mirror, His Honor appeared to realize the full possibilities of the impending loss and strode silently from the shop, the mustache still sprouting where it blossomed more than a week ago. Members of his office force deemed it an attractive facial adornment.

The Mayor appeared wearing a cap for the first time at the Herron Hill Park gathering.

JAUNTY FELLOW

Worn at a rakish angle, the cap gave him a jaunty air and seemed to take well with the crowd. He got a big hand from everyone.

His followers, Joe (Bozo) Lavery, former policeman; Theodore L. Moritz, his secretary; William B. Foster, city assessor; Magistrate John B. Kearney and others came through also with plenty of handclasps.

And why did the Mayor wear a cap:

"I didn't want to take off my hat."

And why didn't he want to take off his cap:

"It's a little cool and I don't want to get my head cold."

AND SO THE HIGHLIGHTS

The highlights of his talk on many problems came when he asked:

"What good is money—can you eat it—no! You want food, clothing and a house to live in. Why don't you have it?"

A 12-year-old boy in the audience shot back:

"We ain't got no money."

Lavery made a two-sentence speech with punch. He said:

"If the Police Research Commission would study economic rent and single tax instead of the graft of previous administrations, they could end our depression."

WANTS TO SWAP

Jack Davis, secretary of Morals Court, had another method to make the city rich. In his speech he took a jab at the rent on the Schenley properties, which he said goes to England, declaring:

"The British government takes half and then you wonder why the Prince of Wales has a good time.

His cap still tilted at a slick angle, Mayor McNair was literally mobbed by scores of admiring youngsters as he left. One boy questioned him with:

"Will you trade me caps?

'Some Mustache, Eh, Boss?'

BARBER JOHN BASTOLLA HELPING MAYOR McNAIR TO ADMIRE NOW-VANISHED MUSTACHE

His Honor in his favorite barber chair in the St. Nicholas building just as he changed his mind about ridding himself of his illegal adornment—illegal because vacationing Mrs. McNair, who's back home, hadn't seen or approved it. It still was short-lived, however, for the Mayor later changed his mind again and cut it off himself at his home. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

PLOT TO KIDNAP RICH PACKER THWARTED

5 Men Charged With Ransom Conspiracy In Canada

TORONTO, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Five men were questioned today in an alleged conspiracy to kidnap one of Canada's leading business men and hold him for $100,000 ransom, believed to be the first case of its kind in the dominion.

Police said the plot was directed at J. S. McLean, 58, president of the Canada Packers, Ltd.

Harry Leslie, 40, James Leslie, 36, brothers, and Frank Wood, 33, are charged with conspiracy to commit an indictable offense. Peter Leslie, 18, son of Harry, and Fred Hastings, 30, are held as material witnesses.

The Leslie brothers are proprietors of a tourist camp on the Lakeshore highway. Police said the men planned to kidnap McLean from his home and hide him in a tunnel under cabins at the camp.

Excavations for the tunnel had been started, they said. The arrests were made after 10 days of investigation, during which McLean's home was guarded.

The kidnapers were to strike today, police continued, charging McLean was to have been drugged or knocked unconscious, and driven away in an automobile.

With the arrests it was revealed valuable dogs owned by McLean, with records in the show world, had been killed or injured by bullets recently.

Officers refused to say how they got information incriminating the suspects.

Freckle-Faced Champs Named at Park Outing

Feel Fine, Winners Say

Rosanna Flanagan, 14, and George Henisch, 13, are Pittsburgh's freckle-faced champs today.

And are they proud of the countless thousands of little brown spots that cover their faces.

They won their title at the National Kiddies' Day-Junior Patrol-Junior Birdmen of America picnic yesterday in West View Park.

Said smiling Rosanna, of 4023 Haldane street, who beat out nearly 30 girl contenders for the title:

"Even if the boys don't like freckles, I'm glad I have them now. I'm tickled to death to have them!"

GEORGE HENISCH, 13 . . . FRECKLEDEST BOY

Red-headed George, of 37 Kenmore avenue, Forest Hills, after downing 41 contrants in the boys contest, said:

"I feel grand that I have about 2,000 freckles."

Why not? Both first place winners were awarded a shiny new bicycle.

Second place winners: Ralph Anderson, of 261 Walliston avenue, Emsworth, and Sara Farr, of Holidays Cove, W. Va., won 15 outfits of clothing.

Other winners in the girls' contest were Mildred Wieckowska, 452 Lawn street; Ethel Matthews, 2426 Dewey street, Munhall; June Bowers, 810 Bayridge avenue, Brookline; Luella Berwick, 827 Tobin street, and Florence Finnerty, 413 Walnut avenue, Scottdale, Pa.

ROSANNA FLANAGAN, 14 . . . FRECKLED, TOO

Other winners in the boys' contest were Robert Gess, 429 South Sixth street, Jeannette, Pa.; Marty Flannagan, 707 Pennview street, Etna; Arthur Bonarett, Creighton, Pa.; Dan O'Neill, 1111 Liverpool street, and Bernard O'Hanlon, 4358 Gladstone street.

Louis L. Kaufman, Sun-Telegraph Globe-Trotter, announced the contest to the crowd of 7,000 spectators.

OIL TANK BLAST KILLS BOY, HURTS 2

Trio Hurled 50 Feet When 'Refuge' From Dog Explodes

A boy was dead today, one was in Presbyterian Hospital and another was at home recovering from shock and burns received when an oil tank on the Leonard Petrie farm, Robinson Township, on which they were sitting, exploded and catapulted them nearly 50 feet into yesterday.

The dead boy was Earl Maroney, 13, of Robinson Township. He, a brother, Regis, 11, and a playmate, Robert Morrison, 13, also of Robinson Township, had sought refuge on top of the tank when chased by a dog as they were en route to a swimming hole, the Morrison boy said. A few minutes later the tank exploded.

The injured boys could give no reason for the blast, but police believed they were smoking and dropped a match into the gas-filled tank.

Earl, 13.

Morrison was the first to recover and ran for aid. Nearby campers, to whom the police dog belonged, summoned George H. Kidd, of Coraopolis road, who with a neighbor took Earl and Regis to the office of Dr. J. W. Burkett, on the Steubenville pike, where Earl was pronounced dead.

Regis was taken to Presbyterian Hospital, suffering from severe burns. Morrison was returned home.

DOCTOR'S WIFE WINS SUPPORT

Dr. Ralph Jackson Raybeck, specialist at the Allegheny General Hospital, today was ordered to pay his wife, Mrs. Eleanor McKelvy Raybeck, $250 a month and $150 counsel fees, in an order handed down by Judge James H. Gray in a divorce action brought by the wife.

Mrs. Raybeck, asking a limited divorce, brought action last May 24. She is represented by Attorney Thomas F. Garrahan.

The couple was married in November, 1923. Mrs. Raybeck resides at 6959 Thomas boulevard. Dr. Raybeck lives at the William Penn Hotel.

DIVORCED PAIR REMARRIED

Three months after they had been divorced, a Carnegie couple, with their two daughters, were on a second honeymoon today.

Bruce DeGeer, 39, of 714 Collier avenue, and his divorced wife, Dorothy, obtained their second marriage license at the City-County Building yesterday.

Today they were on their way to Philadelphia, it was learned, following their remarriage, which took place late yesterday.

The wife had obtained a divorce decree on a cruelty charge. At that time DeGeer was ordered to pay $40 a month for support of his wife and children.

King of Belgians On Way to Sweden

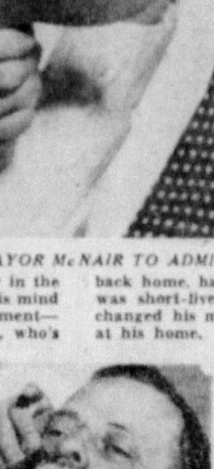
'Just Friends,' Assert Jean And Powell

DEL MONTE, Cal., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Platinum blonde Jean Harlow and suave William Powell, film stars, smiled today at reports they plan to marry soon, and jointly stated:

"There is nothing to it. We're just good friends."

The two played golf together, hiked together, swam together, sat at the same bridge table and dined together.



Miss Harlow

LEADING MAN QUITS HEPBURN

IVORYTON, Conn., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Katharine Hepburn, stage and screen star, will not return to the scene of her stage debut here after all, but not through any fault of hers.

Alexander McKaig, New York producer, yesterday issued the following statement:

"The engagement of Katharine Hepburn in 'Dark Victory' which was to take place at the Summer Playhouse here the week beginning August 6 has been canceled because Stanley Ridges who played the principal male part was withdrawn.

"Action will be taken with Actors Equity Association."

Miss Hepburn, whose home is in Hartford, has been visiting at Fenwich, near here, the summer home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Hepburn, and had agreed to take the leading part in the play. If the play was successful it is understood it would be taken to New York.

LEW CODY'S DOG SPARED BLOCK

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The late Lew Cody's fox terrier, Traffic, will not be sold today when the rest of the actor's estate is auctioned.

Instead, Traffic will be given to James Glen, Cody's chauffeur for many years, whose pleas that he be given the dog were heard with a kindly ear by Public Administrator Ben Brown.

Glen was driving the car when Cody rescued Traffic, a puppy that had fallen off the running board of a car, 11 years ago.

FRIENDS AWAIT DRESSLER WILL

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The film capital today cast curious eyes toward the Probate Court, where the will of the late "Queen Marie of the movies soon was expected to be filed.

Marie Dressler, whose funeral was held yesterday, earned an enormous salary during her last years in the films—a salary authoritatively reported to have been $3,000 weekly—but what she did with it nobody seemed to know.

The matter rested today behind the sealed lips of one of Miss Dresser's closest friends, Allen Breen Walker, of Santa Barbara, who was with the actress when she died last Saturday.

The beloved actress' closest and only living relative was reported to be a sister, Mrs. Richard G. Anthony, the former Bonita Koerber, of Toronto, Canada, now residing in Richmond, Surrey, England. Miss Dressler's true name was Leila Koerber.

Magnate, 71, Denies Secretary's Charges

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—A denial he had ever proposed marriage to his former secretary, Miss Inga M. Slotten, was the answer George Flood, 71, shipping man, had filed here today in response to a $100,000 breach of promise suit brought against him by Miss Slotten.

Flood was married last September to the former Miss Aida Ropas, 19, niece of the Colombian counsel here, Alvero Roboledo.

Polish Consul Hurt In Crossing Crash

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Titus Zbyscewski, Polish consul general to the United States, was injured seriously yesterday when his automobile was struck by an International Railway work car at the South Military road crossing.

JURY AWAITS PHANTOM CASE

STEUBENVILLE, O., Aug. 1.—Evidence against David Dascanio, 49, "phantom killer" suspect in the slaying of three men and wounding a fourth in a mill yard here, today was expected to be presented before a grand jury.

Principal testimony was expected to be given by ballistic experts. Authorities said tests were made to show that a gun taken from Dascanio at the time of his arrest was used in the killings.

DIVORCE ENDS CAMPUS LOVE

Charges of cruelty ended the 14-week campus romance of Mrs. Jane Steele Robinson, of Pittsburgh, who yesterday obtained a divorce decree from Joseph G. Robinson, at Minden, Nev.

Robinson is the son of Attorney William M. Robinson. The marriage took place secretly April 16, at Nashua, N. H., shortly before Robinson graduated from Harvard law school. Mrs. Robinson was a senior at the Katherine Gibbs School, Boston, at the time.

MRS. ROOSEVELT MISSES CRASH

EUREKA, Cal., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Two narrow escapes from motor car collisions today marked the vacation tour of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in her little blue roadster.

Twice an automobile driven by Mrs. Frank Brennan, wife of the collector of customs of this port, nearly rammed Mrs. Roosevelt's roadster and each time the quick action of Lorena A. Hickok, her companion, who was at the wheel, averted a crash.

At the city limits Mrs. Brennan drove her car from a side street onto the highway directly in front of the roadster. Miss Hickok swerved the car barely in time to avoid a collision.

A few minutes later as Miss Hickok was making a left hand turn Mrs. Brennan tried to cut her machine in between the blue roadster and another car following closely behind. Miss Hickok stepped on the throttle and again avoided a crash.

Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Hickok drew up at a service station a short distance away and when Mrs. Brennan stopped alongside, the First Lady greeted her with a smile and shook hands with her small child.

ROOSEVELT SHIP SPEEDS TO U. S.

ABOARD CRUISER NEW ORLEANS WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT EN ROUTE TO PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt was approaching the Oregon coast today well ahead of schedule.

Capable of reaching Portland Thursday, the cruisers Houston and New Orleans may slow up, for the President's plans to land Friday morning still stood.

While the fighting craft sped him back to the States from his unprecedented visit to the Hawaiian Islands, Roosevelt worked on many administration matters. Throughout his long cruise to America's outlying possessions, the President has kept in close touch with Washington by wireless.

Roosevelt's Mother Returning Aug. 10

PARIS, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, mother of President Roosevelt, will sail for New York on the liner Ile de France on August 10, it was learned today.

Vanished Bride Feared Abducted

DENVER, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The search for Mrs. Gladys Mandy Smith, 22-year-old Denver bride who disappeared last Thursday, switched to Kansas today when police received a report that a car resembling hers was seen near Lawrence, Kan.

Authorities believe Mrs. Smith may have been abducted in her own machine. She dropped from sight after taking her husband, Bernard Smith, to work Thursday night.

Mothers' Treat in the Strip

STRIP DISTRICT MOTHERS DIVIDING CONTRIBUTED TIDBITS FOR CHILDREN

The happy scene at the O'Malley playground, Liberty avenue, as mothers of the district distributed among eager children the fruit and candy contributed in their door-to-door campaign among the merchants and produce houses in the surrounding streets. Everybody had a very good time. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

JUVENILE HOME OUSTS WORKERS

Discharge of eight employes and appointment of their successors today were among the first moves in reorganizing Juvenile Court staff.

While the discharged workers were not announced, the new members were: Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Campbell, of 730 Copeland street, cooks; Mrs. Mildred K. McConnell, 522 Herron avenue, dietician and housekeeper; Harry Frank, 1035 Flemington street, utility man; Helen Bedillion, 1543 Clairtonica street; Margaret Snyder, 735 Millvale avenue, and Jean Snedden, 118 West Ohio street, girls' supervisors, and W. B. MacDonald, 425 Ella street, Wilkinsburg, boys' supervisor.

Further changes will be made, according to Walter Rome, superintendent, who said the appointees were being selected to fit the type of program to be effected in the new detention home.

Hornet in Auto, Minister Injured

EBENSBURG, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—A hornet delayed a funeral and caused a car in the procession to crash, resulting in the injury of the Rev. M. L. Gamble, of East McKeesport.

The hornet stung the driver of the machine, and he lost control. The clergyman, a passenger, suffered contusions of the leg as the machine hit a telephone pole.

Convict Wounded In Escape Attempt

HOUSTON, Tex., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Leslie Stewart, an inmate of the Harlem State Prison Farm, 25 miles west of here, was shot and wounded dangerously when he and two other convicts made a dash for liberty.

Stewart was shot near the heart by Guard Lonnie Stanford, who opened fire with a shotgun and a pistol as Stewart, Lloyd Carter and Degnan Joyce, convicts, ran from a field. The other two were recaptured.

Herbert B. Swope's Daughter Married

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bayward Swope have announced the marriage of their daughter, Jane, to Robert L. Brandt, of New York, Sunday at Ossining, N. Y. The couple went to Washington to be guests of Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the Federal Securities Commission.

Brandt, 22, is connected with the administrative division of the NRA. The bride is 21.

HITLER'S POWER SHAKEN BY EVENTS

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service.

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—Germany is in deep trouble today. Hitler is in deeper trouble and the possibility of the death of Hindenburg comes at a moment more unlucky for the Nazi regime than at any time since the Third Reich was born.

Events have moved more swiftly towards disaster for the Nazis than any neutral observer would have believed possible six months ago. Any time up to then the Nazis would have considered themselves fortunate to have a chance to let Hitler step into Hindenburg's shoes. Today the Nazis need Hindenburg and the possibility that he may die is a major misfortune ranking almost with the murder of Dollfuss and the bloody "cleanup" in Germany on the thirtieth of June.

Because Hindenburg still possesses the confidence of Germany. The fact that he he supported the Nazi regime has been, to a steadily increasing degree, its most valuable bulwark against growing popular discontent.

DISCONTENT GROWS

This discontent has two aspects, economic and foreign political, closely related to each other. Economically Hitler is now experiencing a dose of the same medicine his enemies, the leaders of Republican Germany, died of.

Under the republic Hitler profited most by the world economic crisis. Every country on earth suffered from the world crisis, but the Germans believed, and Hitler encouraged them to believe, that Germany was suffering uniquely and only because she had lost the war, had a small army and was exploited by her Jews. So the Germans blamed their economic plight on the republic, that is on the government in power.

The world economic depression has continued, and although economic conditions in some other countries, notably England, are much better, Germany's is much worse, partly due to circumstances under Hitler's control, but partly to circumstances beyond his control. Once more Germans blame their plight on the government in power, but this time it is the Hitler government.

NAZIS IN DISTRESS

Signs that the Nazi regime was heading for serious trouble appeared first in February. At that time the Jewish boycott, plus the over-valued mark, plus the general choking of international trade had already reduced Germany's possibility of importing the necessary raw materials.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, put out feelers to get big credit to buy raw materials. He thought especially of American money and he tried to use the Bank for International Settlements at Basle as a mediator and so, according to reliable information, Leon Fraser, president of the Basle bank, left the Germans know that their credit was not good. The financiers had nothing against Germany, but a good deal against the present regime.

Thereafter the economic situation in Germany went from bad to worse, until by the end of June, Storm Troops, headed by Roehm, were already in revolt.

FAITH SHAKEN

Hitler's ruthless crushing of the revolt had its well-known consequences. It was the worst blow he had received, for suddenly the faith of the German people in his infallibility was shaken.

Then the fates seemed really to have mobilized against Hitler. Before he had time to recover from June 30, the Austrian Nazis broke out with their murderous revolt and by killing one of Europe's most popular figures, made Dollfuss a martyr and brought down upon Hitler such phrases as the London Observer's:

"Naziism is increasingly recognized as a disease abhorrent to all countries alike. The isolation of Germany is in the nature of a quarantine. The mere fact that after months of preparation and by means of overwhelming power, these tainted men could gain no sure foothold in Austria, illustrates the the truth that by their very presence they excite unconquerable repugnance. The day cannot be far off when Herr Hitler and his confederates will have shot their last bullet."

This invective can be duplicated today in every country of Europe, literally without exception, and significantly in the government press organs of Italy, of all countries in the lead.

Wouldn't Accept Throne!

MRS. JAMES LONGSTREET CLEVELAND, WOULDN'T BE QUEEN

The Clevelands, Providence (Mo.) folk on whose behalf Austria royalists move in opposition to Archduke Otto's claim to the fallen Austrian throne. Mr. Cleveland, St. Louis orphanage boy once defeated for the United States Senate, is hailed as a son of Crown Prince Rudolph of Austria, hence a direct heir to the crown. In Austria he'd be Rudolph Alexander Nicholas Marie Hapsburg, royal-blooded. These are International News Photograph Service pictures.

OFFER SPURNED BY 'PRETENDER'

International News Service.

PROVIDENCE, Mo., Aug. 1.—James Longstreet Cleveland, 45-year-old Missouri farmer, will not claim the Austrian throne, he said today, when told that Countess Maria Larisch, niece of Empress Elizabeth, is urging his claim.

Cleveland is said to be a son of Crown Prince Rudolph, of Austria, and therefore direct heir to the crown.

He told his story to International News Service today when reached by long-distance telephone. He declared:

"No, I never made the claim, but Countess Larisch, niece of the late Empress Elizabeth, has been urging me to do so for years.

"We have been exchanging letters for years, and when she was in Florida six or seven years ago, she urged me most earnestly to press my claim. But I never told her I would.

"I don't remember either of my parents. I was reared in Catholic orphanages in St. Louis. At 14, I was given some intimation that my parents were of the royalty, but I resolved never to reveal it. Now, however, that the newspapers have the story, I see no harm in discussing it.

"I afterwards moved to the state of Washington, where I ran for the office of United States Senator, being defeated by Senator Dill. Then my health broke and nine years ago, I came back to Missouri hoping to get back my health on the farm. I am married now and have a young son."

MacDonald Denies He'll Hurry Home

PICTOU, N. S., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald, holidaying in Nova Scotia with his daughter Ishbel, said today he had no intention of hurrying home on account of the Austrian situation. He said:

"The first I knew of the idea was when I read it in the newspapers."

AUSTRIA BALKS AT VON PAPEN MISSION

between them, the spokesman said, adding:

"Schuschnigg and von Papen are well acquainted, but old relations ceased with von Papen and other members of the German government in the last few months."

Asked whether the government would agree to the appointment of von Papen as minister from Germany, he said:

"We are ready to agree to von Papen or any other acceptable envoy if he will be merely the diplomatic representative of his country. But we are not ready to agree to anybody who comes as the special representative of Hitler or the Nazi party of Germany.

HITLER REBUFFED

"If it were intended to send von Papen as a successor to Rieth (Kurt Rieth, German minister to Vienna whom Hitler recalled for involving Germany in the chancellery raid) it would not have been announced that he would be responsible to Hitler only.

"If he were officially appointed as minister then agreement would be given to him at once."

It was officially announced this evening that Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg and Vice Chancellor Prince von Starhemberg will go to Rome shortly on an important mission. They are to confer with Premier Mussolini and other Italian ministers on the Austro-German crisis, particularly with reference to the reaction it has produced in other countries.

Tension between Austria and Germany was seriously aggravated when Austrian Propaganda Minister Walter Adam, in a radio broadcast, openly charged a German "agency" engineered the attempted Vienna putsch.

INSPIRED BY DUCE?

Vienna believed Adam's attack on Germany was prompted by Premier Mussolini and might thus provide the basis for concerted foreign action against the Reich. Officials declared it was obvious that Austria was receiving strong international support in her fight for continued independence.

At the same time, Vienna newspapers stated a western powers' ultimatum to Germany was being prepared and that it would be presented to Berlin shortly.

Adam asserted that police, on the night Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss was assassinated, arrested a Bavarian courier named Hehal at the border station of Kollerschlag, Upper Austria.

The propaganda minister charged Hehal was en route to Vienna from Munich, and that police seized and confiscated incriminating coded documents found on the courier's person.

Adam's speech followed within a few hours the action of the Swiss government in dispatching a note to Berlin protesting against alleged smuggling of arms and explosives over Swiss territory into Austria.

OTTO PLANNING COUP TO WIN THRONE

International News Service.

STRASBOURG, France, Aug. 1.—The young Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, is preparing to leave his place of exile near Brussels for Switzerland on the first lap of a dash which he hopes will end in the restoration of the Hapsburg throne to Austria.

This information was received here today by International News Service from the castle of Ham, near Steenockerzeel, where Otto, his mother, the former Empress Zita, and a small entourage have been making their home since they chose Belgium as a place of exile.

Otto has frequently said that he only awaits a call from Austria to return, and he believes with avowed monarchists in power at Vienna once more the time is about ripe.

He plans to jump into a powerful automobile and speed to a secret meeting place "somewhere in Switzerland" where both Austrian and Hungarian legitimists, the latter eager to have Otto also declared ruler of Hungary, will be gathered.

The archduke decided upon a sudden return only after following a conference yesterday with Count Hujos, of Hungary, who arrived at the castle yesterday from Budapest.

It is believed here that Otto is almost certain to attempt a coup.

preventing correspondents from getting even a glimpse of the residence.

WORST FEARED

Official bulletins on the condition of the 86-year-old President were suspended last night with the explanation his condition had improved slightly. But the public has been warned to "expect the worst."

Nervousness appeared to be growing among the deeply concerned people of the nation. Many asked:

"Why are we being kept in the dark about Father Hindenburg?"

Newspapers merely printed the brief medical bulletins which do not satisfy the millions who venerate the aged President and former war marshal.

Announcements by his physicians that von Hindenburg, despite his 86 years, had held his own throughout the day, were regarded by the German public as demonstrating anew the remarkable vitality of the former field marshal.

Persistent rumors that von Hindenburg already was dead—with the announcement withheld until the Nazis deem the time more opportune—were promptly denied by responsible government officials in Berlin.

He is being attended by four famous physicians. But von Hindenburg yesterday called in Dr. Riets, a country doctor.

Hitler Ready to Rule As German Dictator

(Copyright, 1934, by Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—Adolf Hitler intends to be both President and Chancellor of Germany, one of his close friends told the Associated Press today.

This would give Hitler a dictatorship as absolute as any in the world.

Hitler was busy while Germany prayed for von Hindenburg. His beloved "sturdy oak." He ordered the cabinet back from vacations for a session tonight.

The German press was commanded not to speculate on von Hindenburg's successor.

The end of the 86-year-old leader seems near, and despair gripped many conservatives who had looked upon Hindenburg as an anchor against extreme Nazism.

HITLER TO RULE

If von Hindenburg dies, the Associated Press informant said, Hitler would call the cabinet together and read a brief law concentrating all power to himself as President and Chancellor. He said:

"The whole thing will take but a few minutes, for the cabinet will, of course, indorse the proposal. It will simplify Der Fuehrer's (Hitler's) whole work immensely if he need not first ask somebody whether he may do this or that."

An indication of the reliability of this source is that Sunday he revealed von Hindenburg's turn for the worse and was the first man to tip off the fact that Hitler was going to Venice to meet Mussolini.

Under the constitution, Dr. Erwin Bumke, president of the Supreme Court, would become acting President until an election was held to choose a successor.

STAGE ALREADY SET

"All that has been taken care of."

Such was the terse statement of the propaganda bureau on the matter of succession. To many observers this indicated the stage has been set for Hitler.

A Foreign Office official pointed out "the Hitler government holds emergency powers enabling it to do almost anything."

If such are the plans of Hitler, the time is speedily approaching when Germany's enigma, the Reichswehr, or regular army, will have to uncover itself. It has long been devoted to von Hindenburg, Germany's World War hero.

Men who know the spirit of the Reichswehr say it is possible Hitler would not have such smooth sailing if he seated himself in the Hindenburg chair.

Ever since 1919, it was pointed out, the Reichswehr has adamantly refused to become the football of politics. The army was the chief instrument of the President, while police were the agency of political cabinets.

To place the Reichswehr under Hitler, the head of a political government and a political party, friends of the army say, would mean an about-face on a policy carefully nurtured as a heritage of the army for 15 years.

Hitler's powers would become unlimited. They would include that of removing men like Gen. Werner von Fritsch, chief of staff of the army, who is said not to be in accord with Nazi policies.

UNION QUIZZES TROLLEY CHIEF ON FINANCES

Counsel for the trolley men's union today sought to prove from the lips of officers of the Pittsburgh Railways Company that millions in the expenditures for "intangible services" had been in the corporation's financial structure.

Hammering away at C. S. Mitchell, railways company controller and vice president of the Philadelphia Company, O. David Zimring, counsel for the union, brought out these facts:

That from 1902 to 1918 no "depreciations" were charged, although in recent years nearly $1,000,000 a year had been charged.

That nearly $22,000,000 had been paid for expenditures that were not "tangible services," some of which were paid to other companies in a vast utility empire.

That this empire was so huge even Mitchell, who has been one of the chief accounting officers for 32 years, had "lost track" of the companies pyramided on top of each other, and their relationship to each other.

LOANS REVEALED

These facts were brought out shortly after Zimring began his cross-examination, as he sought to throw a spotlight on the financial secrets of the railways company, from whom the motormen are seeking higher wages.

At the hearings, which are being held before a special arbitration board in the City-County Building, Mitchell had testified under direct examination that the bondholders of the company and the Philadelphia Company were both "in position" to foreclose on the railways company.

He explained that the Philadelphia Company "kept things going for the security holders" by "lending" the Pittsburgh railways money to pay interest on its bonds during 1930, 1931 and 1932.

Last year and so far this year the Philadelphia Company had declined to "lend" further funds and will decline to do so in the future, he said. Interest was paid to the bondholders, and the Philadelphia Company received no return on its holdings in the company, Mitchell declares.

ASKED ABOUT DEBT

After Mitchell had testified that the company had a total liability and capital structure of $99,000,000, Dr. J. W. Madden, impartial chairman of the arbitration board, asked:

"How did the company get into such a load of liability?"

Mitchell replied it was "too ancient" for him to know.

Madden asked:

"Was there any accumulated deficit?"

Mitchell replied:

"Not that I know of."

U. S. MEN TRAP DESPERADO

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Jim Clark, southwestern desperado, today was heading back to the Kansas State Penitentiary at Lansing from which he twice escaped in daring breaks in the last 14 months.

The 30-year-old bank robber was captured here early today as he started to drive away from an apartment house where he and five companions had been staying.

Confronted by a machine gun in the hands of a Department of Justice agent, the fugitive surrendered.

In the car with him were two women. In the apartment officers found a man they identified as Charles White, Leona Brady, widow of Web (Big Boy) Brady, a fellow prisoner who escaped with Clark from the Kansas prison only to be shot down by a posse a few days later, and her sister, Peggy De Fer.

Clark figured in two sensational breaks from the Kansas prison. He fled with 10 other convicts on Memorial Day, 1933, taking along the then Warden Kirk Prather as a hostage, releasing him later in Oklahoma.

Five months later he and Brady were captured near Tucumcari, N. M., and returned to the prison.

On the morning of January 19 this year Clark and Brady led five other prisoners over the prison wall after overpowering a cellhouse guard. Brady was killed near Paola, Kan.

Pope Leaves Vatican For Summer Vacation

Pontiff Makes Trip to Castel Gandolfo in American Auto

VATICAN CITY, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Pope Pius XI left the walls of the Vatican at 5:37 p. m. today for his summer residence at Castel Gandolfo.

He and his suite made the trip in a motorcade of four American automobiles. The Pope rode in the second car with Monsignor Caccia Dominioni. The blinds of the automobile were drawn.

The first car bore the Pope's engineer and nephew, Count Franco Ratti, the governor of Vatican City, and the commander of the papal gendarmes. The other cars carried other high officials of the Holy See.

The Papal Court will be transferred to the summer palace. At Castel Gandolfo, 1,400 feet ugh in the Alban Hills, the Pope will have access to the church's most extensive possession. The summer estate covers 136 acres, 25 acres more than the Church State itself.

Its confines embrace farm lands, beautiful gardens, ancient ruins and palatial residences. Wireless telephone communication with the Vatican is maintained, and a paved highway connects the estate with Rome.

Urban VIII built the main papal residence on the estate in 1629, and in 1929 the adjoining Barbarini Villa became a part of the church property.

It was the custom of most of the pontiffs after Urban to repair to the villa in the summer months. But after the break between the church and the state in 1870 the church rulers remained at the Vatican. Pius XI will be the first to occupy Castel Gandolfo since Pius IX was there for a vacation in 1869.

Under the rule of the present Pontiff the summer estate has been modernized.

POPE PIUS

A herd of 27 brown Swiss cows is housed in an electrically ventilated barn. The cows are milked by machinery that sends the milk through a stellized piping system to a refrigerating plant.

Orchards and gardens occupy a large portion of the estate, and there is a flock of 2,500 chickens. Parks and flower beds are terraced down a hillside, at the base of which may be seen the city of Rome and the distant Mediterranean.

CARAWAY SON'S FALL FATAL

DYERSBURG, Tenn., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Bobbie Caraway, 18-year-old son of Senator Hattie W. Caraway, of Arkansas, died here last night of injuries suffered when he fell from a horse near Newbern, Tenn., Monday.

Senator Caraway was at her son's bedside when death came. She had hurried here from her home at Jonesboro, Ark.

The youth, a cadet at the United States Military Academy at West Point, did not regain consciousness. His skull was fractured.

He was a son of the late Senator Thaddeus H. Caraway, of Arkansas. Besides his mother, he is survived by two brothers, Lieut. Paul Caraway and Lieut. Forrest Caraway, both of the United States Army.

THREAT TARGET DIES OF FRIGHT

SEATTLE, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—A warning of death came Sunday to Gus Eckland, 63, in his little shop where he made curtain rods.

A note, pinned to the door, read:

"Beware! By midnight tomorrow night, you will be dead unless you get away. If you do run away, I'll burn your factory and house down!"

Trembling, Gus Eckland carried the note to police.

They told him not to worry, that probably a "crank" had left him the note. They would watch to see that no one harmed him.

So Gus Eckland went back to his home.

Yesterday a customer found him sitting in a chair in his shop—dead.

A heart attack had killed him.

Miss Biller, Stanley said, arrived in New York yesterday en route to Hollywood after visiting her parents in Budapest and appearing in a stage play and a picture there.

Judge Accused Of Intoxication Locks Jury

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Superior Judge Harry F. Sewell, accused of appearing on the bench in an intoxicated condition in an affidavit filed in court by Presiding Judge Frank C. Collier, has ordered locked quarters for the jury hearing the sanity trial of Louis Rude Payne, 21-year-old slayer.

Prisoner Payne

Judge Sewell explained:

"Because the case of Sewell versus Collier is being tried in the newspapers, the jurors might read headlines and it might affect this case."

Young Payne was convicted last week of slaying his mother, Mrs. Lucius Payne, 45, and his younger brother, Robert, 15, with an ax. The jury now is hearing evidence to decide whether the youth was sane.

HELD IN JUGGLE OF MILLIONS

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Max Goodman's "wizardry at figures" saved him from prosecution once, but when he went to another company and kept on practicing mathematical sleight-of-hand, it was charged, the stock exchange committee forced his arrest.

The erstwhile bookkeeper was charged with juggling $5,000,000 in the accounts of Wagner, Stott & Co., a brokerage firm. He cost the firm $120,000, Leonard Wagner and R. L. Stott testified. He was booked on a charge of forgery.

Wagner and Stott said Goodman was such a wizard at figures that he could do three men's work in accounting. Only after their London correspondent had questioned bookkeeper's statements, they said, they found he had been too clever for their good.

They discharged him, but when he went to another company and continued his ways, they explained, the stock exchange committee forced them to prefer charges.

Man Found Beaten In Fifth Avenue

Police were searching today for several men who attacked E. W. Peck, 50, of 401 Forty-second street, in Fifth avenue near Marion street, last night, police reported.

Peck was found unconscious and taken to Mercy Hospital.

KANE, ARTIST, NEAR DEATH

national prominence when he went artistic is still at his side.

With a sigh, she explains:

"John is dying. He was in the hospital for 12 days, but they brought him home three weeks ago. Now they want to take him to Mayview, but I know if they send him there he won't live a day."

'SKIN AND BONES'

He is suffering from some wasting disease which has left him "skin and bones." A year or so ago, he weighed 176 pounds. Today, he weighs probably less than 90.

He will be 74 on August 19.

Several years ago, the aged house-painter startled the conservative art world when his crudely pictured scenes in oils were hung in the International Art Exhibit held annually at Carnegie Institute. It was a new, primitive style—a modernistic version—said the critics.

Each year since he has been honored by the International and only three years ago he achieved another distinction when one of his paintings was purchased by Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr. While his paintings have not brought him unusual financial gain, he has reaped honors which any American artist might be proud to have obtained.

FEW PENNIES REMAIN

Two years ago, he was on the verge of giving up the finer arts to go back to house painting, but the depression stood in his way and he stuck to his canvases.

Mrs. Kane, patiently eking out an existence with a few remaining pennies, persists in getting the things for him the doctors say he must have—milk and orange juice. He coughs a great deal. He is growing gradually weaker day by day and cannot even lift his head to receive the scant bits of food he is allowed to have. What his ailment is, Mrs. Kane doesn't even know. She says:

"The doctor won't tell me."

The couple has two married daughters. One lives in North Carolina and the other in Virginia. Mrs. Kane said she could look for no substantial help from either, explaining:

"They have troubles of their own."

In art, as it was judged in the International Exhibits, they are rich, but in worldly goods, they are destitute. They cannot eat canvas, and Mrs. Kane says a purchaser for one of her husband's paintings would be more than welcome now.

Penna. Towns Get 3 Million Rum Fees

HARRISBURG, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's liquor license system will have provided municipalities of the state an income of almost $3,000,000 by the close of August.

Return of license fees to the communities where the licenses were issued will be boosted to $719,112 by a $598,400 disbursement this month, the State Liquor Control Board has announced.

GIRL GRADUATE HOME FROM 'ADVENTURE'

Ever since Mary Weiseman walked from Bellevue to downtown Pittsburgh when she was 8 years old, a feeling of adventure and a desire to go away have troubled her.

A climax was reached three weeks ago, when she decided to take her graduation gift money and go on a trip by herself. A week ago she had an altogether new sensation—her money had run out, and almost before she realized it, she owed $40.30 to the Lexington Hotel in New York, and she was on her way to a police court.

Before trouble overtook her, however, she had visited Boston, Atlantic City and Scranton. Her mother didn't know where she was, and she was afraid to let her know. So she decided to enjoy herself while she could.

LIVES LIKE QUEEN

She registered at the Lexington Hotel, and for four days lived like a queen. Mornings she had her breakfast sent to her room. Permanent waves, manicures and massages filled out more pleasant hours. All these luxuries were signed for, and even 50-cent tips were added to the bottom of the bills.

In the afternoons, Mary spent her time sightseeing. Radio City impressed her the most, and St. Patrick's Cathedral was a close second. She even looked for a job when she realized that she would have quite a large bill to pay in a few days. But try as she might, she couldn't find a job to her liking.

Mary spent her evenings dancing to the rhythmic orchestras in the big hotels. One night she spent dancing in the Waldorf Astoria to the music of Guy Lombardo. Another was spent in the Lexington. Mary didn't say who her dancing partner was.

But Sunday she was panic-stricken. The manager came to the door wtih the bill in his hand. She finally admitted that she had no money. So the manager called the police, and she was taken to a police court.

She was questioned by detectives, and bothered by reporters and photographers. Finally she was brought before a magistrate, and was about to be sentenced when the hotel manager, Louis Meyers, came to her rescue and said that he would forget the bill if she promised to go home. The Travelers' Aid Society arranged for her transportation home.

She was met at the station by her mother, and taken to her home, 97 Rustic avenue, Mt. Oliver, where she is wondering what her fiance will think about the escapade. At any rate, she says, he is not annoyed by a feeling to go away, and probably will not be for some time to come.

Back at Home, Her Adventure Over

MISS MARY WEISEMAN, 18, AND GYPSY . . . SHE HAD A GOOD TIME FOR A FEW DAYS

DIVORCEE BALKS CHILD'S TRIP

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Little Des Cygnes L'Amour Gilcrease, daughter of a former "Miss America" and an oil millionaire, can't go to France, but she remains in the custody of her father.

That was the ruling today of Oklahoma's Supreme Court, pending final disposition of the divorce case of the former Norma Smallwood, 1926 Atlantic City beauty contest winner and Thomas Gilcrease, of Tulsa, oil operator. Mrs. Gilcrease said:

"He just wants to take her to France so he'll be outside the jurisdiction of Oklahoma courts."

She obtained a writ that stopped Gilcrease and the child on the eve of their departure for Paris.

The Gilcreases were divorced last May, following a trial in which the former "Miss America" was accused of, and in turn denied, indiscretions while Gilcrease was in Europe.

Hanna Retirement Seen As Pinchot Reprisal

By MARK SHIELDS

The resignation of John L. Hanna, of Franklin, as Secretary of Property and Supplies in the Pinchot cabinet is interpreted as one of the first concrete evidences of the Governor's anger over his defeat for the Senate and his determination to spread some reprisals in quarters he believes did not rally as they should.

Mr. Shields

The Hanna resignation takes effect August 15, but the retiring secretary is at his home in Franklin, and does not expeect to return to Harrisburg. Meanwhile Walter G. Scott, 5657 Callowhill street, Pittsburgh, the deputy secretary, is in charge of the department, and may serve until the conclusion of the Pinchot administration.

While both the Governor's office and Mr. Hanna explain that the resignation was not requested, it is known that the Governor has been considerably angered over what happened to him in Venango County in the recent primary. He received 3,329 votes, while Senator David A. Reed had 6,123. In 1930 when he made a far different showing, James Borland, a Republican leader friendly to Hanna, was for the Governor, and it has been understood that this service was in a measure responsible for Hanna's original entry into the Pinchot cabinet as Secretary of Welfare.

Borland for Reed in Recent May Primary

This year, however, Borland was for Senator Reed, though there are reasons to believe that the Governor was not apprised for his defection until after the primary. Reports are that this was one incident which was kept from Mr. Pinchot by some of his campaign strategisis in the East, and that discovery of what happened riled him, not only toward the Venango County contingent, but toward those who had not revealed the situation.

It is known that the Governor was asked by one of his Western Pennsylvania friends after the primary when reprisals would start against so-called "Pinchot sponsors" who had not been for him as a candidate this year. Later the Governor is understood to have told friends that a day of reckoning would come, a series of interchanges which leads politicians to a natural assumption that Mr. Hanna has not been in the good graces of the administration since May.

Indeed, it is reported that the Venango County episode led to some coolness between the Governor and his former secretary, Public Service Commissioner P. S. Stahlnecker, who is reported to have known how affairs stood in Venango County. This is another link in a peculiar chain of circumstances.

In the last special session when the Governor and Mrs. Pinchot were exerting every effort to have Stahlnecker confirmed by the Senate as a Public Service Commissioner, Hanna's job held by a slender thread. Senator LeRoy Chapman, of Venango County, was one who refused to vote for confirmation, despite extreme pressure, and he denounced the administration, claiming his brother had been fired from the Highway Department because the Senator had voted "wrong."

At that time Hanna was told that he should bring Chapman into line or find his own job in jeopardy. However, that storm was weathered.

Malone First to Quit Because of Politics

Hanna became Secretary of Property and Supplies in the Pinchot cabinet because of another political flareup in 1931, affecting James F. Malone, former president of Pittsburgh City Council. In return for his aid to Pinchot in 1930 Malone was made secretary of the department. In the Allegheny County primary in 1931, Gov. Pinchot demanded that Malone support Commissioner Charles C. McGovern for nomination and election to the County Board.

This Malone refused to do, and as a consequence he resigned.

Thereupon Hanna was shifted from the Department of Welfare to Property and Supplies, and Mrs. Alice Liveright, of Philadelphia, succeeded Hanna.

Hanna today said he would say nothing except that he had resigned.

The Governor is vacationing at Block Island, but his office denied that politics had anything to do with the situation.

These are the statements, but you can hardly drink your morning orange juice in Harrisburg without politics having something to do with it.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Biliousness Is Warning of Trouble

"Biliousness" is a commonly accepted term applied to a disturbance of the intestinal tract. Speaking in general terms, this is a fairly accurate location of the seat of trouble. Yet the underlying cause of the symptoms can often be traced to nervous strain, undue excitement, fear, anxiety or apprehension. Sometimes it goes back to some eye disorder or strain; here the wearing of proper glasses may lead to prompt recovery.

Dr. Copeland

In reality the word "bilious," as we use it, refers to a digestive disturbance caused by an interference in the normal functioning of the liver and gall bladder. It is really a set of symptoms and not a disease. But it is an annoying and uncomfortable affliction.

The sufferer complains of severe headaches, dizziness, nausea, vomiting. Spells of indigestion and loss of appetite are other uncomfortable signs of the trouble.

During an acute attack the patient should be kept as quiet as possible. Food should not be given until the intestinal tract is thoroughly cleared. For this purpose a soap and water enema should be given. No laxatives or other drugs should be given unless prescribed by the physician.

To relieve the tension and nervous fatigue apply warmth to the extremities. A warm bath is often of great benefit. If necessary a sedative may be given. Warm drinks are always beneficial and help relieve the gastric irritation.

After the acute attack has subsided every effort should be made to determine the underlying cause. Often faulty bowel elimination is a factor. This permits absorption of poisons from the intestines. These toxins or poisons are sufficient to cause a marked irritation of the nervous system. For this reason every necessary measure should be taken for the relief of intestinal sluggishness.

Regular eating hours and proper chewing of food are important. The diet should be simple and nutritious. Include in the daily menu an abundant supply of fresh fruits and vegetables. Drink six to eight glasses of water every day, preferably between meals.

Plenty of sleep, relaxation and a moderate amount of exercise are of great benefit. Get outdoors as much as possible and obtain your full share of fresh air and sunlight. If possible, avoid undue mental excitement.

Persons who are susceptible to bilious attacks should consult with the family physician. A thorough physical examination may reveal some abnormality. If corrected, this will prevent further attacks.

Answers to Health Queries

L. Y. B. Q.—What would you advise me to do for cracking knee joints when I bend my legs? If I stand a while my right leg gets stiff.

A.—This is probably due to rheumatism, which is caused by some underlying infection. For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

STATE RECOVERY ACT PLANNED

Gov. Pinchot has promised a state recovery act which will help eliminate the "chiseler" and "exploiter" of the wage earner, to be included in his call for a special session of Legislature, if one is convened, it was announced today.

Edward N. Jones, Federal National Recovery Administration made the announcement. He said: campliance director for this state.

"Several weeks ago, when it began to appear that a special session would be called, I wrote Gov. Pinchot asking for an opportunity to present in person the many reasons for a state recovery act to supplement the National Industrial Recovery Act.

"At the interview which followed, the Governor gave me his word that if he called a special session he would include such a measure in the call."

HANNA RESIGNS, SHAKEUP SEEN

HARRISBURG, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—John L. Hanna, State Secretary of Property and Supplies and long a friend of Gifford Pinchot, has quit the Governor's cabinet, leaving the Capitol in a flurry of speculation over reports other changes in the administration are pending.

After several days of gossip there would be a shakeup in Hanna's department, the erstwhile Venango County Pinchot lieutenant suddenly closed his desk yesterday and, with Mrs. Hanna, returned to their home in Franklin.

Upon arrival there, Hanna declined to comment on reports he had quit or had been fired. Any statement would have to come from the Governor, he said. Pinchot, fishing at Block Island, said he had not received Hanna's resignation and knew nothing of it.

But later, Hanna gave a statement to the Oil City Derrick, saying he had resigned, effective August 15.

Appoints Trustees For McCloy Firm

W. K. Morris and Andrew H. Blass were appointed temporary trustees of the McCloy Company, 642 Liberty avenue, by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker. The action was on a petition by the company seeking permission to reorganize. A hearing will be held August 28, at which stockholders and creditors will be invited to attend.

Federal Men Raid Still; Arrest Two

John Lennon and David Lennon, arrested by agents of the Federal Alcoholic Tax Unit in a raid of an alleged moonshine distillery in Eddington street, will be arraigned tomorrow before the United States Commissioner. Agents reported seizing a 100-gallon still, 32 gallons of whisky and other alleged contraband.

PIRACY ON LAKE FALSE ALARM

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—A report of daring piracy on Lake Michigan sent six Coast Guard ships armed with 3-inch guns, rifles and machine guns to the rescue of the S. S. Grand Rapids as it was proceeding from Chicago to Milwaukee with 800 passengers.

But it all was a false alarm, spread by an amateur wireless operator. Not a swashbuckling freebooter was found.

The passengers on a gay holiday were amazed yesterday when, about 22 miles north and east of Kenosha, their ship was hailed by the heavily armed Coast Guardsmen. Their amazement continued as the guardsmen boarded the ship and searched it.

According to the radio man, who claimed to have picked up a message from the Grand Rapids, the ship had been seized by the pirates and the passengers terrorized and robbed. It was news to the passengers.

Holiness Group Opening Meeting

The tenth annual campmeeting of the Tri-State Holiness Association opens tomorrow at Clinton, Pa., with prayers at 6 a. m. The interdenominational gathering, which continues to August 12, will be addressed by several well-known evangelist-speakers.

Among the leaders of the organization attending will be the Rev. I. N. Toole, of Ohio; the Rev. Lum Jones, Oklahoma; the Rev. George Cole, Pennsylvania, and the Rev. Russell Metcalfe, Michigan.

Hurt By Truck, Man in Hospital

Peter Lovia, 40, of 247 Republic street, Mt. Washington, today was in Mercy Hospital as the result of an auto accident. Lovia walked into the rear of the machine at Fourth avenue and Wood street yesterday, according to police. J. Elwood Macintyre, 27, of 328 Bailey avenue, was held on $50 bond as the driver.

'SESSION ONLY IF FORCED BY U.S.'—PINCHOT

HARRISBURG, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot said today he would not call a special session of the Legislature to provide funds for the state's unemployed unless for the state's unemployed unless "insists." The Governor asserted:

"As I have said times without number, nobody wants an extra session of the Legislature—least of all myself.

"But however little you and I want an extra session, if all our efforts to prevent it should fail, there may have to be one after all.

"The Federal Relief Administration has given notice that federal contributions to Pennsylvania relief after August will depend on what action Pennsylvania takes to raise relief money herself.

"It demands a definite official commitment from the commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Only the Legislature can make such a commitment. Hence, although not in so many words, the Federal Relief Administrations asks that a special session be called."

Washington has given Pennsylvania sufficient relief funds for August, but has said no more money will be forthcoming unless the state bears a "reasonable" share of the burden.

The state has no money to spend for relief, officials point out. The 1933 special session of the Legislature appropriated $20,000,000 for relief from liquor store profits—but there have been no profits.

Gov. Pinchot has served notice that if he does convene the General Assembly in extraordinary session, his call will be "wide open"—making it possible to consider a wide variety of legislation.

PROBERS VOTE TO INSPECT CITY ZOO

The zoological commission named by Mayor McNair will visit Highland Park Zoo on an inspection tour Friday to study what are termed disgraceful conditions by William F. Wentzel, executive secretary of the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society.

The decision to visit the zoo was made today at the first meeting of the commission with Mayor McNair in City Hall. Works Director Leslie M. Johnston said today that the purpose of the commission is to form a long range plan for improvement of the zoo and submit definite proposals to Council when it reconvenes this month.

The personnel of the committee includes E. J. House, Dr. Arthur W. Henn, Bayard H. Christy, Dr. S. H. Williams, John M. Phillips, Dr. Thomas Arbuthnot, Dr. John Hollinger and Davis C. Burroughs.

Charging that conditions at the Highland Park Zoo are a disgrace to the city, Wentzel, yesterday said it should be closed or renovated at once.

Wentzel declared:

"The zoo is a crime. It is a cross between a hospital and a morgue."

Hollywood Fears Drive, Says Star

PAULINE LORD

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Hollywood is badly frightened by the campaign against sex and crime films, Pauline Lord, stage and screen star, declared today on her arrival from the movie capital. She said:

"I think the protests they are getting probably are well deserved, but the pendulum may swing too far the other way."

BOY OPERATED ON DESPITE FATHER

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—John Hoffman is "coming along fine" today after an operation on his crippled leg, and surgeons smiled at his father's threat that "somebody will have to answer for it on judgment day."

Three and a half inches of decayed bone were removed from the lad's leg by a court order—an order protested to the last by the father, member of a faith-healing cult. The father said as he waited while the operation was performed.

"It isn't right to take matters like this out of God's hands."

Judge Theodore Rosen didn't think God would object, so he directed the hospital to proceed with the operation.

For two years the father had waited on faith to heal the boy's leg, broken at the knee, but left untouched. The break was never set, and the leg bent in V-shape. The boy was forced to propel himself about on crutches, and was in constant pain. Surgeons said the bone was decaying, and if untreated would gradually disable the lad entirely.

Eagle Membership Tests Start Today; Hundreds of J. B. Send for Exam Sheets!

By J. JAMES MOORE
Pittsburgh Wing Commander

Greetings, Junior Birdmen! Here's a chance for you fledgling members to become eagles. Today the Junior Birdmen of America inaugurates its first step in membership ranks!

All boys and girls, who have maintained affiliation with the organization for three months or more may hereafter take the official Junior Birdman test for Eagle rank and secure, on passing the test, an Eagle Bar to attach to his or her Wing-Pin as illustrated in today's column.

Every member who joined the Junior Birdmen movement on or before May 1 is now entitled to take the test, and every boy and girl, upon reaching membership of three months hereafter will be privileged to send for the official test sheet.

Hundreds Already Awaiting Tests

Hundreds of members have already applied for their test sheets and they will be mailed in a few days.

This first eagle rank, which leads up to an Ace membership, is really a very simple test, embodying questions on aviation history, pilots and planes, technical theory and model aircraft which every boy and every girl should know. If you don't know the answers. There are plenty of reference materials at the libraries that will help you out.

BIRDMAN'S WING PIN
The Jun or Birdman wing pin with the eagle bar attachment.

The purpose of this test is not only to find out how much you know but to encourage you to seek information on aviation topics with which you should be familiar.

Perhaps with the inauguration of this new membership feature it would be well to publish the questions in today's column for you. But don't answer them from the column.

You must send for your test sheet and enscribe the answers on the very sheet and return it, signed, to local Birdmen headquarters. And remember too, that you can't send for your test sheet until you are a Junior Birdman for three months—or more.

Here are the questions. Let's see how many you can answer even before you get your official questionnaire:

HISTORICAL QUESTIONS.

1—What brothers were reputed to be the first men to fly in a powered plane? Where was the flight made? (2½ points each question.)

2—Who was the first flier to cross the English Channel? Did he use a balloon or an airplane? (2½ points each question.)

3—Name the first airplane to cross the Atlantic Ocean? Was the flight made from America to Europe or Europe to America? (2½ points each question.)

4—What was the date of Lindbergh's famous non-stop flight from New York to Paris? How many hours did it take? (2½ points each question.)

5—When was the first around the world flight made? What was the name with which the plane was christened? (2½ points each question.)

QUESTIONS ABOUT PILOTS AND PLANES

1—Who is America's premier World War Ace? What type of plane did he use mostly during the war? (2½ points each question.)

2—What was the largest plane ever built? Is it a land plane, sea plane or air amphibian? (2½ points each question.)

3—Who is the outstanding woman pilot of the United States? Name her recent particular flight? (2½ points each question.)

4—Here are the first and last initials of five famous fliers. Give their full names: F. ... O. ... R. ... W. ... What points do these pilots make: two third of the Chief, Wilmer Mac Stinsonite, fourth of St. Louis, Columbia. (2½ points for each part of each question.)

5—Name five makes of airplane motor transport, military or private. Name one make of airplane engine. (2½ points for each part of five questions. 2½ points for second question.)

QUESTIONS ABOUT FLYING

1—Should a plane take off with the wind or into the wind? What is the term or word used when a plane hovers along the ground ready for take-off? (2½ points for each question.)

2—Name two methods of launching a man-carrying glider. What is the most suitable flying ground for a glider? (2½ points for each question.)

3—What is a lighter-than-air craft? What is a heavier-than-air craft? (2½ points for each question.)

4—Name any five instruments to be found on a pilot's instrument panel. What are the following used for: Joy stick, Throttle, Aileron, Rudder, Elevator? (2½ points for each part of each question.)

5—What is the required number of solo flying hours to obtain a student pilot license in the United States? What is the required number of flying hours to obtain a transport pilot license in the United States? (2½ points each question.)

MODEL PLANE QUESTIONS

1—What is most commonly used for motor power on a model plane? What wood is most commonly used in building model planes? (2½ points each question.)

2—What do the letters R. O. G. stand for? Does an R. O. G. model requires a landing gear? (2½ points each question.)

3—What two tools are the only necessary ones required for model building? Why don't we use nails in model building? (2½ points each question.)

4—Give the use for each of the following: Dope, cement, plane wire, bamboo, tissue paper. What is used to smooth and thin down balsa wood? (2½ point each part of first question. 2½ points second question.)

5—What is a twin-pusher model? What is a scale model? (2½ points each question.)

There you are, members. Those are the 20 official questions which you will find on your special eagle membership test question sheet when you get it.

Mark of 70 Is Needed

At the end of each question I gave you the number of points that would be allotted the correct answer. A member must receive 70 or more in order to obtain his or her eagle membership bar.

Remember, when requesting a question sheet, that you must be a member in standing for at least three months and be sure that you enclose a three-cent stamp to cover the cost of return mailing and postage.

Let's see who the first member to gain this eagle rank bar will be.

SERBS TO HOLD BENEFIT PICNIC

Thousands of Serbians of the Pittsburgh district will gather tomorrow in Kennywood Park for their seventh annual picnic.

Mr. Babic

The first Serbian day was observed for the purpose of raising funds for the benefit of Serbian war orphans. Tomorrow's proceeds will go to complete the Jugoslavian room at the Cathedral of Learning.

Steve Babic, general chairman, announced that speakers will trace the history of Serbia since the eyes of the world were focused on the nation at the outset of the World War. Among those assisting Mr. Babic will be R. R. Brence, vice chairman; Miss Mary Stamula, Miss Dianna Vujnovich, and Nick Czyanovich. A program of games and a beauty contest will feature the outing.

BANDITS LOOT CHICAGO HOTEL

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—Working swiftly and with machine-like precision, four bandits today held up the Congress Hotel and escaped with $1,200 in cash and $800 in checks.

Two of the bandits entered the hotel lobby and one, armed with a shotgun, held Paul Nepar, night cashier, and Nick Radeveeff, night auditor, at bay, while the other rifled the cash drawer.

Several bellboys in the lobby were covered by a third bandit, who remained in the doorway to cover the retreat, while the fourth thug remained at the wheel of a car in which all escaped.

Boy Returned for Father's Funeral

William Kinzek, 13, of 306 Spalding street, Aliquippa, was home in time for his father's funeral today. Detroit police found the boy yesterday and returned him home last night.

Mrs. Eva Kinzek, the boy's mother, appealed to the Missing Persons Bureau and county detectives to find her son after his father, Michael Kinzek, 46, a mill worker, died Sunday. William had been missing two weeks.

Gibsonia Youth, Hit by Stone, Dies

Howard Ferguson, 19, of Gibsonia, Pa., died last night of a skull fracture in the Presbyterian Hospital. Ferguson was injured earlier in the day when hit by a stone at a Wildwood stone quarry.

Man About Town

The day after John Dillinger was killed, the film "Manhattan Melodrama" grossed $1,000,000 . . . The Lester Lees (Anna Chandler) were final-decreed last week in New York . . . Tammany Hall is on the verge of splitting wide open, again—over the nomination for Comptroller . . . If the leaders do not agree within a fortnight, Dooling threatens to resign! . . . Mel Purvis, the Dillingeraser, spurned a personal cash reward of 2 Gs from an admirer . . . Rudy Vallee's newest problem is Shirley Burroughs . . . Who hit Sinclair Lewis at Kanyato Inn, upstate N. Y., 2 Friday nights ago?

Eddie Duchin's shadow is Billie Mastbaum, of Philly . . . Seabury wants the Governorship, but is waiting for Governor Lehman's declaration before announcing his candidacy . . . Lady Cavendish (Adele Astaire) is so popular in Ireland that the Sinn Feiners don't shoot at her titled groom.

A prominent New York socialite alleging he was sent to a hospital from Leon & Eddie's after a brawl, is planning vengeance . . . Amtorg, the Soviet Gov't-owned trading firm, is shopping for a local coast-to-coast radio hour listed in the fall . . . The Grand Duchess Marie, now a N. Y. dep't store employe, is Rome-bound to interview Mussolini . . . It's a girl over at the Wendell Chamberlins of N. Y. Life . . . The disgruntled Republicans in Washington are calling the President: "Franklinstein."

Tim Eaton, Lady Eaton's boy, she's the richest woman in Canada (and he's Canada's No. 1 bachelor) will altar it with Mrs. W. J. Waddie, Canada's richest widder . . . It will be the Dominion's Astor-French wedding, etc. . . . Evalyn Knapp's current is a Dr. Snyder, several years her senior . . . The rumor presists that Governor Merriam of California is to marry Superior Court Judge Georgia Bullock of L. A. They deny it, but so did Lupe and Weissmuller a year ago . . . Add budding romances: Will Rogers' son and the lovely dotter of Jack Blystone, the director . . . Paramount stock is down to 2½ . . . They say there hasn't been a gangster flicker since "Little Caesar" in Ontario . . . For diplomatic reasons and to please the Dutch royal tribe, Princess Juliana (future Queen of Holland) has renounced her betrothal to a commoner.

Oodles of orchids to Ray Noble's most tuneful and pashiest song: "The Very Thought of You" . . . Ditto to Disney's "Playful Pluto," which sends you rolling into the aisles . . . Scallions to the so-called men who heckled the nurses at the San Francisco County Hosp. by calling nurses "scabs!" . . . Orchids to "An Earful of Music" from Cantor's "Kid Millions" score . . . Scallions to those responsible for the Yellowstone (a national park) souvenirs which bear the labels: "Made in Japan" . . . Orchids to the "Pisco Punch" cocktail, which gives you that virile ugh! . . . And by all means a salute to the lads who write such enticing dialogue as this from "Thin Man"—Miss Loy to Mr. Powell: "Now, take care of yourself" . . . Powell: "I didn't think you cared" . . . Loy: "I don't. I'm just so used to you!"

Pat Moore, manager of the Duke of York's Theater, London, will marry his boss, Violette Melnotte, this month. He's 30—she's 83 . . . The Melbourne Bergermans of the Elihu Root firm will three it Sept. 12 . . . She was Dorothea Davis . . . Capt. Stedman of the Leviathan has "such a time" with Eileen Gillespie! . . . She wanted to tell him her troubles . . . Frank Buck, who wrestles lions and tigers, is deathly afraid of moths! . . . "Rothschild" will make a $1,500,000 net profit . . . The Frank Albertons expect it in Feb. . . . Warner's paid $5,000 for just a title—"Dames!" . . . Nobody ever said "thanks" for "Blessed Event," "Whoopee," "Is My Face Red?" and "Orchids and Onions."

They say Lanny Ross is a groom and the pop of a boby . . . Jack Hutchinson, who captained Yale's water polo team in '28, is now an extra in H'wood . . . Metro's "4 Walls" was in production three days before anyone discovered it had no leading woman! . . . "Clothes Maketh the Man" is practically the autobiog of John Monk Saunders, who wrote it . . . Reform and church elements are readying to launch their own news letter from H'wood to get an unbiased report on previews and movie activity . . . Bob Guerin of the Dep't of Justice and Mary Brice of Chicago waited until Dillinger's matter was settled, to be married last wk . . . Mario Silva, the operatic riot of St. Louis, is New York's own Murray Smith!

Helen Gwynne, the H'wood reporter, didn't even tell her own tribe of her secret marriage of a year and the divorce until last week . . . Sara Chisholm who announced her plans to marry Kip Farrington at East Hampton was offered $1,000 by her dad to elope. What! No costly society wedding? . . . Simile: Hard to handle as a half-eaten pear.

Pierre de Villiars is rushing Helen Gilliland, the actress, at the Westport dances . . . Tip to the censors, who make up lists of movies to see and not to see: The seal of purity was given to Warner's "20,000,000 Sweethearts"—but the same firm's "Rhythm in the Air" was listed only for adults . . . The latter was merely the temporary title of the other! . . . Louise Fazenda confides to close friends that she is preparing a flash . . . Gloria Gould flew to the Coast and Maxie Rosenbloom . . . Emma Hill, who wrote Warner's an open letter praising "Here Comes the Navy," happens to work for their music warehouse! . . . Things that make me cynic: Songs and stories about a gypsy's fiddles, romance, glamour.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Besides Judith Anderson the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse is considering engaging another guest star, whose identity is not divulged. She is wanted for "The Shining Hour," fifth of the series of subscriptions plays, to be staged the week of August 20. The next production in the list will be Clare Kummer's "Her Master's Voice," opening next Monday, August 6. Between these two works will be Alfred L. Golden's "The Female of the Species," with Miss Anderson as the visiting luminary.

They're saying that the Dougs., Sr. and Jr., are permanently lost to America, and that they may become subjects of Good King Gawge . . . It has been revealed that when two principal members of the cast of "As Thousands Cheer" dropped out for rests and the question of cuts came up in order to keep the show going, Helen Broderick, also a featured star, said they could cut her plenty, but to keep hands off the pay of the chorus kids . . . Some lady . . . Too bad she had to drop out later because of illness which she had concealed for fear it would stop the show and throw others out of work . . . Blanche Sweet, once stellar movie girl, is in the cast of "Reprise," summer tryout play in Dobbs Ferry, N. Y. . . . The new producing firm of Selwyn & Franklin, mentioned yesterday as having taken over the management of Eva Le Gallienne, are also to have Frances Starr in "Lady Jane." Elizabeth Bergner in "Escape Me Never," and Yvonne Printmps in Noel Coward's "Conversation Piece." . . . Gertrude Lawrence and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., are getting ready to appear in London in a new play by Clemence Dane . . . Central City, Col., which is now in the final days of its two-weeks festival performance of "Othello," with Walter Huston as the Moor, may yet become the American Malvern, with an all-summer season, judging by the success of the productions for three years, the other two having been "Camille" and "The Merry Widow." . . . Frank Crumit says his greatest thrill was when he first heard a song he had written for his alma mater, Ohio State University, "Buckeye Battle Cry," when it was sung at a Michigan-Ohio State game in Ann Arbor.

Use Prayer To Raise Curtain

By GEORGE SEIBEL

The Rev. T. J. King, pastor of Ebenezer Baptist Church, delivered the invocation last night at the Herron Hill Junior High School, and then the curtain rose on "The Pardon," religious drama by Dr. Ralph Mark Gilbert, while a colored choir of 75 voices furnished the entr'acte music of spirituals. It is not customary to begin a dramatic performance with prayer. But Dr. Gilbert's drama is different.

Mr. Seibel

Joey, a Negro youth, is sentenced for life though he is innocent of the murder committed. He loses his faith and asks his fellow prisoner, a bootlegger, if there is a God. The bootlegger reckons there is, but Joey is not convinced until the volunteer Sunday school teacher prays for him and his sweetheart Mabel comes to visit him and brings him a Bible as a present.

Then God suddenly appears to him, and the scene closes with an eloquent prayer by the converted Joey, who also tells his sweetheart:

"There are angels, Mabel, for you are one of them, sent here to lead me to God, and if there are angels there must be a God!"

The drama throughout is held in a reverent and serious vein, and before the prison scene the manager came before the curtain and requested the audience not to indulge in mirth during the love scenes, as love was a sacred thing.

Joey Tyler was acted by Thomas Ruffin, and Mabel by Antoinette Goode. Rosena L. Rice played the Sunday school teacher, while Norman Paul Hardy was the warden. A decided hit was made by Joseph Johnson's singing as Jeremiah Isaiah Nicodemus Thompson, and the way-down-south accents of Ernest Anderson lent unction to the part of One-Eyed Steve.

Directed by Chorister John Blakey, with John Lucas at the piano, the chorus did excellent work. About a dozen spirituals and hymns were sung with sympathetic style, and the humming incidental music was very effective.

It is not often that a dramatic performance is opened with prayer, but the dramas written and directed by Dr. Ralph Mark Gilbert are different.

Local News On Screen

The start and the disastrous finish of the stratosphere flight by three Army airmen, Maj. Kepner and Capts. Stevens and Anderson, is shown in pictures from the ground and the air in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News with a description by The Globe Trotter, Capt. Stevens, in a talk, paints a vivid word picture of the miraculous escape by parachute of his two companions and himself.

Leo G. Altmayer, prominent merchant and philanthropist of Pittsburgh and organizer of the Good Samaritan movement, celebrates his birthday by giving away hundreds of watermelons to the youngsters of 148 institutions. Mr. Altmayer is shown personally handing out slices of the luscious fruit to hungry kiddies who reward him by singing "Happy Birthday to You."

Intimate highlights of the career of Marie Dressler, whose death is mourned by the nation, are presented.

In one of the hardest fought golf matches on record, Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y., is shown defeating Craig Wood, of New Jersey, for the P. G. A. golf championship in Buffalo.

King George, of England, opens the largest under-water tunnel in the world at Liverpool.

Note: Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange programs in time schedules it is possible that some subjects in Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.

HOT FROM HOLLYWOOD

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.—Hello! George Stevens observes that before marriage a man yearns for a woman—but after marriage the "y" is usually silent.

Wanderings around town . . . Frederic March is working on a bridge "system" which he believes will win—for him. It's a routine of completely distracting your opponent. He'll try it twice before revealing the routine to the public. Note: This announcement came a week ago. Evidently it doesn't work! . . . Leonard Stevens has organized a Nit-Wit Club (it should have a flock of supervisors for members) at the Growler at Glendale . . . Gertrude Short and William B. Davidson have joined the cast of "The Perfect Week-End" with Jim Cagney at Warners' . . . Many months ago Frank Fay produced and starred in a movie called "A Fool's Advice." At the time, Nat Pendleton was unknown. Now that the picture is to be released Nat's name will go in electric lights . . . Nicholas Dandolas, better known as "Nick, the Greek," will operate the the snooty "Piping Rock" cafe at Saratoga next month. Surprising is Nicks offer to Bing Crosby of $5,000 per week for five weeks, but the big time warbler ducked the issue. Lupe Velez asked $6,500 for the same deal and Nick nearly fainted.

News note in a British film paper reads that Paul Muni is slated to play a ballet dancer in a new film.

Ah, from chain gang to Jane gang!

Gossip gathering . . . Bill Halligan reports (and all the way from New York, too) that Monte Brice spent the week at the Lido, but never left the beach telephone—horse trouble! . . . Jerry Mandy writes from Salt Lake, where he's doing personal appearances, that he's pointed in the direction of New York and hopes to click on the way before starting that series of two-reelers . . . June and Stu Erwin are auto-eating addicts and practically live at sandwich stands . . . A flock of friends got together and staged a surprise birthday party for Helen Ferguson at the Biltmore bowl t'other eve . . . Charley Grayson scribbles a note from Shanghai that things are sorta dull—for a guy raised in Hollywood.

Snooping around cinema corners . . . Inez Norton writes from Chicago that the Fair is more than that! . . . Ben Lundy and Leonard Heller have taken over the Tingel-Tangle Theater and will offer something about Hollywood called "An Intimate Evening," or "An Impudent Revue," by Barry Trivers. Just to prove that they're not kidding the opening night (August 10) has been sold out to the tune of $5 per seat!

Eddie Quillan's baby sis, Rosebud (9 years old) and her light fantastic pal, Helen McFaul, did a tap dance routine at a beach club that practically raised the roof! . . . "Little Morocco," the Wiggler, will probably shake hips for "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" at the Paramount . . . Madge Evans screams "nix" to that Russel Hardie stuff . . . Carole Lombard and Russ Colombo took Carole's kid brother, Freddie, and his fiance, Jane Pond, to the Biltmore Bowl for frolicking the other eve . . . They're saying now that Jack Durant has the first nickel Frank Mitchell ever made!

Snoopings—William A. Brady stepped off the choo-choo and made a couple of cracks about the Hollywood producers . . . "They wouldn't have any trouble with the church if they didn't leave a string of broken promises behind them." . . . Farce Makes First Bow In Arnold School

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"First They Whisper," labeled a satirical comedy in the program, but in reality a lunatic farce, amused a good-sized audience in the Arnold School Theater last night. Written by Harold Rosenblatt, of Pittsburgh, and A. Montague Ash, of New York, it was staged by the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse as a premiere performance. It will be repeated tonight.

Messrs. Rosenblatt and Ash have laid their play in a modern efficiency apartment in New York, occupied jointly and informally by two young men and two young women who expect to have money enough some day to make their unconventional relationship conformable to a stricter and more ethical code. They are May Smyth, Robert Gill, Mary Philput and DeLisle Crawford, the latter sort of holding up the household in a monetary way, while his pal Mr. Gill, dreams schemes of riches, one of which forms the basis of the play—and doesn't work.

Gill carries most of the burden of the farce—naturally—since it is his plan, and shows his facility again in a light comedy role with a high-pressure demonstration that would put a real life promoter to shame. He is going to establish a newspaper for children—"today's news for the men and women of tomorrow." He is so convincing in his rapid-fire talk that he induces his pal to quit his job, and he actually interests a publisher in his hare-brained proposition. He sets Miss Philput on the trail of an angel, engages office room in a large building, hires secretaries and an editor—and then his house of cards falls flat.

But the authors have carefully planted a saving factor, and the play ends with a happy note succeeding a sour one.

In a technical way, the young authors have tried to introduce a little change in the orthodox form of play construction by means of symbolic use of action flashes before a black backdrop in one scene to represent how the energetic youngsters vision their chances of success.

The cast, besides the principals named, includes Stanley Sharpe, T. Guy Delaney, Irene Cowan, Norman Porter, Billy Hines, Ione Gaul, George Batcha, James W. Macfarlane, A. M. Levin, Oliver Evans, Max Hartman, Betty Abbott and Charles Stover, the largest number in any playhouse offering this season.

MUSIC

LAWN CONCERT

Hotel Schenley

A new note was introduced at the Schenley Lawn Concert last night, when Burt Mustin stepped from among the players and in his best comic fashion gave the song of the "Man on the Flying Trapeze." The cafe chantante is one of the glories of Parisian entertainment and we might try this again to make audiences lighthearted.

Mr. Lissfelt

Victor Saudek conducted again last night. 'Faust' provided the operatic fantasy, and Mendelssohn's "Ruy Blas" the classic overture. The gorgeous "Rosenkavalier" waltzes we can hear none too often, nor the "Marche Slav" of Tschaikowsky. There was considerable charm in the Cadman "Pompadour Fan," but Alfred Neumann's "Street Scene" is pretty far fetched modernism.

Suzanne Seiger, soprano, was soloist, giving the "Mad Scene" from "Lucia di Lammermoor" and later an Arditi waltz song. The waltz was easier for her voice in the open.

Friday, Lucille Bauch, soprano, and Henry Harris, pianist, will be soloists.

Tale of the Seashore

"YOU'RE so handsome," breathed the girl. "So manly. So young. What's your name?"

Miss Louise Brown talking. THE Louise Brown. You know the one I mean. Back in the old days her great-grandfather stole a billion dollars—which automatically placed all his descendants in the Social Register. Accordingly Miss Brown is now on the society pages so frequently that people are beginning to think her name is a paid advertisement.

As we meet her in the flesh for the first time she is sitting on the exclusive sands of the Bigwig Beach Club, on the New Jersey Coast.

And whom do you think this far-famed young lady is calling young and manly and handsome? Surely, you will say, it must be the Baron von Pussface. Or perhaps it is Algernon Whizzlepizzle, son of the horse meat king. But you are wrong. The young man is none other than the lifeguard at the Bigwig Beach Club!

Where were we? Oh, yes. The young lady has asked the young man for his name. And the young man—bronzed, blue-eyed and beefy—is about to reply.

"The name's Axstel," he returned, as I shift my tenses without the slightest hesitation. "Harry Axstel. And thanks for all them sweet words, lady."

"You're nice," she whispered. "Sweet, really. I'm going to be here an entire week, alone. I do hope we'll see a lot of each other."

"Sure, lady. Sure. I'm here whenever you want me. Whenever you feel like chinnin', just squat yourself alongside of me. You're an okay kid."

"Harry," said Miss Brown suddenly, "do you know my fiancee? The man, I mean, that my family wants me to marry? Franklin F. Fossilbottom?"

The lifeguard looked perplexed. Then his face brightened.

"Oh, yeah. I know the gink you mean now. I seen him here wit' you yesterday. He's a skinny runt wit' a constipated look on his kisser. Is that the bozo?"

Miss Brown swallowed hastily. "If you please, Harry. Mr. Fossilbottom is the man I am going to marry. I'll trouble you to be a little more respectful."

"Aw, nuts," said the handsome lifeguard.

When we next see our hero and heroine, one week has elapsed. One glance and it is easy to see that the week has not been wasted.

"Harry," says the girl, "our romance is almost over. It has been beautiful; terribly beautiful. But in a few moments, Franklin F. Fossilbottom will be here to take me home. I must go with him for my parents' sake—and must marry him.

"But I want you to know, dear boy, that you will always be my great love. Because of Franklin F. Fossilbottom, I cannot marry you. Were it not for my duty to him, I would marry you today. You are first in my heart—but second in line.

"You understand, Don't you, Harry dear?"

The lifeguard nodded.

"Sure, Louise kid," he replied, showing you what a week will do. "I gotcha. You got me runnin' around in circles, too. But I gotta tell you—"

"What our bronzed friend had to say was abruptly postponed. For at that precise moment, Mr. Franklin F. Fossilbottom appeared upon the scene. A nervous little man, he pecked at Miss Brown and then motioned toward the ocean. The lifeguard he ignored entirely.

"Going in for a dip, dear," he said. "You will wait here until I return. Then we will go home together."

He walked to the water and stepped in with mincing steps. Then, clumsily, he fell under a wave and began to swim out with the breast stroke.

"Oh, dear," Louise moaned. "Did you ever see such a terrible swimmer and such a funny man? And when I think of you, Harry—oh, dear!"

"I don't blame you, baby," said Harry. "Some squirrel you picked for yourself. I ain't never seen—"

That was as far as he reached. For the lifeguard was running suddenly in the direction of the water. Mr. Fossilbottom was yelping for help and waving wildly toward shore. He had gone beyond his depth and the tide was carrying him further out all the time.

Harry was swimming toward him now. Swimming strongly. Mr. Fossilbottom went down once. The lifeguard slowed down a trifle. Mr. Fossilbottom went down twice. The lifeguard spurted again. And just as Mr. Fossilbottom was going under for the third time, Harry caught him by the hair, hit him on the chin—and brought him safely back to shore.

As the doctors worked on Mr. Fossilbottom, Louise dragged Harry to one side.

"Oh, darling," she whispered, "you're such a hero. You did a wonderful thing in saving Mr. Fossilbottom — but, after all, was it so wonderful? While you were swimming toward him, didn't you remember my words? I said that, if he were gone, I would marry you."

Our hero scratched his head.

"Yeah," he said, "I remembered. And I was gonna let him go, too. But when I seen him goin' down for the third time, I changed my mind.

"After all, girlie, if I married you, my wife and four kids would raise an awful lot of trouble!" . . .

Your Theater and Mine

By KARL KRUG

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF

It happened during the outing of the Wilkinsburg Business Men's Association in Kennywood Park the other afternoon. The speakers were doing their stuff on the band stand and one of them sang out the name of Miss Mary Frazier.

The presence of Miss Frazier was requested on the stage, and the lass responded. She was wearing a pin, fashioned out of a two and a half dollar gold piece, which was given her as a prize baby award in a Wilkinsburg picnic in Kennywood 21 years ago.

She was two and one-half weeks old when she won the pin. The good merchants of Wilkinsburg and their families clapped long and loudly as Miss Frazier took her bows.

Homestead's Frank McHugh will be heard singing a duet with Dick Powell in "Happiness Ahead" and we can hardly wait! . . . Speaking of Dick, the grapevine reports that Russell Gleason is giving the former Stanley master of ceremonies plenty of competition in the Mary Brian race.

'KNITS' TO YOU

By unleased wire from Hollywood: If we are to have a successor to the late Marie Dressler it will be, from all appearances, either Alison Skipworth or Mary Boland. The Boland wit is well known, and an example of it cropped out on the Paramount lot the other day. Mary was knitting and when she knits, she knits; no other name will do.

A guide was showing a visitor through the studio, and upon reaching "The Pursuit of Happiness" set pointed to Mary busy on a sweater between scenes.

"She crochets, too," whispered the guide, but Mary overheard him.

"Knits to you," explained Miss Boland as she went on with her sweater.

If all the stock companies you hear about come to town in the fall they'll have to build a flock of new theaters . . . George Shafer, operator of the Pitt, back from a vacation in Atlantic City, is the latest to be mentioned as a repertoire producer during the season to come.

WHAT!—NO KARLOFF?

The cartoonist of the London Daily Express isn't taking the current screen clean-up campaign very seriously. He kids the Hollywood producers in a cartoon that has posters in front of a theater listing the following attractions:

Greta Garbo in "Sweet Sixteen;" Wallace Beery in "Little Lord Fauntelroy;" Jean Harlow and Clark Gable in "Jack and Jill;" Mae West in "Goody Two Shoes" and Marlene Dietrich in "Little Bo-Peep."

The manager is shown talking to a youngster and his girl who have just left the theater. "Why don't you bring your father along to see the show some time?" he asks. The kid replies: "Oh, he's got old-fashioned ideas. He says the films ain't like wot they used to be."

Why motion picture editors lose their minds . . . From the Paramount publicity department: Actual dialogue and circumstances of the sensational robbery of Mae West, in which she lost $17,500 in gems and cash, have been re-enacted by Mae and her leading man, Roger Pryor, in "The Belle of New Orleans."

SHORT AND SMACKY

A special confidential dispatch from the Will Hays organization to the major studios on picture trends points out that "there is a rising revolt throughout the country against prolonged kissing on the screen."

The producers are advised that lengthy kisses and too frequent clinches are getting the well-known razz in many spots, while in some localities the audiences have actually hissed the kisses when they held the screen for too many feet of film. So the Hays office advises producing companies to "exercise care against kissing scenes staying too long to prevent continuance of audible objections by patrons."

In other words, it looks like short, snappy osculation will be the vogue from now on—that is, on the screen, at least.

MORE LIP SERVICE

The unleased wire carries another important dispatch: the husband-manager of a well-known Spanish star insisted upon having a clause in a recently signed contract with a major studio, which permits him to be on the set at all times while his wife is emoting before the cameras.

He gave as his reason the fact that for years he had kissed his wife every night as she came into the wings after a stage performance, and that he didn't want to break up this habit. The studio objected at first, but finally yielded to such persuasive romance.

A perfect example of just an old Spanish custom.

JAILED 5 DAYS OVER RING

Because he failed to complete payments on a diamond he purchased six years ago, Angelo Tantlina, alias Albert De Palma, 24, of Greensburg, Pa., spent five days in jail until his release was ordered by Judge S. H. Gardner, it became known today.

One arm off as a result of an automobile accident, three months ago, Tantlina was arrested last Friday by Constable R. N. Spinnerweber, from the office of Alderman Jacob O. Michaels, 2401 Saw Mill Run boulevard. He was charged with larceny by bailee on an information filed by O. Werner Gray, representing the Williams Optical Company, North Side.

Unable to provide bail, Tantlina went to jail. His attorney informed District Attorney Andrew T. Park of the circumstances yesterday. Park recommended Tantlina's release on his own recognizance, and Judge Gardner acquiesced. The court was informed Tantlina needed medical attention.

Tantlina's hearing before Alderman Michaels was postponed from last night for one week.

He is accused of having purchased a diamond ring valued at $100, giving the name of Albert DePalma. A down payment of $15 was the only one made by the man, according to the information. However, Tantlina yesterday said he had paid an additional $12.

Glenshaw Man Dies From Auto Injuries

Injuries suffered in an automobile accident today had caused the death of Willis Hicks, 41, of Glenshaw, in Mercer Hospital. Charles Swartz, 34, was also injured in the crash.

NOTED LAWYER DIES IN LAKE

BOSTON, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Harold Jefferson Coolidge, 65, prominent Boston attorney, died of a heart attack last night at his island summer home at Squam Lake, N. H., according to advices received today by one of his law partners, Samuel Vaughan.

Vaughan said he had been informed by Coolidge's widow, the former Edith Lawrence, niece of Bishop William Lawrence, that Coolidge went out for a walk last evening with his dog. When the dog returned alone a search was made and Coolidge's body was found.

At Ashland, N. H., Coroner L. M. Orton attributes Coolidge's death to accidental drowning. Coolidge, walking along the shore, suffered a heart attack and fell into the lake. His body was found close to the shore, Dr. Orton said.

COLMAN 'GLAD' HE'S DIVORCED

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Informed his wife had obtained a divorce in England, Ronald Colman, film actor of romantic roles, said today:

"I'm glad."

From the mountains where he was on a camping trip, the 43-year-old English actor telephoned his business manager, William Hawks, and authorized him to issue the following statement:

"I'm glad Mrs. Colman has obtained a divorce.

"We have been separated for many years, and, since there was no possibility of a reconciliation, divorce was the sensible and logical thing.

"I have no thoughts or intentions of a second marriage."

FOUND IN LAKE, GIRL BELIEVED MURDERED

WILKES-BARRE, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Police said today they believe Freda McKechnie, 26, of Edwardsville, whose body was found in Harvey's Lake, had been slain. The body was found last night.

Robert Edwards, 23, also of Edwardsville, reported to have been with the girl Monday evening, is being questioned by police.

At a post mortem examination performed by Dr. Thomas Wenner, coroner's pathologist, it was announced the girl had not drowned, but had been knocked unconscious by a blow on the head and then thrown into the lake.

The body was discovered by a fisherman 200 feet from shore. The young woman was attired in a bathing suit and white bathing cap. Her clothes were about a quarter of a mile inland.

State, county and police are checking the movements of the girl since she left her home and the persons with whom she had been.

OFFICER SHOOTS FLEEING YOUTH

Fleeing from an alleged attempt to enter a Sharpsburg home early today, James Repino, 19, 225½ Twelfth street, Sharpsburg, was shot when he ignored a police order to halt.

Repino is in the St. Francis Hospital in a serious condition with a bullet wound in the hip.

Repino was shot when he ran past Policeman Lawrence Glazer in fleeing from Harry Lynn, 1839 Cecil alley. Lynn reported his garage was entered last night and, although he heard the intruder, he did not try to catch him, since there were no valuables in the building.

Lynn was aroused an hour later when a window of his home was being forced. Rushing from the house, Lynn saw Repino fleeing, according to police.

Lynn chased the youth to Eighteenth street, where Repino sped past Glazer. Told of the attempted robbery by Lynn, the officer ordered Repino to halt and when he failed, fired one shot, police said.

BANK TO PAY DEPOSITORS

An 18 per cent dividend, amounting to $500,942, will be paid to depositors of the Homewood People's Bank on August 10, according to an announcement today by William D. Gordon, State Secretary of Banking.

This payment brings the total paid to depositors to 63 per cent since the bank was closed. The remaining net deposit liability of the bank is $1,030,299 and, according to the banking department's statement, there yet remains assets with a book value of $1,010,744 appraised at $505,038.

A first dividend of 58 per cent, amounting to $231,704, will be paid to depositors of the closed Indiana County Deposit Bank, Indiana, Pa., it was also announced by the banking secretary.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Trade Level Higher Than Might Be Expected

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The figures show Joseph P. Kennedy told the truth when he said business was better than business confidence.

Mr. Mallon

Official and unofficial tabulations indicate that we are in a summer recession which is now about 5 per cent more than seasonal. That is hardly amazing in view of the drought, strikes, heat and inner business skittishness. You would naturally expect the recession to be at least three times that much, in the face of all these troubles.

The seasonally adjusted monthly business chart proves that production was off about 4 per cent in July, employment 2, wages 2 and sales 1.

The only thing higher in July was the price index and the thermometer. The price level was higher than it has been for two years. The drought did it.

CONFIDENCE

Government business seers, with these figures in front of them, take a less excited view of conditions, than, for instance, the marketeers in New York.

They look on the drought as a more serious hazard to business than strikes. Labor troubles can be settled, but the drought cannot. Both are national problems, but are localized.

There is another more widespread national problem, less obvious, but possibly even more important in their view. That is the subject of which Mr. Kennedy spoke—the (at times) irrational uncertainty among some business men.

When Mr. Kennedy spoke as chairman of the securities commission, his voice was drowned out by the assassination of Dollfuss, which occurred the same day. His cooling promise of restrained and sensible business relations was lost in the face of the hot blasts from Europe. It was lost only temporarily.

From the way Mr. Roosevelt's economic counselors are now murmuring among themselves, you can see very plainly that they are going to meet Mr. Roosevelt at the pier with advice that Washington turn the electric fan on the business man's brow.

There will be more speeches like that of Mr. Kennedy—and more than speeches.

BOOKS

A General Motors executive walked into the NRA headquarters the other day. He was formerly connected with the NRA and just dropped in for a chat. Under his arm was a fat book about the size of the old-fashioned family Bible.

NRA'ers probably had never seen a Bible and inquired about it. They were amazed when informed that it was the price policy of General Motors reduced to writing.

The price policy of the NRA has never been reduced to writing. Neither has the labor policy, except in the most general terms.

That started a round of discussion about the advisability of reducing all NRA policies to detailed writing, so all the bickering and uncertainty of the different code systems could be avoided. There would be one rule for all.

It could be done but it would take more print paper than there is available in the world.

MORALE

Inside the NRA organization the morale is not what it used to be.

Gen. Johnson has been carrying the rules and regulations of that outfit around in his head since the start. They have never been put on paper either.

The result is that since Johnson has been away there has been considerable inter-office confusion, conflicts of authority, disputes as to procedure. Some executives have become disgusted.

RESUMPTION

There has been a big rush lately among vacationing government officials to get back on the job before the boss arrives back from Hawaii. Messrs. Morgenthau, Roper and Tugwell arrived the same day, acting as if they had never been away.

The influx aroused suspicions that Mr. Roosevelt had ordered some of them back to work, but such suspicions are undoubtedly groundless. The truth is the President invited his associates to take a month off if they could arrange it. Few could.

ONE OF THE MOST FAMILIAR FIGURES IN WASHINGTON IS COLONEL EDWARD W. STARLING OF THE U.S. SECRET SERVICE. HE HAS BEEN ATTACHED TO THE WHITE HOUSE FOR 21 YEARS AND IS KNOWN AS THE "ADVANCE MAN" BECAUSE HE PRECEDES ALL PRESIDENTIAL APPEARANCES TO INSPECT PREMISES AND MAKE ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE OF THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE.

COLONEL STARLING IS A NATIVE OF KENTUCKY. GOVERNOR MORROW, OF HIS HOME STATE, HONORED HIM WITH AN APPOINTMENT TO HIS STAFF, AND THE TITLE OF COLONEL.

FAMED MODEL DIVORCES 4TH

Universal Service.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Aug. 1.—Mrs. Nell Madsen, artist model, known as the "most glamorous red head of 1933," was today divorced for the fourth time. She was separated from Axel Julius Madsen, explorer, now attached to the Danish legation in New York.

Mrs. Madsen was formerly the wife of the Rev. Walter Garrett Rogers, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and of Count Jean de la Vairir. After a few weeks with her second husband she was divorced and married a "man of mystery." Their marriage was annuled within a week.

The pretty model became Madsen's wife in Chicago in October, 1930, and lived with him until March 30, 1933. Her complaint charged general indignities.

MEAT AND LARD USE INCREASES

Statistics issued today by the Institute of American Meat Packers indicate that butchers made out better than bankers while the country was in the throes of the depression.

According to Walter E. Reineman, Pittsburgh regional chairman of the institute, consumption of meat and lard has been gaining steadily during the past four years. In this city the amount consumed last year totalled almost 100,000,000 pounds, he said, with 500,000 pounds expected as an increase during the coming year.

Foundry Worker Fatally Injured

Isaac White, 40, Negro, of 812 George street, Coraopolis, was fatally injured when hit by a piece of iron casting in the plant of the Duquesne Foundry Company, Coraopolis. White died last night in the Sewickley Valley Hospital.

Chiropractors Hold Public Meeting

Delegates attending the annual convention of the National Chiropractic Association are to hold a public meeting at 8 p. m. today in Soldiers and Sailors Memorial Hall.

Dr. Slocum

Addressing the meeting will be Dr. J. E. Slocum, of Des Moines, Ia., chairman of public relations of the association. His subject will be "Chiropractic — Its Relation to Public Health."

Another speaker is to be Dr. L. J. Steinback, dean of the Universal Chiropractic College, Pittsburgh.

HOLDUP STAGED IN CAPITOL

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—A bandit late yesterday held up Harold Stucky, a crippled clerk in the House Office Building postoffice at the Capitol and escaped with $500, representing the day's postal receipts and the semi-monthly payroll for the postoffice clerical staff.

Stucky was on duty alone in the postoffice when the bandit entered and closed the door behind him. Two Capitol policemen were on duty in a corridor not more than 20 or 30 feet away.

Ramming a pistol into his ribs with a "stick 'em up" command, the bandit scooped the contents out of the cash drawer. Then he ordered Stucky to open the safe, which he did. The bandit grabbed a handful of bills, all in sight, but overlooked a package of $500.

SCHOOL CRITIC LAYS FIRING TO BOOK

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—James Bd. Shields, Winston-Salem teacher and author of a book banned do the theme that the moneyed classes control the schools, charged today that his dismissal as principal of South Park School here was based on "other than professional reasons."

Thomas W. Blackwell, acting chairman of the school board, announced that Shields had not been re-elected to the faculty.

In a telephone message to the Twin City Sentinel from State College, Pa., where he is instructing in the Pennsylvania State College summer school, Shields intimated his belief that his critical book, "Just Plain Larnin'," cost him his school job.

Shield's book caused much comment here. A novel, it was the story of the struggles of "enlightened" school teachers fighting for modern educational methods in a plutocracy-ruled tobacco town. The book was given wide notice through the country. In Winston-Salem one book store refused to sell it, because it was supposed that some prominent local persons could be seen in some of the characters.

RADIO HIGHLIGHTS

Byrd Party, Short Story Broadcast

Cliff (Ukukele Ike) Edwards makes the supreme sacrifice, tonight when he takes his Saturday night shower bath three days ahead of schedule just to please some members of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition at Little America.

Cliff's snorts and splutters, mingled, perhaps with a bathtub ballad, are aired during the broadcast to and from the Byrd Expedition at 10 over a CBS-WJAS network.

Haiti, the favorite island of Christopher Columbus, is the scene of the program which Edward Tomlinson, South American authority, presents over an NBC-WCAE network tonight at 10:30, in his series on the "Other Americas."

The broadcast features the music of Justin Elie, Haitian composer, whose versatile production includes symphonies, dances and songs.

"The Queen of the Night" and "Tropical Fantasy" are among the compositions played on the program.

A program of compositions he has catalogued "original band music" has been selected by Edwin Franko Goldman, celebrated band leader, for his concert from the Mall in Central Park.

The program is carried locally by KDKA from 9 to 10 o'clock.

RWD SINGERS

The Rube Blakey Jubilee Singers offer a program of spirituals on KDKA at 10:45. The Choir has appeared regularly under the banner of the RWD in public schools, churches, parks and camps.

Distinguished Pittsburghers come to the KDKA microphone in a new series titled "Pittsburgh Beautification Forum," tonight at 10, and continuing each Wednesday at the same hour.

The first speaker will be Frederick Bigger, chairman of the City Planning Commission of Pittsburgh and leading individual in the Citizens' Committee on City Plan.

Serbian Day Speech On Air Tonight

Attorney R. Rhody Brenlove speaks over WCAE at 6:35 this evening, as guest of the Sun-Telegraph Aircaster.

Mr. Brenlove delivers a radio address in connection with the celebration of National Serbian Day at Kennywood Park tomorrow, which will be attended by Serbs from all sections of Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia.

Trained Seals On Radio

"Wife's Mistake," dramatization of the short story of the same name, is heard over WCAE tonight at 7:15.

Stephanie Diamond plays the part of the woman who, proud of her honesty, is accused as a thief.

At 4:45, the Junior Patrol broadcasts, and at 5:30, the latest happenings in the serial dramatization of "Pieces of Eight" are heard from WCAE.

At 6:45, Harry Keck and His Trained Seals are on the air with the latest in sportsdom.

Radio Will Control Traffic

By O. H. CALDWELL

Former Federal Radio Commissioner, Editor of Electronics and Radio Retailing, Scientist and Lecturer. (Writing for Aircaster.)

The motorist of the future will carry his own red "stop" and green "go" radio traffic lights on the dashboard of his car, and will send forth from his horn diapasons of melody to warn the unwary pedestrian rather than shock him into spasms of fright.

The driver of such a vehicle will be relieved of the strain of peering ahead for overhead traffic signals.

He will simply have the responsibility of watching his own dashboard and act accordingly. The stop and go lamps will be controlled by high frequency inductor cables laid alongside street curbs.

A policeman switching on or off the cable current will automatically change the dashboard signals in all cars.

The danger of fog and mist on strange roads will be eliminated for radio-equipped autos. Upon approaching a dangerous curve a cars will pass through a zone of radio vibrations carrying the warning "Slow Down—Bear Left—Bad Curve Ahead."

Later, the motor car driver entering the limits of a town will hear the radio voice repeat "speed limit 20 miles an hour—drive slowly."

RADIO COPS

Radio traffic cops will have an easier job handing out tickets in the futue. Here's how:

A motorist speeds up your William Penn highway. No police are in sight. But radio eyes are on watch in the pavement, and if the measured interval is traversed in too brief a time an alarm rings in the police booth ahead and out steps a police officer with a signal to "pull over."

But radio also will help the motorist to avoid tickets for other offenses. For example:

I park my car in the afternoon, to be gone until late evening. As soon as dusk falls an electric eye on the windshield, noting the darkness, turns on my parking lights and I am saved the cost of getting a ticket.

Around my house in the country are small 10-watt lamps which burn all night. A radio eye, peeping out of the window of this hundred-year-old cottage, calmly observes the sun sink in the west and thereupon silently switches on the lights. And next morning, just as faithfully, it turns them out again.

PRESENTING RARE GALAXY OF RECIPES FOR DELICIOUS DESSERTS

By PRUDENCE PENNY

Curiously enough, today is, by popular selection no less, dessert day.

Call everybody psychic or what you will, but this particular mail was literally flooded with all kinds of dessert recipes. We'll admit, it was a pretty tough job to pick the winners from such a galaxy of delicious, different desserts, but here they are, flanked in variety by this-and-that equally tasty.

Don't miss trying the chocolate upside-down cake—a simply grand concoction. And, of course, don't miss your chance at a prize in the daily Prudence Penny contest. Eleven prizes are awarded each day—one $5, five $1 and five honorable mention cook books. Just send your recipes to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. No recipes are returned.

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. R. J. M'CALLUM,
Hassen Heights, Oil City.
CHOCOLATE UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE

Six tablespoons butter.
Two-thirds cup sugar.
One-half teaspoon vanilla.
One egg.
One and one-half cups flour.
Three teaspoons baking powder.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One-half cup milk.

Cream butter and sugar. Add egg. Mix and sift dry ingredients and add to creamed mixture alternately with the milk.

SAUCE

One and one-half cups sugar.
Three tablespoons cocoa.
One tablespoon butter.
One teaspoon vanilla.
Three-fourths cup water.

Cook until mixture forms a very soft ball in water. Place sauce in bottom of pan and pour batter over sauce. Bake in oven heated at 375 degrees about 30 minutes.

Five $1 Prize Winners

MISS MOLLIE KLEE
115 Chestnut street, Carnegie.
ORANGE FUDGE

One and one-half cups sugar.
One-half cup milk.
Two tablespoons butter.
One tablespoon orange juice.
Grated rind one-half orange.
One-fourth cup candied orange peel.

Place sugar and milk in saucepan and boil until mixture forms a soft ball. Remove from fire and add orange juice, butter, grated orange rind and orange peel cut into small pieces. Cool and beat until creamy. Pour into a buttered pan and when almost firm mark into squares.

ELIZABETH A. COTTER,
R. D. 1, Portersville,
SUMMER SALAD

One solid head iceberg lettuce.
Four large, firm tomatoes.
Two medium-sized cucumbers.
One green pepper.
Two medium-sized carrots.
Mayonnaise.

Wash tomatoes and cut six slices. Place one slice in center of crisp lettuce leaf on salad plates. Wash and pare cucumbers. Slice and place halved slices surrounding the tomato. Wash carrots and green pepper and grind with remaining tomatoes and cucumbers in food chopper. Season to taste. Mix with mayonnaise and dress by spoonfuls on tomato. If desired, garnish with additional mayonnaise. Chill. Serves six.

MRS. JESSIE CLEMENTS,
Main street, Leechburg.
APPLE GINGERBREAD

One egg.
Half cup sugar.
Half cup molasses.
Quarter cup shortening.
Half cup hot water.
Two cups pastry flour.
One teaspoon cinnamon.
One teaspoon ginger.
One teaspoon soda.
Half teaspoon salt.
One cup chopped apple.

Beat egg until light. Then beat in sugar and shortening. Add molasses, hot water and add. Sift pastry flour with seasonings, combine mixtures, beat well and fold in chopped apple. Bake in individual tins about 15 minutes at 400 degrees or in layers about 20 minutes at 375 degrees. Serve with Roquefort cheese or, if desired, ice cream or whipped cream.

MRS. DON WATTS,
7514 Calhoust street, Swissvale.
PERSIAN DAINTIES

One-half cup cold water.
Two cups sugar.
Three-fourths cup boiling water.
One-half cup chopped nuts.
Two tablespoons gelatin.
One-half cup raisins, cut fine.
One-half cup dates, cut fine.
Two tablespoons lemon juice.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.

Heat sugar, salt and boiling water to boiling point. Pour cold water in bowl and sprinkle gelatine on top. Add to hot syrup and stir until gelatine is dissolved. Boil slowly for 15 minutes, then add nuts, raisins, dates and lemon juice. Pour into pan that has been rinsed in cold water and let stand for at least 12 hours in cool place (not a refrigerator) until thick and firm. With a wet sharp knife loosen mixture from sides of pan and turn out on a board covered lightly with powdered sugar. Cut into cubes and roll in powdered sugar.

MISS IDA MAE FRANCHI
Box 35, Sunnyside.
IMPERIAL TUTTI-FRUTTI CAKE

Two and two-thirds cups flour.
Two and one-fourth teaspoons baking powder.
One-half cup butter or other shortening.
One and one-third cups sugar.
Two-third cup milk.
One-third cup water.
One-half teaspoon vanilla.
One-fourth teaspoon almond extract.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
Three egg whites.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and sift three times. Cream butter (thoroughly), add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Combine milk, water and flavoring. Add flour to creamed mixture, alternately with liquid, a small amount at a time, and mix after each addition until smooth. Add salt to egg whites and beat until stiff, but not dry. Fold gently into cake mixture. Bake in two greased nine-inch layer pans in slow oven (300 degrees F.) 30 minutes. Increase heat to 375 degrees and continue to bake 15 minutes. Put layers together and cover top and sides with California tutti-frutti frosting and filling.

CALIFORNIA TUTTI-FRUTTI FROSTING AND FILLING

Two egg whites unbeaten.
One and one-half cups sugar.
Three tablespoons water.
Two tablespoons lemon juice.
Dash of salt.
Grated rind of one-half lemon.
One-fourth teaspoon almond extract.
One-fourth cup walnut meats, toasted and broken.
One-third cup currants.
Eight maraschino cherries cut fine.
One small can pineapple.

Put egg whites, sugar, water, lemon juice and salt in upper part of double boiler. Beat with rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook seven minutes (until frosting is stiff), beating constantly with rotary egg beater. Remove from fire and add lemon juice and almond extract. Take one-third of mixture and mix currants and cherries. Spread between layers of cake. Cover top and sides of cake with remaining frosting and sprinkle thickly with cocoanut.

Honorable Mention

MRS. ELMAR BARNEY,
2704 Kenneth avenue, Arnold.
CRYSTAL BARS

Three egg whites until light.
One cup sugar.
Three-fourths cup flour.
One teaspoon baking powder.
One teaspoon vanilla.
Pinch of salt.
One cup chopped nuts.
One cup chopped dates.

Mix ingredients in the order given (if the baking powder with flour before adding) and pour into pan to depth of one-half inch. Bake until brown in a hot oven (10 to 15 minutes). Cool slightly and cut into strips. Roll in powdered sugar.

MRS. ANNA NATALE
Washington avenue, Jeannette.
FLEMISH CABBAGE

One medium head cabbage, shredded.
Two tablespoons sugar.
Three tablespoons butter.
Two onions.
Two apples.
One-fourth cup vinegar.
Salt and pepper.

Melt two tablespoons butter in a deep pan, slice in the onions and place cabbage on top. Season with salt and pepper and add a little vinegar. Cover with bouillon or meat broth, bring to boil over a low fire and add sliced apples. Cover and cook one hour. When cooked add remainder of the butter and two tablespoons sugar.

Red cabbage is preferred, but white cabbage may be substituted.

MRS. ANNA BARBER,
Salisbury Street, Meyersdale.
PARAMOUNT PUDDING WITH FOAMY SAUCE

Three-fourths cup molasses.
One egg.
One teaspoon soda.
One-half cup water.
One and one-half cups flour.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
One cup raisins.
Three tablespoons melted butter.

Beat egg and add molasses. Dissolve soda in water and stir into the egg mixture. Sift flour and salt and add and beat well. Dredge raisins with flour and stir in lightly. Add butter. Fill greased pudding dish three-fourths full, cover tightly and steam one and one-fourth hours. Serve with hot foamy sauce.

FOAMY SAUCE

One-half teaspoon salt.
One-fourth cup sugar.
Two tablespoons flour.
One cup milk.
One egg yolk.
Two tablespoons sherry flavoring.
Dash of nutmeg.
Two egg whites.

Mix sugar, flour and salt. Add milk and beaten egg yolk and cook over hot water until thick. Add flavoring and nutmeg. Fold in stiffly-beaten egg whites.

MRS. BYRON A. PRATT
115 Eighth street, Beaver Falls.
LEMON RAISIN PIE FILLING

Two lemons, chopped fine.
One cup raisins, chopped fine.
Two cups sugar.
One and one-half cups water.
Two eggs.
Two tablespoons flour.
One tablespoon butter.

Two onions and put through food chopper with raisins and one-half the total of one lemon. Cream butter and sugar together, then add the beaten eggs, flour and water. Mix all together. Use any pastry recipe. This is for a two-crusted pie.

MISS ELIZABETH RIKER,
5844 Shore street, Swissvale.
LEFT-OVER SPECIAL.

One cup chicken, chopped fine.
Two teaspoons onion, minced.
Two tablespoons butter.
One-half cup stock.
Two cups cracker crumbs.
One egg yolk.
Salt and pepper.
Lettuce leaves.

Cook onion in butter one minute and add chicken and cracker crumbs. Moisten with stock, and egg yolk and seasonings, and wrap in lettuce leaves. Allow two tablespoons of mixture to each person and fasten with a toothpick. Steam in steamer and steam 30 minutes. Serve with mushroom or cream sauce.

SHIP HITS ROCK, 500 ABOARD

SEATTLE, Aug. 1.—(AP.)— Under convoy of two Coast Guard cutters, the Alaska cannery tender Otsego, one-time German World War raider Eitel Frederich, limped toward Dutch Harbor in the Aleutian chain today with water in her forward hold.

Capt. Max Darskie wirelessed no fears were felt for the ship's 500 passengers, salmon cannery workers whose season's work in the Bristol Bay region of Western Alaska had ended.

The Otsego ran on the rocks of Cape Mordvinof, on the northwestern head of Unimak Island in the Eastern Aleutians, early yesterday morning.

VET CONDUCTOR RETIRES

Rounding out 51 years of uninterrupted service with the Pennsylvania Railroad, James R. Maloney, passenger conductor on the Steel City Express, was retired today. He retires in accordance with the company's pension regulations, having reached the age of 70.

Arriving here yesterday in charge of the express from Crestline, O., he was greeted by H. T. Frushour, superintendent, and J. V. Lowery, passenger trainmaster. At the completion of his run, he returned to his home in Alliance, O., where he will settle down, but, he declared, he will never lose interest in railroad transportation.

CHATHAM VILLAGE
Advertising Committee
Natural Gas Companies Serving Greater Pittsburgh Area
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania
Gentlemen:
You have asked us to tell you of our experience with natural gas as a fuel for residential heating.
Every Chatham Village home is equipped with a modern, thermostatically-controlled, gas-burning steam heating plant. Our experience with gas fuel has been uniformly satisfactory.
Management and residents alike welcome its convenience, comfort, efficiency, and economy. An examination of heating costs will show that for even the largest homes the cost has been remarkably low.
The cleanliness of gas heat is an important factor in promoting high standards of maintenance for the Village as a whole and lower housekeeping costs for the individual residents.
Very truly yours,
F. W. Frederick
Superintendent

In Chatham Village—Pittsburgh's most modern Housing Development—there are 56 five-room, 51 six-room and 22 seven-room homes, all heated with Gas. The average heating cost for all these homes, for the seven months' heating season ending May 1, 1934, was only $7.98 per month; and the maximum for any of these 129 homes averaged only $11.59 per month.

Chatham Village homes, it is true, present unusually favorable conditions for Gas Heat. But even so, an average heating cost of $7.98 per month is amazingly low—probably considerably lower than you would have thought possible.

And the cost of heating your own home with Gas is very likely considerably less than you think, too. Why not find out just what it would cost to heat your home this modern way? Your Gas Company will be glad to give you an accurate estimate—absolutely free and without any obligation on your part—and to show you how you can enjoy all the comforts and conveniences of Gas Heat without one cent of investment for new equipment, under an unusually attractive Burner-Rental plan now in effect. Call, write or telephone your Gas Company—now—or send in the coupon below.

Veenstra Assumes Relief Board Post

Theodore A. Veenstra, Allegheny County Executive of the Civil Works Administration and Relief Work Division unemployment and rental property census tabulations, today began his duties as assistant director of the Pennsylvania Emergency Relief Board.

The appointment was announced yesterday in Harrisburg. Mr. Veenstra has been granted a year's leave of absence from the University of Pittsburgh Bureau of Business Research. Dr. J. T. Wahlson, of the Pitt Research Bureau will take over his duties there.

Seek Mayview Job For 8th Ward Doctor

Petitions are being circulated today in the Independent Voters' Association throughout several wards urging the appointment of Dr. William T. Moke, Eighth Ward physician, to the job of superintendent of Mayview. The job is now filled by Dr. James E. Ramsdale.

The petitions, according to Harry Barlow, president of the association, does not mention Dr. Ramsdale's name. When they are filed they are to be submitted to Mayor McNair. Dr. Moke is a member of the Voters' Association, Barlow said.

'Fighting Bob' Dies, Overseas Chaplain

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1.—(A.P.)—The Rev. Robert J. McPeltridge, know as "Fighting Bob" to thousands of fellow veterans of the World War, died yesterday in his victory as a result of complications from shell wounds and gas. He was 54.

He was chaplain of the 108th Field Artillery, 28th Division, in the war. During 20 years in the ministry he held posts in the protestant district in Wyoming, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Beacon, N. Y.; St. Louis and Philadelphia.

Motorcycle Officer Injured In Crash

Motorcycle Patrolman Thomas W. McClaire was recovering in the Mercy Hospital today of severe lacerations sustained when he crashed into an automobile which had stopped suddenly in the 1800 block, Bigelow boulevard, late yesterday. The alleged driver, Anthony Marvil, of 219 Saw Mill Run boulevard, took McClaire to the hospital. He later was held on a reckless driving charge by Center avenue police.

Nature study: They were dining al fresco around a natural lake in Westchester and the evening obbligato of tree frogs was especially deafening. Messmore Kendall declared he could still the chorus and, walking to the pond edge, suddenly flung his arms in supplication. Instantly haunting silence. Several times he repeated the magic. The explanation: Tree frogs are the most timid of all woodland life. Any distraction silences them.

One of Harlem's spiritual advisers is a coal black and very bald little Negro known as Father Divine. He professes to be clothed, fed and cared for purely through faith and his followers aver he "materializes" money by merely reaching into his pocket. At any rate he maintains a somewhat elaborate establishment on West 115th street in a capacious red brick building where there is open house for his flock—a table seating about 60, well stocked with food to feed the constantly shifting stream of hungry.

Someone tells me a favorite breakfast dish of the famous Oscar as well as others versed in cuisine is the lowly prune. All wrestlers, including the two hefty Jims, Londos and Browning, go for it. Also Helen Wills and the late Lillian Leitzel of the flying rings. In fact the prune appeals to brawn or so the legend has it. But jests have made the world shy about ordering prunes in public. The prune people have need of smart advertising to shake off the aroma and stigma of the cheap boarding house. And even that might not turn the trick.

A breakfast I remember vividly was on a bowered portico at The Hague in Holland. Thinly sliced oranges in a thoroughly frosted dish, shirred eggs with crisp bits of bacon, black strap pumpernickel, coffee, toast, marmalade and a half moon slice of bright yellow cheese. I think what got me, however, was the dewy fresh rose haphazard across the napkin. That would add a delicacy to hash at Beeksteaf John's on Gratham Square.

No one has done more for the wrestling business than Jack Curley. Ninety per cent of sport writers and most of the public think it a thimble-rigging setup. But Curley, with his shock of snow-wite hair and bland geniality, has gone right ahead and built it to the point where it draws a bond to championship prize fights. He fills his ringsides with movie and stage stars and a sprinkle of the Social Register. Most people leave a wrestling bout with sheepish feeling it's pretty much phoney. But so dangerous looking are the slams and falls at times they usually go back hoping to be in at the kill, if any.

The theatrical agency business is almost extinct as white piping on vests. A penguin looking fellow who, as legends go, has a prop mink wrap he loans to "prospects" when squiring them about the hot-cha places, seems the only prosperous survivor. Twelve big agencies of 10 years ago are no more. Most have turned to radio.

GARBAGE FIGHT CARRIED TO COUNTY

Commissioners Plan Public Hearing; Legal Battle Looms

The city's incinerator program, a bugaboo that has frightened residents in the neighborhood of the Manchester and East End sites, is likely to take form rapidly.

The County Commissioners have been given a view of what the city proposes, and, if they approve, contracts will probably be let for the two plants before the month is out, unless court action interferes.

Individuals and groups interested in the city's plan to locate incinerators, one on Chateau street and the other at the Brilliant Pumping Station, will be given a hearing by the Commissioners some time after August 15.

LEGAL FIGHT LOOMS

North Side residents, furious at the thought of their home ward being made the dumping ground for the greater part of the city's refuse, have raised a substantial sum to start a legal battle, it is reported.

The city's plans for the plants at Chateau and Reedsdale streets, and at Brilliant Pumping Station are complete, having been pushed ahead by George W. Schusler, superintendent-engineer of the Bureau of Sanitation.

Two pictures are painted of the incinerators.

The one idea expressed by the persons opposed to them is that they are bound to be a nuisance, to fill their neighborhood with smoke and smells, depreciate property values and crowd streets with garbage wagons.

'NEAT AND CLEAN'

The other conception is that the plants will be neat and clean with nothing on the exterior to betray their purpose and that the hauling will be done in modern closed vehicles offering no offense.

If the pro-incinerator forces, thus far victorious in their battle, keep on winning, they will give a severe jolt to the American Reduction Company and the Allegheny Garbage Company who have held the garbage and rubbish disposal contracts for years.

To get rid of its garbage and rubbish, the city last year paid more than $1,300,000. The cost has been falling. It was $1,600,000 in 1929.

ON TONNAGE BASIS

In the first six months of this year, the city paid for disposal $84,000 less than last year. The companies are paid on the tonnage basis and the weights have been falling off, partly at least because of closer supervision by city officials.

One inspector who has proved a great annoyance to the companies is B. B. Sklar, former voting machine expert and protege of Mrs. R. Templeton Smith.

Largely through Mrs. Smith's potent influence, Sklar was named an inspector to check garbage and rubbish weights and he has been active both on the North Side, where the Allegheny Garbage Company presides, and in the re-

REPEATS STORY OF $170,000 IN BOTTLE

Police Prosbers Told To Expect Anything From McNair

The Police Research Commission will meet again Friday to steer its future course, the members decided today after an open hearing yesterday in which James N. Hoey answered Mayor William N. McNair and Frank R. Boyd's criticism by renewing his attacks.

Hoey charged McNair was humiliating Mrs. Zita Rickenbrode, discharged police woman, for doing her duty.

Hoey then told the eight-year-old story of the aftermath of the Brotherhood Bank robbery, and charged that Boyd, then a detective, twice buried a bottle containing $170,000, after twice digging it up.

Dennis J. Mulvihill, attorney for the commission, also inserted into the record a statement explaining that he had been warned in advance that "if the commission closed Billie Schuessle's, her friends in high places" would see that the commission was attacked and that Hoey's record would be criticized.

CLARK ABSENT

Conspicuous by their absence were James M. Clark, former director of Public Safety under the Kline regime; Detective Stewart Dapp, friend of Mayor McNair, and Herman Friedman, former friend of Mayor Charles H. Kline.

Friedman's attorney, Charles B. Prichard, notified the commission that his client was in Atlantic City. Clark wrote that he might have to be in Columbus, O. Dapp previously declared he would attend if the Mayor sent him.

Mrs. Rickenbrode, dismissed from the police department, of which she was a lieutenant and had served 10 years, was the first witness called. She said she had arrested 10 mashers, among them Kenneth Clayland, of Chislett street, in a downtown theater. All pleaded guilty and paid fines.

NO USE TO ARGUE

Clayland protested to the Mayor, she said, and the Mayor called her, asserting over the phone, she said:

"A man named Clayland says you framed him. I believe he's telling the truth. And there's no use to argue with me, you're suspended."

Later, she said, Public Safety Director A. Marshall Bell fired her. Clayland's wife, the policewoman said, was a political leader and worked in the transcribing room for the county.

Dr. Albert I. Wine, member of the commission, asked:

"Did you hear complaints from the other nines arrested?"

PLEADED GUILTY

Mrs. Rickenbrode answered:

"No."

"Did they all plead guilty?"

"Yes."

"Were any detectives with you when you made the arrests?"

"Yes. Robert Patton and William O'Bryan. Mr. Shell (Pat Shell, theater manager) also was there."

Hoey then asked:

"Did they tell you, when you were sent to the theater, to bein in one or two?"

She answered:

"No. My job was to clean n I might have moved away from the men, but if I found I wouldn't have made any arrests. Then the next I heard was from the Mayor."

ANYTHING FROM MAYOR

Hoey declared:

"When you know the Mayo as well as some of us do, yo will expect anything from him It's unfortunate that he picks on you as his victims, to humiliate you and cast aspersions the police force for doing duty, just to defend some charged with indecent behavio

Clyde B. Edeburn, twice inspector of detectives, was next calle He blamed police inefficiency politics and the Civil Service Commission, saying:

"The Mayor should not the right to appoint members the Civil Service. Some outsi parties, say the Governor or commission, should name them Then the commissioners should serve 10 years, with removal only on bad behavior. Over 95 per cent of the police want Civil Service. It gives them security. In St. Louis they do it that way. They tell me there's no politics there. Politicians will use the police when and wherever they can."

EDEBURN QUESTIONED

Hoey then asked Edeburn, veteran of 22 years on the for if he was a friend of Frank Bo Edeburn said he was.

Hoey then recalled the Goofellow case, and charg Boyd twice dug up as bot taining $170,000 of the money, and twice threw in the mud. Hoey finally up, and gave the money burn, who was in charge.

Mulvihill asked Edeburn if knew that his wife had confe with Mrs. R. Templeton Sm budget adviser to the Mayor, co plaining of Frank Boyd.

Edeburn said he didn't kr of it.

Mulvihill said:

"Well, she did."

Edeburn answered:

"She wouldn't tell me th But I'll find out, all right."

COUNTY URGED TO CANCEL TAX

Allegheny County ought to pay for that free grant the Public Works Administration will make to the Allegheny County Authority by the outright cancellation of approximately five million dollars in delinquent taxes, R. L. Fried, Progressive League of Pennsylvania field secretary, asserted today.

Fried presented a long letter to Council last week containing his proposal.

His plan, he says, means that the county ought not to pass up this golden opportunity to pay for something it is getting for nothing.

Since the federal government is making the gift, along with its loan, to pay for the construction of bridges and tunels, Fried believes that the county ought to keep the free list in balance by cancelling delinquent taxes worth just as much.

He would limit this cancellation, however, to homes occupied or built to accommodate not more than two families.

Fried doesn't like the Liberty Tubes toll plan either. He wants the County to pay back the federal loan by issuing bonds.

Courtesy Signals to Aid Safety Auto Traffic

Duggan Urges Care

Use courtesy warning signals while driving!

These six words were sent forth today to help bring back to Pittsburgh the title of "Safest City in America."

Better Traffic Committee Chairman Frank L. Duggan, who cited discourteous driving as the reason for accident increases here, said:

"Courteous driving demands proper arm signals be given when a driver starts, stops and turns from a direct line.

"Although the state law requires only that the arm be extended from the side of the car to indicate turns or stops, the courteous and safe driver should even go further.

"The driver behind can't read your mind and a mere extending of the arm may mean anything from a stop to the dusting of a cigaret."

He gave the following three courtesy warning signals:

TURNING TO THE RIGHT? SIGNAL THIS WAY

BUT FOR A LEFT TURN, DO IT THIS WAY!

AND IF YOU'D STOP, WHY JUST DO THIS!

COUNTY VOTES PENSION FUND

Pension checks are going out to county employes for the period from October, 1933, until the present time. The payments were made possible yesterday when the Commissioners made a total appropriation of $204,617.16, which will replenish the fund for the remainder of the year.

Payments had been held up through refusal of the Commissioners to contribute to the fund, claiming it was on its way to insolvency. Commissioner William D. Mansfield, in the minority, said the contribution should be made and his position and that of the pensioners was upheld recently by the state courts.

As the appropriation passed hints were dropped that some pensioners had other jobs, some with the state. To ascertain whether any recipients of total disability payments were so employed, a committee consisting of Mansfield, Commissioner C. M. Barr, County Controller Robert G. Woodside and William H. Prasher, a county employe, was named.

Pension checks are being sent by registered mail as a means of determining whether all pensioners actually live at the addresses given on their pension applications.

EAST END GIRLS WIN TITLES

Miss Charlotte Cohick, of 166 Aubburn street, today held the title of "Miss Greater East Liberty," bestowed in the bathing beauty contest of the East Liberty Retail Merchants' Association's community picnic yesterday in Kennywood Park.

Miss Second Honors, carrying the colors of "Miss Penn Avenue," was taken by Miss Grace Whitlaw, 221 Lehigh street. A third title, "Miss Frankstown Avenue," was won by Miss Lucille Stahlman, 5414 Penn avenue.

A baby show and sports program entertained the picnickers throughout the day.

Flags Presented For Playgrounds

Mrs. Mary J. Cowley, president of the North Side Playgrounds Association, yesterday presented flags to representatives of 25 playgrounds at a festival of more than 800 children in West Park. A program of games was given under the supervision of Mrs. Louise Riffle and Miss Hedwig Pregler.

LOGAN'S FERRY MINE RESUMES

Additional men returned to work today in the Logan's Ferry mine of the Allegheny-Pittsburgh Coal Company, shut down two months by an unauthorized strike. Nearly 500 strikers returned to work yesterday.

No disturbance resulted from the resumption of duties at the mine, officials said. Operations were reopened under a contract now existing between the United Mine Workers of America and the company.

The walkout resulted from the demands of the men for the discharge of the mine superintendent because of his "unfairness and discrimination."

Trustee Approved For Heater Firm

John W. Patterson, of Pittsburgh, was appointed permanent trustee of the Pittsburgh Water Heater Company by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, for the purpose of effecting a reorganization of the concern under the ammended section of the bankruptcy act.

The court refused to appoint John C. Baird, who July 2 was named a temporary trustee with Patterson, because of objections raised at a hearing yesterday attended by stockholders and creditors of the company. Permanent appointment of Baird was opposed due to his connection with business associated with the water heater company.

Mt. Lebanon Theft Arrest Expected

An arrest was expected today in the robbery of $85 and several pieces of jewelry stolen from the home of Robert Woodside, 366 Parkway drive, Mt. Lebanon, yesterday. The robbery was reported by Woodside, who is a relative of County Controller Robert G. Woodside, to county detectives.

Guessing what is going on in European diplomacy is like gazing into the heart of boarding house hash.

The whole continent is madder than an overturned bee hive.

And that's mad. To put a bonnet on the climax this month is August.

It's the month when Central Europe starts going places and doing things. We wouldn't be surprised if next year consisted of 12 Augusts.

Our own plan for peace over there is to make the balconies higher and the dictators smaller.

Tot Starting Fire Dies From Burns

Carmela Parent, 3, of 160 Highland avenue, McKees Rocks, died yesterday in the Ohio Valley Hospital, of burns received when she was starting a bonfire in the yard of her home.

Nancy Carroll Dislikes Flying--'Gets No Rest'

A dozen screen fans lucky enough to be at the County Airport yesterday added Nancy Carroll's autograph to their collections. It was apparent as she wrote, that the California sun has freckled Nancy's hands.

Her stop here was en route to New York on a visit to home and family.

She has just finished her last picture, "Transatlantic Showboat," and will have a vacation of about three weeks. Under a new three-year contract, her next picture will be either "Girl Friend" or "Georgiana."

Nancy's famous red hair was partially hidden by a jaunty navy blue beret, part of an all-blue ensemble that included sports suit, shoes, and blue beaded handbag.

She always flies on long trips, Nancy says, but she doesn't like it. Why?

"I never get a chance to rest."

Quite the busiest young member of Pittsburgh's social set is post-deb Margret Brill, older daughter of the Alfred Polland Brills, of St. James street.

POST-DEBUTANTE HARPIST MARGRET BRILL

From fall to June Margret goes to Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, where she's continuing her musical studies — she's a harpist.

And when she goes away with her mother, her little sister Joan and her brother Ruud to Camden, Me., for the month of August, she'll combine work with summer resort life.

For she'll study with Salzedo, the eminent harpist, who has long been her teacher. Salzedo, who is associated with Curtis Intitute, too, and many of the teachers from there have summer homes in or near Camden.

Helen Robinson Bridesmaid For Remle Hess in Erie

At a wedding last night in Erie, Helen Robinson, daughter of the O. D. Robinsons, of Coraopolis Heights, was a bridesmaid. Helen and the bride, Remle Hess, who visited Helen recently, were roommates both at Vassar and at the Baldwin School in Bryn Mawr. Richard Davison, of Coraopolis, and Jack Hermann, of Pittsburgh, were among the ushers.

Remle, who is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Elmer Hess, of Erie, became the bride of Ensign Phillip W. Cann, United States Navy, son of Mrs. H. S. Cann, of Auburn, Me., at 6:30 o'clock, in St. Paul's Cathedral, Erie, with Bishop John C. Ward officiating.

It was a green and white wedding—that is, those colors were emphasized in the decorations and in the costumes of the bride's attendants.

Veil Cascades Over Bride's Gown of White Satin

The bride chose a white satin gown having a deep yoke of net and long sleeves and a veil cascading from a coronet. And she had a tulle face veil. She carried calla lilies, the stems of which were wound in silver.

Hope Hess, as her sister's maid of honor, was in white crepe with an ostrich feather cape. All the bridesmaids, including Helen Robinson, were in white organza gowns having ruffled skirts. They carried white flowers, snapdragons, gladiola and streamers of maidenhair fern, as did the maid of honor. John Stewart, of Warren, Pa., was the best man.

A dinner and reception followed in the Hess home. The bride and bridegroom will go to Auburn, Me., to visit the bridegroom's mother, and will later be at Newport News, New York and Mobile, Ala., where Ensign Cann will be stationed for short stays.

Special Production of Revue Is Given for Guild Hall

A special production of "New Faces," the revue running in New York, was given at East Hampton, L. I., on Sunday for the benefit of Guild Hall.

Members of the cast were entertained for the week-end by East Hampton Colonists.

Nancy Hamilton, young Sewickleyite, is a member of the cast of "New Faces"—and a member who has received praise galore from critics.

Next week-end there's to be a costume ball at Misquamicut Golf Club in fashionable summer resort, Watch Hill, R. I. And the New Deal is to be the costume theme.

On the committee arranging the ball are Mrs. William S. Moorhead, of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Harry Darlington, Jr., of Sewickley Heights, and others.

Priscilla Barnes To Marry in September

Pittsburgh is to have a fall wedding season of note, the number of engagements and the number of wedding dates already taken for autumn indicates.

A notable September wedding will be that of Priscilla Barnes, daughter of the G. Webber Barneses, of Howe street, and Carl H. Schusler, son of Mrs. Henry Schusler.

Priscilla has decided to be married on Saturday, September 15, in vine-clad Episcopal Church of the Ascension.

Miss Thomas Will Wed on August 15

One of the most interesting weddings of the month will be that of Elizabeth Ross Thomas, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Vernon D. Thomas, of Hampton street, East End, and Robley Jump Hackett, son of Dr. and Mrs. Robley Hackett, of Baltimore, Md.

Elizabeth has named Wednesday, August 15, as the date of her marriage, to take place at 8 o'clock that evening in the Thomas home.

Her young cousin, Helen Thomas, daughter of the D. S. Thomases, of Aspinwall, will be her junior bridesmaid and only attendant. Thomas Hackett will be his brother's best man.

College Club Will Have Picnic

To augment its centennial fund, the Mount Holyoke College Club will have a picnic at "Treesdale," the J. C. Trees estate, near Mars, on Saturday afternoon with swimming, boating and cards as the special forms of entertainment.

Mrs. John Victor Breisky, president of the club, Mrs. H. Lloyd Cleland and Miss Florence Feicht are arranging the affair.

Mrs. F. F. Rohrer, a member of the Wilkinsburg Woman's Club, the Tuesday Musical Club, the League of American Pen Women and the Pittsburgh Business and Professional Women's Club, is in Brockway, Pa., She is expected home on Saturday.

Nevin Sisters Will Marry This Week

Two sisters will be married this week—one tonight and one Friday night. They are Miss Dorothy and Miss Janet Nevin, daughters of Mrs. Hugh Nevin, of Beechwood boulevard.

Miss Janet Nevin announced a few weeks ago that she had named Friday night as the date for her marriage to Austin J. Paddock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Paddock, also of Beechwood boulevard.

And now Dorothy Nevin will marry the Rev. Roy C. Blair, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Blair, of Highman street, Westwood, this evening in the Nevin home.

The bride's brother, the Rev. John C. Nevin, of the Fifth United Presbyterian Church, will officiate. The bride will wear white organza and carry Talisman roses; her sister, Miss Janet Nevin, as her only attendant, will wear brown organza and carry garden flowers. Hal Teal will be best man.

After the wedding, to be small, the bride and bridegroom will leave for their honeymoon. They will sail for Europe, where they'll spend two months.

The bridegroom is pastor of the Mt. Pisgah Presbyterian Church, Greentree. He is a graduate of Wooster and Princeton Theological Seminary, where he also received his master's degree.

East End Man, Sharon Girl Married

From Washington comes the announcement of the marriage on Monday, July 23, of Miss Anne Balter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Balter, of Sharon, Pa., to Theodore Herzl Savage, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Savage, of Jackson street, East End. The ceremony was performed in Washington at the home of the officiant, the Rev. Solomon Metz. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. H. A. Kaplowitz.

The bride attended Geneva College, Beaver Falls, and taught school in Koppel, Pa. Mr. Savage was graduated from the University of Pittsburgh, class of '32. He is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa and Sigma Delta Chi.

Mr. and Mrs. Savage are living at the Miramar Apartment Hotel in Washington.

Country Club Derby Game Saturday

It will be Derby Day at Wildwood Country Club Saturday night.

After the buffet supper at the club Saturday, members will play Derby—a popular new game. The set-up of the game includes miniature horses and a miniature race course. The players shake dice to find how many yards their horse can move.

On Saturday afternoon, two-ball mixed foursomes will be played.

Friday will be invitation golf day at the clubhouse.

Women to Hear Discussion on Gardens

Miss Ethel Gibson, of Pittsburgh District Dairy Council, will address the Penn-Hebron Branch of the Women's National Farm and Garden Association when it meets in the clubhouse tomorrow afternoon. Her subject is "The Garden in Your Looking Glass."

The hostess, Mrs. Henry Snyder, will have as aides Mrs. Frank Kepple, Mrs. W. A. Snyder, Mrs. E. D. Cotter, Mrs. J. R. Cline, Mrs. M. J. Barclay, Mrs. W. P. Wickerham and Miss Jean Duff.

Play Apparatus Obtained for Children

What to do with the hundreds of children who could not be taken to the Maud Ballington Booth Health Farm for Children near Wildwood was a big problem facing the Volunteers of America. To solve it, the big yard behind the Volunteers' Day Nursery, in North avenue, has been equipped with all kinds of play apparatus and on rainy days the immense basement of the building is used as a playground.

But what seems to please the youngsters most is that each one is given a soapy scrub under the newly installed showers.

Group Plans To Resume Musicales

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

So popular did its informal morning musicales prove during the early summer that the Tuesday Musical Club will take them up again as a once-a-month feature in the fall. During the summer months the only activity within the club is a series of informal dinners which various groups of members are having at their homes. Mrs. F. F. Rohrer and Mrs. William C. Dierks, both of whom are past presidents, having been among the hostesses.

Mrs. David V. Murdoch, president of the club, is home after a two-week absence. She and Mrs. James Stephen Martin spent a week with Mrs. Martin's sister, Mrs. Robert Lee Wilson, a former Tuesday Musical member, at her home, "Woodside," near Baltimore.

From Baltimore, Mrs. Murdoch went to Blue Ridge Lodge, on the Lincoln Highway, near Bedford, where she visited with her mother, Mrs. L. C. Myers. Mrs. Murdoch's daughter, Mrs. Marian Murdoch, who is also a Tuesday Musical member, is flying to New York, her first trip by air, next month.

Mrs. Arthur B. Siviter, a former T. M. president, and Mr. Siviter are in England and will not be home until the latter part of August. Mr. and Mrs. Louis N. Young are sailing next week for a two-month European trip. Mrs. Alvan W. Sherrill, who has been at the Iron City Fishing Camp all summer is home for a few days, but will shortly return to the Canadian camp. Mrs. H. Alan Floyd and her husband are at their summer home near Harrisburg, and the Dallmeyer Russells and their two daughters are at their lake home near Edinboro, Pa.

Mrs. Will Earhart, another past president of Tuesday Musical, is at her summer home, Crane Lake, Canada, with her son, William, while Dr. Earhart is in England, and Mr. and Mrs. David Aiken Pitcairn and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh are at their summer homes in Canada.

A letter from Mrs. Elmer W. Flaccus, who preceded Mrs. Murdoch in office, states that she is taking her family to San Diego, Cal., for several months. They have been in Tucson, Ariz., since last fall.

Mrs. W. A. Davidson On Her Vacation

Mrs. W. A. Davidson, financial secretary of the Congress of Clubs, is spending her vacation at Linwood Park, Vermillion, O. At a meeting of the finance committee yesterday in the club house, the only absent member was Mrs. H. T. Frauenheim, who is in Erie for a short visit.

Mrs. Ellen A. Baerman, a member of the budget committee, has returned from Maple Springs, N. Y., where she spent several weeks.

iat'fur!" . . . might well be itle for our ramblings-on . Because . . . after having our eyes opened and our ows raised by some furry inmation that fell our way hanks to a certain fur buyer) e're feeling very fur-minded for he moment. Besides . . . it's ugust now, and there will be a ry song and dance act from on, with furs of all sorts jigblithely along. And you r girls and smarter souls with hankering for something nice fur coats, should remember hat . . .

There are lots of little things t go a long way toward making and breaking a fur coat. Such things as knowing what kind to chose for the life you lead (do you live right?) We'd scarcely suggest a Moire Caracul to the gay young thing that goes sled-riding on the campus! And we'd hate to see our mother galloping about in Barunduki!

Here are the furs for long, hard wear: Raccoon, Muskrat, Beaver, Otter, Seal (Alaska and Hudson), Krimmer, Mink, Sable, Kolinsky, Persian Lamb, Fisher. All of these are either protected by sturdy guard hairs or have heavy, tough hides. So that if you are a girl who must needs wear your coat for some six or eight years, plan on something like this.

The dressy or lightweight fur is another story. For this easier, "town" wear, furs like these are suitable: Ermine, Caracul, Squirrel, Broadtail, Mole, Jap Mink, Kidskin, Marten. As most of you know . . . these are all soft and silky . . . wonderfully adapted to the "dressmaker" type of fur coat . . . a cutting and draping that is more typical of fabric than of fur (and which is especially good this new season).

Item—Nubian Seal that you hear ballyhooed up so much is New Zealand's papa jack rabbits! They've been sheared and dyed . . . and make very creditable coats for this winter's "baby buntings."

Item—French Seal is really dyed Coney. However, it has been worked exactly like Hudson Seal and is far above the average coat of its kind and price. Sturdy and practical.

And having unloaded this information onto your shoulders, we start merrily off for another load of our own!

"Speak Up, Sisters" :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Dad Complains of New Liquor Temptation

"Just th... BEER and LIGHT WINES and GOOD THINGS TO EAT... these come together these days.

And I have just finished reading an article which says there are more places like this than there were saloons in the gilded nineties.

There also are plenty of places where hard liquors abound. Comfy retreats where there are pretty side ...eats and clean ...hite covered ...ables, and ...here a man ...n fancy rai... ...ment and a ...mile such as ...one sees in ad...vertisements ...for toothpaste, ...invites you to ...partake of his ...wares.

Miss Brunot

And along comes this letter from a father.

Dear Miss Brunot:

With school out until fall, can't there be something done for parents who want to keep tab on their children, so that beer parlors and restaurants will be separated?

My father used to point out the saloon near my school and tell me if he caught me going into it he would thrash me. And I didn't go in, even for a ham sandwich. But now how am I to keep tab on my boy, when he eats his lunch in a restaurant where beer, light wines and liquors are served, and if he ate elsewhere the food wouldn't be any good? The Democrats will either get these restaurants and the beer parlors separated or before 1936 everyone will be Republicans again.

Meantime I don't want my boy to drink hard liquor.

CAREFUL PARENT.

Threatening us with another Republican reign isn't so bad, father. You and I'll be doing about the same thing, no matter who's in office . . . I recall New York City, a certain restaurant and Roosevelt newly elected . . . There was an Irish girl who always waited on me.

"What about the election..." I asked . . . "How do you feel?"

"I haven't given it any thought," the waitress said. "I guess no matter who's at Washington Beetie'll be still waiting at table."

RESULT OF OLD ERA

However, when the youth of our land is menaced, matters are different. But I wonder if these public places you speak about are menaces. In the old days the inn keeper was a great man . . . Everyone gathered at his place for companionship, warmth, news and drink . . .

No one thought of telling their sons not to darken his door.

It was only later when we became less tenured and there were spineless individuals among us, that we created the era of the white ribbon and many books were written that showed us what a wicked man the saloon keeper was . . .

It was then the seller and not the buyer of intoxicating liquors became the sinner.

It was an era. And it has left its mark upon us . . . It is why you want to keep TAB on that son of yours . . . Yet young people of today do much thinking . . . They have their shoulders squared and their feet are on the ground . . . I can read this between the lines of the many letters I get.

And if we parents set the right example, if we teach our boys to believe in self-discipline, if we let them see they are a unit within themselves that must answer to themselves alone for their conduct, we aren't liable to have much tipsying among them. And so I can't help but fancy, your SONNY going anywhere he wishes for lunch and coming out again, having participated in only that which he himself desires.

BACKBONE NEEDED

Looking into forbidden windows, and seeing the sun shine on bottles that are prohibited, can work as much harm upon the growing youth, as can the seeing of the actual inside of a licensed restaurant.

The flask on the hip and the secret home drinking of the dry years did more to undermine the flapper than all the swinging doors of the gay nineties. Teach boys to obey the law. Teach them to have a backbone and use it. Let them learn how to divide the wheat from the chaff, and for themselves . . . and we'll get back to normalcy.

So don't spend sleepless nights over sonny's temptation. If he can't face temptation and come up smiling . . . well, do you want that sort of a son?

I sympathize with you, of course. I can understand that desire in nearly every parent to make everything easy and good for their children. I can see just why you may want all such places as you mentioned closed. And yet is it the way to develop strong character?

Even Christ was tempted on the mountain. But he resisted.

BROKEN DATES

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 19. I have known a boy for almost two years. He has never made a big fuss over me in public, but when we are alone he seems very fond of me. All went smooth until about a month ago, when he came to see me one evening and told me I was his ideal and as soon as he finished his course in being a pilot for the mail on the air lines he and I would be married.

I was supposed to keep a date with him the following Saturday, but he didn't show up. Later I discovered he had made a business trip to Philadelphia. But he has never made any explanation to me. I know his three sisters very well. I love him, and yet I hate to pocket my pride and ask what was the matter. I have tried going with others, but do not enjoy myself.

HEART SICK.

I feel certain this fellow will return and make ample apology. He is very busy and no doubt thought you would understand when he did not show up for the Saturday date. Knowing his family as you do, and being intimate with his three sisters should help you in seeing him again. He would scarcely make the promises he has to you and not mean what he says.

Miss Brunot will be glad to answer letters submitted to her by readers.

MAKE THE PRESENT WORTH WHILE, IS PHILOSOPHY OF FAY KING

By FAY KING

Some persons waste too much time thinking of the past. Others waste just as much time planning too much for the future.

And both the past and future are only today.

Concentration and application have accomplished everything, and the difference between success and happiness, regret and sorrow is only a matter of judgment at the moment.

If you have regrets, the best way to overcome them is to spend as little time lamenting them as possible. The only way to mend the past is to improve the present.

Keep busy doing your best in each today, and you will not have time for regretting.

Brilliant futures do not fall at one's feet like a meteor from the sky. Today is the foundation of everything.

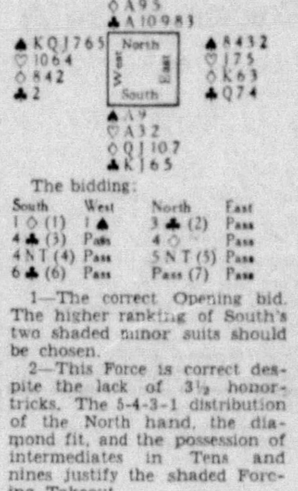
Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Staying Out of Seven

The value of any convention lies, of course, in its meticulously correct application. Most Bridge players are familiar with the great majority of standard Contract conventions, but, unfortunately, few use them shrewdly. In the handling of the Four-Five No-trump Convention, for instance, both common sense and delicacy are required. Merely because a partnership determines that it holds all four Aces and certain specific Kings, it does not necessarily follow that it can successfully contract for a Grand Slam. Distribution is almost always a vital factor—and one the true expert never overlooks. Today's hand is a case in point.

South, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ◇ (1)	1 ♠	3 ♣ (2)	Pass
4 ♣ (3)	Pass	4 ◇	Pass
4 N T (4)	Pass	5 N T (5)	Pass
6 ♣ (6)	Pass	Pass (7)	Pass

1—The correct Opening bid. The higher ranking of South's two shaded minor suits should be chosen.

2—This Force is correct despite the lack of 3½ honor-tricks. The 5-4-3-1 distribution of the North hand, the diamond fit, and the possession of intermediates in Tens and nines justify the shaded Forcing Takeout.

3—South is almost too strong enough to jump to five clubs, but since the bidding connot die under game, he refrains from this course to give the partnership more opportunity for the interchange of information. The four-club bid of course is a strong bid in that it automatically shuts out three no-trump.

4—South, of course, does not know that his partner made a slightly shaded Forcing Takeout. He does know that there is a fit in the two minor suits and that a Grand Slam is a possibility. Holding two Aces and a King of a bid suit, South makes the conventional four-no-trump bid.

5. A compulsory response. Even though North realizes that he has shaded his Forcing Takeout and accordingly is not anxious to reach a Grand Slam, he cannot fail to respond with five notrunmp holding the remaining two Aces.

6. Despite the fact that all four Aces have been located, South still does not wish to bid seven. North can have all of his previous bids and still lack the King of Diamonds or, even holding the King of diamonds, have a worthless doubleton or tripleton in hearts. South feels that since he has invited the Slam it is up to North to bid seven.

7. North, too, refrains from bidding seven, even though he also knows that all the Aces are located. North quite correctly decides that if the South hand contained the Kings of both minor suits and the Queen in one of them, South could undoubtedly have bid seven himself after North's earlier Jump bid.

Of course, North and South were both correct in their decisions not to bid seven. The fulfillment of a contract act of seven would depend upon the diamond finesse plus the drop of the club Queen.

In the play, after a spade Opening, North laid down his Ace of clubs and then led the ten-spot. He noticed that his own hand was of a 5-4-3-1 pattern, containing a singleton, and quite correctly decided that according to the Law of Symmetry there was a strong probability that the clubs would not break 2-2. Since West had overcalled when vulnerable, it seemed quite likely that the West hand contained a singleton club. North accordingly finessed against the Queen of clubs in the East hand and was thereby enabled to avoid the loss of a trump trick. Thus even though the diamond finesse subsequently lost, the contract of six odd was fulfilled.

Correct Manners

Cousin's Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I received a letter from my aunt that her daughter will be married early this month. Kindley let me know what is the best thing for me to do, as I have no one to give me any information on this? The letter states "requests the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter."

I have never attended a wedding and do not care to attend this wedding either. What is generally done in a case like this? FRED.

The invitation you quote from is the one to the formal church ceremony, and it is not necessary to acknowledge this. If inclosed with this invitation there is an invitation to the reception afterward (an invitation that reads, "requests the pleasure of your company"), you must acknowledge this invitation. Your answer reads:

Mr. Frederick Parker regrets that he is unable to accept
Mrs. Henry Allen's kind invitation for Tuesday, the first of August at five o'clock

And, since you are so closely related to the bride, you will probably wish to send her a wedding present. This you address to the bride-to-be, and send to her home. Anything for the new home is appropriate for you to send.

Troopers Interested in Expedition

"Rather," I gasped as I saw the state trooper turning around in his car to look at us. "It's an officer. Do you suppose he suspects anything?"

"Steady, child!" my father said as he imperturbably broke off another branch of autumn leaves and held them out, apparently for my inspection. "He probably is giving us only the cursory glance that he bestows upon every person doing anything the least bit out of the ordinary."

"I'll put these in for more camouflage," he continued, getting in the car again and putting the autumn leaves against the window, where they could be plainly seen by any passer by.

Otto was leaning down his seat and my father craned his neck out of the window and gave him a terse direction.

And the conviction ...ened when, as we passed ..., after a short warning blast of the horn had made the young man look toward us, my father leaned out and gesturing toward the road in front called out:

"Keep on going until we come back and pick you up."

"Oke!" Bob had time for no more than the monosyllable before we were well past him, and my father spoke into the tube.

"You're permitted 35 on this ...ad. Go that but no more, ...til I signal you to stop."

...tto touched his cap and sent ... car along as my father had ...rected. I noticed that my ...ther was scanning first one ... of the road and then ... ...er, and I mustered up courage to say quietly:

"Let me watch the right side ...her, while you watch the left ...u want to find out where th... troopers went, don't you?"

He was too poised to start, and he did not turn his head, but he waited several seconds before answering me.

"Yes, watch the right side," he said, and added quietly a little later:

"You have very keen perceptions, my daughter."

The rueful note in his voice was overbalanced by the pride in me that was vibrant in it, and I felt my throat catch as it always does at the frequent evidences of his strong love for me.

TROOPERS WATCH

"Where you are concerned, sometimes I think I am clairvoyant," I said a bit huskily, and caught my breath the next second, as I looked down a narrow road we were passing and saw the car of the state troopers with the men in it patiently watching the road.

They must have gone into the road and turned around, or else backed down into it, for the front of the car was turned toward us.

"They are down that road," I said to my father, when we were well past it.

He did not speak for a second, then he spoke into the tube again.

"Slow down to twenty-eight and keep at that pace," he commanded. Then he leaned back in the seat and put his hand again over mine.

"Now we shall see what they are going to do," he said.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Take off weight if you must, scale-crusher, but don't delete all your curves. Until the age of 35, it is desirable to be slightly overweight, after that be careful; if fat cells start to collect then they will build rapidly.

Curls and ringlets have had such a rage that smooth, straight, sleek hair makes the brunette distinguished—if she is the right type for it. When locks have a lovely sheen and listen, and hair is thick, the effect is smart and voguey.

PEEK TO CHANGE FOREIGN TRADE PROGRAM

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The significant aspect of the statement by George N. Peek, special foreign trade advisor to the President, concerning the plans for operating the second export - import bank, which he heads, is that his general recommendations concerning new-style foreign trade bookkeeping will be put into effect.

Mr. Rukeyser

Peek made it clear that he is not in favor of exports per se, but only of exports which are profitable. Peek's viewpoint is that it is foolish to exchange American merchandise for uncollectible foreign promises to pay. If goods are to be given away, he thinks that charity should begin at home. By analogy, he would exercise the same type of credit scrutiny toward foreign countries which department stores and wholesale firms in this country show in passing on the request for credit of individuals.

In his recent statement, Peek gave the clue to the new policy, when he said:

"I would like to remind the public at large that the operation of this bank will be carried on in line with a definite knowledge, in so far as we are able to obtain it, of the current incoming and outgoing accounts of the United States. I believe in assisting our foreign trade, but I also believe in making sure that we get paid for it."

Obvious as the new policy sounds, it breaks with the traditional setup. In the past, propagandists glibly assumed that foreign trade at any price was a boon to the country. They paid no attention to whether we received any equivalent values in return.

If our exports are to be paid for in imports, as Peek's philosophy implies, then we must reconcile ourselves, as would be proper, to a discontinuance of the so-called favorable balance of trade.

If bookkeeping is adhered to, there will be little need of so-called arbitrage stabilization of foreign exchange rates and parities. International trade will become an interchange of goods and services for goods and services, though frequently the movement will be triangular instead of in straight lines.

In the past, England was long able to take care of trade deficits through financial operations in the London money market.

TRADING DULL IN COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Cotton futures opened barely steady 2 higher to 2 lower with continued dry hot weather in the western belt offset by indifferent Liverpool cables and liquidation. October, 13.04; December, 13.15; January, 13.21; March, 13.31; May, 13.38; July, 13.46.

Trading was only moderately active. Buying on the unfavorable view of the weather news was restricted by uncertainty as to the showing of next week's government crop report and nervousness over the European situation. But the comparatively light offerings were really absorbed with the market working up a few points right after the call. December advanced to 13.21 and March to 13.36 with active months generally showing net gains of about 2 to 6 points at the end of the first half hour.

Steel, Inland, Blaw-Knox Increase Earnings

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

FAVORABLE REPORTS, reflecting increased business volume in the second quarter, continue to accumulate.

United States Steel yesterday announced that it had crossed the line between profits and losses for the first time since the third quarter of 1931.

Inland Steel increased its earnings for the period to such an extent that directors declared a dividend of 25 cents a share, the first since March 17, 1932.

The Blaw-Knox Company reported a profit for the first half of this year in comparison with a deficit in the corresponding period of last year.

Current conditions in the steel trade make it unlikely that United States Steel and Inland will be able to duplicate these results in the third quarter, but Blaw-Knox has orders on hand which lead to the belief that its earnings will be greater in the second half of the year than they were in the first half.

Steel Profits Show Increase

STEEL PROFIT of United States Steel for the June quarter was $4,[illegible] after all charges, equivalent to $1.48 a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock. Directors made no change in the quarterly dividend payment of 87½ cents a share. In the preceding quarter net loss was $6,989,965. A year ago it was $8,627,367.

In the second quarter Inland Steel had a net profit of $2,129,098 after all charges, equivalent to $1.77 a share on the capital stock. In the previous quarter net profit was $1,104,537 or 92 cents a share. A year ago it was $25,761 or 2 cents a share.

Blaw-Knox Has Better Outlook

IN ANNOUNCING Blaw-Knox's net profit of $105,213 or 8 cents a share for the quarter, A. C. Lehman, president, said that orders on hand insure operations at a fairly satisfactory rate for the next two months. Federal construction projects, which have been slow in developing, are beginning to materialize. The company expects to share in this business to a substantial extent through the supplying of steel forms for concrete work, machinery for grading and mixing concrete. A year ago the company had a net loss of $102,075.

Several large contracts for brewing equipment are nearing completion. Little new brewery construction work is in prospect, but plans are being considered by many organizations in the industry to modernize old plants.

Blaw-Knox is getting a fairly large volume of business in the construction of welded and stainless steel equipment for the chemical industry.

Earnings in the first half of the year were affected adversely by the increases in wages and cost due to the NRA. Prices at l[illegible] becoming adjusted to this

The company's German subsidiary is being liquidated. Owing to difficulties in transferring foreign exchange, part of the funds in Germany are being invested in securities which may be expected to benefit by inflation. These German funds are not carried as assets on the balance sheet of the American company.

STOCKS RISE ON QUIET MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Financial markets generally displayed an upward trend today despite the lack of fresh news incentives and continuance of trading dullness.

Stocks stepped up fractions to around 2 or more points, as various operators picked up selected issues on the theory that "something" must happen to pull the market out of its stalemate. Many European and domestic situations, however, were still cloudy and there was no rush of buyers to the slow ascent.

GRAINS GAIN

Grains rallied 1 to nearly 2 cents a bushel before profit taking appeared. Cotton firmed on additional adverse crop weather reports, but met realizing. Silver futures were higher. Rubber lagged. Secondary bonds were in demand at better prices, although prime investment issues were almost at a standstill.

Shares of United States Smelting and Homestake got up about 2 points each, and other metals up a point or so included Howe Sound, American Smelting, Dome, McIntyre and Alaska Juneau. California Packing advanced 2 to a new high for the year and Armour of Illinois preferred (new) gained more than 3.

STOCKS HIGHER

Among others, up 1 to around 2 were American Telephone, United States Steel common and preferred, du Pont, American Sugar Refining, Auburn, Corn Products, American Can, Borden, Chrysler, Case, Allied Chemical, Westinghouse, American Commercial Alcohol, Schenley, Johns-Manville, Santa Fe, Union Pacific and United Fruit. The rails and utilities were quiet. Wright Aeronautical jumped 5 points in scattered 10-share transactions. United Aircraft and Douglas steadied.

Most commentators were extremely cautious in their forecasts of equity movements, pointing out that about all that can be said stock-marketwise is that selling pressure appears to have tapered off and a gradual technical recovery over the next few days is entirely within the grounds of probability.

STEEL OUTPUT FALLS BACK

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Iron Age says: "Negative influences continue in the ascendancy in the iron and steel trade and ingot production has declined 1½ points to 26 per cent of capacity, the lowest rate, with the exception of the first week in July, since the first of the year. In face of seasonal influences and the general preoccupation of consumers with the absorption of stocks, mills are entering August with extraordinarily small backlogs.

"The recession in steel business in July was even sharper than had been expected. Shipments declined even more than production.

"Tin mill output has slipped 5 points to 45 per cent during the week and seems headed for further curtailment in view of the heavy stocks in the hands of consumers.

"Drought remains a serious threat not only to the purchasing power of farmers and the activity of farm equipment makers and other industries directly dependent on agriculture, but also to the revenues of the railroads, which face heavy losses in traffic."

World Consumption Of U. S. Cotton Less

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1.—Secretary Hester, of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange in his annual statement estimates world consumption of American cotton during the season ended July 31 including linters at 14,472,000 bales, against 15,307,000 in the preceding season and 13,331,000 two seasons ago.

Excluding linters, the estimate is 13,537,000 bales, as against 14,424,000 and 12,580,000 bales respectively.

KAUFFMANN, CAMPBELL GAIN PUBLINKS 2ND ROUN

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Boxer-Wrestler Debate.

While the Davis Cup and world honors in tennis again have eluded the United States, to remain in England for at least another year, Americans may well feel proud of the gallant though unsuccessful effort made by their team to recover the famous trophy, which has been in Europe since 1927. England's victory was decisive and well deserved, and there can be no doubt of the superiority of Fred Perry and Bunny Austin over our singles players, leaving the winning of the doubles as Uncle Sam's only consolation in the series of five matches, but at that a heap of credit is due to this country players for the way they fought up to and including the challenge round.

Fred Perry

The young United States team exceeded all expectations and accomplished one of the most astounding feats in cup history in conquering Australia in the inter-zone final after losing the first two matches of the string, and the struggle put up by Frank Shields yesterday in making Perry go 28 games to win the deciding set and match, 15-13, the longest singles battle in 20 years and the second longest on record in the challenge round, will long stand out as one of the gamest fights ever seen in trophy competition. Sidney Wood's let-down in the closing match against Austin was due only to the fact that the cup was out of reach and he had no incentive to extend himself. He showed last week what he could do under pressure by his great victory over Jack Crawford. The Americans never had been expected to win the cup this year, and they earned no little glory in fighting as well as they did. It isn't whether you won or lost, but how you played the game.

ONLY ONE MEDALIST PUBLINKS WINNER

No doubt somebody will have to play a lot of golf to beat out Scotty Campbell for the national public links championship. The Seattle crack had proved his class before he came here by winning the Canadian amateur, Northwest amateur and other titles, and he gave further evidence of it on the South Park course Monday and yesterday by winning the medal honors of the tournament with the impsessive score of 144—one stroke under par on the first round and one over on the second.

But a medal victory does not assure the winning of the public links championship. On the contrary, it appears to have been something of a jinx, for in the previous 12 annual tournaments only one medalist ever came through the subsequent match play to win the title. The lone exception was our own Carl F. Kauffmann, at St. Louis, in 1929. Campbell will have to escape to fate of 11 predecessors to win out. Pittsburgh's two qualifiers, Kauffmann and Andy Szwedka, rank with those most likely to give him a fight for the crown.

CHANCE FOR BYRD TO PROVE HUG'S WORDS

Playing regularly in the Yankee outfield because of the loss of Earl Combs, Sam Byrd at last has a chance to live up to the prediction made for him by the late Miller Huggins in 1928. Huggins declared Byrd had some of the style of Ross Young and some of the grace of Ty Cobb, and ought to go far. In the intervening years, Sam has been knocking around on the Yankee club without getting an opportunity to improve by playing every day, but he gets his chance now, and the pennant hopes of the McCarthys will hinge largely on the way he performs.

Sam Byrd

Baseball men see no good reason why the Yankee management should be crying for outfield help. Even though Babe Ruth must be rested now and then, McCarthy has Byrd, Ben Chapman, Myril Hoag and Dixie Walker. Many a club is getting along with less capable material for the grass patrol. Look at the Tigers, for instance. They're putting up a great fight for the pennant with a feeble picket line that makes the Yankee outfield look like a bunch of Tris Speakers in comparison. To get a line on the ineptitude of Mickey Cochrane's fly-chasers, consider the surprising fact that the Detroit outfield has made more errors than the infield, one of the strangest situations ever known on a pennant-bidding club.

TOM AND JOHN IN BATTLE OF RELICS

Some boxing promoters never allow facts to stand in their way when they are trying to sell a show to the public, but a new high for misrepresentation is reported in the advertising of the 10-round bout between Tommy Loughran and Johnny Risko, scheduled for tonight in Freeport, L. I. A huge sign on the highway near the arena announces the fight is for the heavyweight championship.

The only title at stake on the affair is the heavyweight championship of Freeport, and about the only thing the battle of the fistic relics will show is which of the principals is nearer to the Queensberry exit. It will be the fifth meeting of the pair, but neither retains much of the stuff that caused their previous tilts to attract wide attention. Possibly Loughran will come out with an edge on account of his boxing ability, but beating Risko, if he succeeds in doing it, will not indicate by any means that he is qualified for any further operations among the top-flight heavies.

LONDOS ON FIGHTER-WRESTLER MATCH

The ancient argument as to what would be the outcome of a match between a heavyweight fighter and a wrestler was put up to Jim Londos, mat champion. He was asked if he thought he could defeat Max Baer. Londos replied that his success would depend on his ability to reach Baer before Max could land on him. If that right connected, there would be no chance for the grappler, Jim admitted, as Max's right will stop anyone.

Jim Londos

In trying to beat Baer, Londos says he would dive for the fighter's ankles, so that Max would not have a chance to land a full right or an uppercut. "He would have to hit down and the blow would not carry much force if it landed," Jim argues, "and I doubt that it would land, because Baer never has tried to hit objects coming at him knee high. I am sure I would not miss with my dive. I'd get hold of his legs and I'd throw him, and when he hit the mat or the rest would be easy for me."

Londos figures that such matches would depend to a great extent on the individuals. A wrestler coming in high should not stand much chance against a fighter who could hit hard and accurately. The boxer would swing an uppercut, and the wrestler rushing in with his head down would be a very easy mark for the fighter. It's all a question of style, Jim thinks. Some wrestlers would be easy for certain boxers, and vice versa.

PIRATES MAY GET O'FARRELL FROM REDS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

In view of the wobbly condition of the Pirate battery department, many followers of the club today expressed the hope that Manager Pie Traynor would snag Catcher Bob O'Farrell, deposed Redland leader, a smart baseball man who should be able to teach the Buccaneer pitchers some things they ought to know.

O'Farrell is still the property of the Cincinnati club, but a team wishing to assume the salary responsibility probably would be able to acquire Bob over the waiver route. In the event of the Reds asking clearance on the veteran catcher, the Pittsburgh club would have the third preference, only the Phils and Dodgers being lower than them in the race, aside from the Reds.

COULD USE VET

Neither the Dodgers nor the Phils have any catching crisis while the Pittsburgh catching staff has folded up like a deflated gas bag. O'Farrell is 37, but Bob is an athlete who always has taken fine care of himself.

The utter collapse of Ralph Birkofer is partly due to the fact that he has been taught but little since he joined the Pirates. Birky's weakness has been pointed out to him by Traynor, who noted that the recruit was throwing every pitch with the same identical motion, the while he was showing the balls plainly to the hitters.

Traynor is on the warpatch for a catcher, as well as for several other reasons. Before he left with his club, Traynor admitted that his receiving set was in a deplorable shape, so that Pie may make an effort to get O'Farrell. He would be wise in doing so. When O'Farrell was in charge of the St. Louis pitchers he had them in a pennant stride.

CHANGES ON WAY

Traynor is apt to make some sweeping changes in the Pittsburgh lineup unless things take a turn for the better soon. The new pilot of the club is just about at the end of his patience. Pie figures that several members are not hustling like they should, and when he strikes he probably will swing with some force. The spectacle of players getting princely salaries and loafing on the job is not an edifying one.

Arky Vaughan may find himself on the bench pronto if his work doesn't change. Vaughan was anything but an asset to the club on the long Eastern tour and his fielding in the first game at Cincinnati yesterday was worse than one would expect to see in a high school performer. Either Tommy Thevenow or Pep Young is likely to push Vaughan out of the lineup.

Leopold Salvator, Archduke of Austria (1863-1931), being denied the command of an army in the World War was consoled by an appointment as Inspector of Artillery. As such he began to engage in large army deliveries of dried vegetables on his own account. The soldiers referred to him as Dorrgemus-Salvator (Salvator of the dried vegetables) and his product was known as "Salvatorkraut" (Salvator Herbs) or "Dratverhau" ("barbed wire"). His false spinach, of which he supplied $2,000,000 worth to the Army, did not cost him a cent. Convalescent soldiers in hospitals, receiving two cents a day from the Government, were required to collect nettles in the field. These were dried and sold by the Archduke to the Government as spinach.

MILLER, CHAMP IN 1932, BOWS IN UPSET

By TOM BIRKS

SOUTH PARK, Aug. 1.—Albert (Scotty) Campbell, of Seattle, the medalist, who defeated Mike Cestone, of Elizabeth, N. J. 5 and 3, in the first round this morning, is clashing with Byron [illegible] of Columbus, O. in the second round of match play in the National public links championship at South Park this afternoon. The department store clerk from the Pacific Coast was trailed by a big gallery as he started out by hitting a perfect tee shot.

Scotty took his time on the initial shot in the afternoon round, as his effort this morning landed him in all kinds of trouble. He missed the out of bounds by inches, and wound up with a 7, losing the hole.

KAUFFMANN WINS

Carl Kauffman, Pittsburgh's three times winner of the title, also drew a big gallery as he battled Lorraine Young, San Antonio, in the second round. Carl found his putting touch in the first round match with Bill Johnson, of Moline, Ill., and won by the decisive score of 5 and 4.

Other second round matches finding favor with the galleries are Johnny Lucas, of Sharon, opposing Fred Gordon, of Santa Monica; Al Preibe, of St. Paul, opposing Frank Babis, of Detroit; Jim Jewett, who eliminated Bob Miller, the 1932 champion, this morning, opposing Pat Abbott, of hole-in-one fame.

Johnny Ross is playing Bill Kingsbury, and Bruce McCormick is battling it out with Frank Stratfici, of Brooklyn. The Ross-Kingsbury match should be a thriller, for both boys played perfect golf this morning.

MILLER BEATEN

The defeat of Miller, 2 and 1, by Jewett, 1932 champion and runned-up last year, was the most startling upset which the morning round provided.

Johnny Lucas, Sharon boy who hitch-hiked his way to the championship, survived his first round match. He put out Dom Soccilli, of New Britain, Conn., 1 up. It was a nip and tuck motch throughout, and the Sharon goungster flashed plenty of mettle in winning.

Henry Foley, of Chicago, one of the pre-tourney favorites, was beaten by Fred Gordon, of Santa Monica, Cal., 2 and 1.

Al Preibe, of St. Paul, passed into the second round when he defeated L. Janeski, of Elizabeth, N. J., 3 and 2, and Charley Amandoles, of New York, put out Robert Kolle, of Long Beach, Cal., 2 and 1.

Detroit placed a man in the second round when Frank Bibis

Vaughan dropped a pop fly in the second inning of the opener with the bases jammed and two out. The loft in the sun got away from the Pirate infielder and all three of the Redlegs went over. The home team made four runs in the inning, but the Pirates fought from behind to a deadlock. Brennan and Kleinhans opposed French.

The Reds scored their winning counters in the eighth on Hafey's double, Pool's safe bunt, Lombardi's single, Padden's error and Comorosky's long fly.

Florida Golfer Would Copy Habits of Mountain Goat

By JESS CARVER

It will be the lasting regret of Bob Miller's life that he didn't take up mountain climbing instead of shipbuilding and baking, especially if he fails to win his second national public links golf title in the present tournament at South Park.

The 22-year-old Jacksonville, Fla., lad had his alibi all set and ready in case he's beaten in the match play competition which got under way today. Said alibi will be that he has none of the assets that go to make a mountain goat.

The slender, 135-pound Florida lad, who won the national title in 1932, and lost to Charley Ferrera at Portland in the final round a year ago, has taken part in five national tourneys, but never before, he says, has he been called upon to do so much hill climbing. He'll tell you:

"Boy, what a course. It's a swell layout and a darn good test, but those hills. Whew! My legs are tied up tighter than a drum. You have more hills to the square mile around here than we have in the entire state of Florida and no cracks about hurricanes or real estate salesmen, either."

The former champion qualified for the championship flight yesterday when he scored a 76, which, with his 78 of the first round, gave him a neat 154. Like many other of the players, he had putter trouble. He'll tell you that a guy can get himself lost on the South Park greens.

Bob is of the opinion that the national muny event is getting faster and more classy each year. The competition, he thinks, is about as tough as the competition in any tournament. Certain he is that such is the case as far as this one is concerned.

The young man was willing to dwell at length on the art of putting, and on what happens to a chap's game when the old touch departs for stations unknown. He says:

"I've had trouble with my putter all year. I lost the Jacksonville city title when I blew an 18-inch putt. It was a downhill roll and as I stepped up to the ball, some one in the crowd cracked:

"Miller's afraid of this one."

"That remark so unnerved me that I turned my wrist and the putt looked like a drive."

Miller is the only golfer in his family. He says his folks won't stand for any more. He has two brothers and two sisters who root for him all the way, but won't fool with the game themselves.

Asked if there was anything that might be done to make his stay here more pleasant, he said:

"Yes, you might turn off the fans. I'm tired of having my drives blown back in my face."

TEE SHOTS

One of the most remarkable recovery shots of the tournament, or for that matter, of any tournament, was exploded by Charley Amandolea, of New York. His drive from the No. 13 tee plopped directly behind a big tree to the left of the fairway ... laying him what appeared to be a perfect stymie. Charlie, however, smashed a hook, a thing of beauty (and to Charles, a joy forever) that carried directly for the pin and landed on the apron of the green.

The No. 13 green resembled a shooting gallery, what with the boys playing No. 1 plopping their second and third shots on the green and the boys playing 13 matching 'em. For a time, there were more balls on the green than on a pool table.

If Al Preibe, the St. Paul lad, had been a southpaw he'd have had less trouble with his second shot on No. 1. His drive landed in a sandtrap to the right of the fairway, just close enough to the hillside to make it tough for a right hander. A southpaw would have had a clear shot for the green.

The derbies of the newspapermen are being doffed to Bill Schragen and his Western Union staff for the splendid co-operation and assistance. Covering a major golf tournament comes under the heading of work, and don't let anyone kid you. Bill and his aides are willing to go out of their way to aid the scribes, even to helping check the scoreboard.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Burns were among the gallerytes yesterday and stuck loyally along with Arthur Armstrong, the pleasant Englishman from Hawaii, even after he blew completely skyward. Dr. Dave Archibald, Joe Singer and Paul Allison were included in the huge Ferrera-Campbell-Nordstrom gallery.

Pat Abbott, of Alfadena, Cal., who smacked himself into the hole-in-one hall of fame on No. 8, found No. 15 somewhat different a proposition and put his first shot into the woods. He teed up again and drove to within a yard of the green. Abbott, by the way, used a brassie to record his ace.

Armstrong, temperamental as Rubinoff's violin, again found his putter distinctly contrary. His repertoire of shots compares favorably with those of any player in the field, but he would have been as well off with a pool cue as his putter yesterday. Several of his putts rimmed the cup or went bouncing over.

Galleries, conspicuous by their absence during the morning, turned out in full measure by noon time. Carl Kauffmann, Al Priebe and Eric Lenans drew the first good-sized gallery, about 200 following them on their round.

Kauffmann, who's putting opening day was not what it should have been, gave the practice green a good hour's workout prior to teeing off. He was especially careful of the short ones.

KAUFFMANN, CAMPBELL ADVANCE

stopped Jim Madara, of Philadelphia, 1 up, and Pat Abbott, the smiling Irish boy from Alaiadena, Cal., who clicked with that hole-in-one yesterday afternoon, pulled a surprise by beating W. L. Reipen, of St. Joseph, Mo., 3 and 1.

Frank Strathci, of Brooklyn, entered the second round when he stopped Bob Babish, of Detroit, 6 and 5, and Bill Kingsbury, of Buffalo, scored the most decisive victory of the first round, beating W. Lovelbury, of Columbus, 7 and 6.

NICHOLS DEFEATED

Another upset was recorded when Mike Balega, of Minneapolis, eliminated Joe Nichols, Jr., of Long Branch, 4 and 2. Nichols putted himself out of the tourney, one four-putt and five three-putt greens starting him on the way home. Nichols was runner-up in 1931 at Louisville, and medalist in 1932.

Mal Kennedy, of San Francisco, lost to Lorraine Young, of San Antonio, 1 up, and Wilbur Kokes, of Chicago, defeated Al Fordham, of St. Paul, 3 and 2.

Clyde Mumma, of Dayton, won in peculiar fashion from Jim Stevenson, of Long Branch, 3 and 2. Mumma was 3 up at the turn, and every hole played on the last nine was halved.

Don Erickson, of the Los Angeles team, went into the second round when he defeated Jim Mislan, of Gary, Ind., 6 and 5.

Bruce McCormick, the Los Angeles city champion, and captain of the Harding Cup championship team, thrilled the large gallery by sinking a 45-foot putt on the seventeenth green to win over Lorraine Bradford, of St. Joseph, 2 and 1. A couple of stymies helped the boy from the Pacific Coast into the second round.

Mike Eiko, of Elizabeth, N. J., defeated Bert Bergman, of St. Paul, 3 and 1. D. A. Mitchell, of Indianapolis, put out Frank Gilbert, of Altadena, 8 and 7.

TODAY'S QUESTIONS

How good is your memory of sports events, heroes and dates? Can you answer these questions?

1—From which college team did Owen Carroll join the Detroit Tigers?

2—From which university did Hal Schumacher join the New York Giants?

3—In what year and with which club did Rabbit Maranville lead the National League second basemen in fielding?

4—Which opponent has proved most troublesome to Ted Yaross during his boxing career?

5—What is the nickname of Pepper Martin, of the Cardinals?

(Answers in Want Ad section tomorrow. See today's Want Ad section for answers to yesterday's questions.)

RAMAGE BEATS ROSENBLOOM

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.—Meeting for the third time in recent weeks, Lee Ramage, San Diego (Cal.) heavyweight scored a decision over Maxie Rosenbloom, world light-heavyweight champion, in a non-title battle before 9,000 fans at the Olympic Club last night.

Their first fight, several weeks ago, resulted in a draw and Ramage won the second.

M'CALL LEADS CONSOLATION

A surprisingly large field of 87 of the players who failed to qualify for the National Public Links match play rounds was competing in the 36-hole consolation tournament over the North Park course today for prizes donated by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Guy McCall, of Buffalo, had the lowest score among the earlier finishers in the first 18-hole round, coming in with a 43-36—79.

James Gebbe, of Alcedena, Cal., scored even 40s for an 80, and M. Stefanchick, of Gary, Ind., registered 41-39—80.

Par for the course is 36-36—72.

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER,
Former Star, Now Coach at Pirates.

To the Sports Editor:

I don't think this foreign propaganda stuff will get anybody who tries it very much. We are a pretty easy-going people and don't get excited until there is something to get excited about. And, sooner or later, we find out what's going on. Those nations that hire people in other countries to ballyhoo them ought to save their money and learn that the only propaganda we believe ever here is evidence that they are on the level and treat all of their citizens like human beings. The trouble is we are so used to our own fair and square government since 1776 that we really don't understand anything else. Regards,

HONUS WAGNER.

GRIDDER LOSES FINGER

HALL DEFEATS MANGIN IN NET UPSET

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Only one of the seeded favorites fell by the wayside yesterday as the field reached the quarter final round in the forty-fourth annual Meadowbrook Invitation tennis tournament, but there was trouble for several strong competitors along the way.

J. Gilbert Hall, of South Orange, N. J., accounted for the major upset as he eliminated Gregory P. Mangin, former indoor champion and seconnd seeded star, 6-2, 8-6.

Hall will meet Henry Prusoff of Seattle, in the quarter final today. Prusoff, playing steady tennis, defeated Dwight F. Davis, Jr., son of the donor of the Davis Cup, 6-2, 6-3.

Do You Need Back Numbers?

It will be recalled that owing to the late demand many entrants in the recent "Know Your Own City" contest were unable to get back numbers. This condition may be avoided by entrants in the "Know Your Neighbor" Contest by sending for missing pictures in their sets at once. Do not delay until the supply is exhausted. Send in the numbers of the pictures wanted with 3 cents for each. Address "Know Your Neighbor" Contest Editor, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The names employed in the "Know Your Neighbor" contest pictures are selected from the telephone and city directories. Only the surname is to be used ... such as "Jones," "Smith," "Anderson," "Wilkins" ... in writing the answer below each picture. DO NOT USE the complete names or initials as printed in the daily lists ... just the surnames set in the larger type ... as the parties listed are not in any way personally identified with the cartoon.

PLEASE NOTE! Do not send in any pictures until the end of the contest. Rules and other information, heretofore printed, will be reprinted from time to time.

INSTANT HOT WATER HEATERS PAY THEIR COST IN SAVINGS

He: "Our old hot water heater certainly must be rusty from the looks of this linen . . . We better replace it before winter with an automatic heater."

She: "Rusty isn't all . . . it causes no end of trouble in washing and you know how it soils the bathroom fixtures, too. It's getting to be a terrible expense."

BUY NOW AT AUGUST SAVINGS

Aside from the arguments advanced above in favor of the replacement of old style hot water heaters you will find the advertisements of Pittsburgh automatic hot water heater dealers stressing their economy of operation, their efficiency without care ... and best of all, their price, which is now within the reach of all. They also can be purchased on easy deferred payment plans. Read their advertisements in the Sun-Telegraph today.

YANKS AGAIN TAKE AMERICAN LEAGUE LEAD FROM TIGE

GEHRIG, GOMEZ AND RUTH STAR IN DUAL WIN

Associated Press.

Like a couple of wild-eyed kids on a merry-go-round, the New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers whirled dizzily around today, still snatching for the American League brass ring, and this time the Yanks had a finger on it.

In one full month of July, just closed, the Yankees and the Tigers have been bouncing in and out of first place like the famous Mr. Donnegan. Three times since July 1 the Tigers were on top and four times the Yankees. The Yanks started the month in front and first did manage to finish there.

With such familiar persons as George Herman Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Vernon Gomez figuring largely in the proceedings, the Yanks wiggled back yesterday before the month closed on them, by winning two games from the Boston Red Sox, 11 to 2 and 2 to 1, as the Tigers were dividing a double-header with the Cleveland Indians.

TRIBE LOSES MYATT

A record week-day crowd of 25,000 in Cleveland had their day spoiled two ways. The Indians, with Joe Vosmik leading a 15-hit attack on three tired Tiger pitchers, took the first game 9 to 7, but lost the second 4 to 2 and with it the services of Glenn Myatt, first-string catcher, who broke his right ankle sliding home in the third inning.

Sam Jones pitched the White Sox to a 5-to-2 victory over the Browns in a duel with George Blaeholder, and the Athletics took another fall out of the tumbling Senators, 8 to 2.

Lon Warneke provided the National League thrills of the day as he rounded out the July 2 game the St. Louis Cardinals protested with two scoreless innings to give the Cubs a 7-to-1 victory that had never been changed from the records. He stayed in, then, and pitched the regular day's game with the Cards, winning 7 to 2 before a crowd of 25,000. The first proven mistake of Umpire Bill Klem's career, a decision on an infield fly overruled by League President John A. Heydler, forced playing the two innings over.

CUBS GAIN GROUND

With the Giants bowing, 4 to 1, before the Braves in Boston due to the combination of Huck Bett's pitching and Pinky Whitney's home run, the Cubs pulled up within 2½ games of the league leaders.

Curt Davis pitched the Phillies to a 4-to-2 victory over the Dodgers, his fifteenth of the season, and the Pirates got exactly nowhere with the Reds, winning the second game, 7 to 5, in 11 innings after losing the first, 6 to 4.

Mt. Lebanon Tennis Play Pairings Set

Three senior division games will feature the opening of the playoff series in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's Western Pennsylvania Amateur Softball tournament this evening. The winner of the final round will be sent to Chicago to represent the West Penn area in the National tournament, September 8, 9 and 10.

The Commercial Garage team, champion of Bracket V, will oppose the American Fruit Growers, winner of Bracket I, on the Peabody High School Field; the S. A. O'Tooles, of Hazelwood, runner-up in Bracket III, clash with the Hungry 9 Club, of Carnegie, on the Schenley High School diamond, and the Koppers Coal team, which defeated the U. S. Engineers in a playoff game to get a place in the playoffs, meets the E. J. Noffz, of Lawrenceville, at Washington Park.

Irving Brenner, who has won seven games for the Commercials, is Manager Maxie Rosenberg's selection to pitch against the Fruit Growers. Brenner, besides being a fine hurler, is a very good batter.

Tom McKenna, of the O'Tooles, probably will get the call to pitch against the Hungry Club. Danny Hagan, who has been doing most of the pitching, will be in the outfield for the O'Tooles. He is one of the best hitters for the Hazelwood outfit.

Claus J. Olfe, who pitched the Koppers into the playoffs, probably will do the pitching for his team. Manager Henry Noftz has Stanley McCoskey and Stanley Bazalewski in readiness.

Johnny Goodry's Snubs A. C. team came from behind in the last inning to defeat the Campbell Lunch Shamrocks and Pitcher Anthony Oskin, who is the ace flinger of the staff, 6 to 5, yesterday on the Peabody High School Field. George Farmar, of the Snubs, yielded only three hits and struck out eight. It was Eddie Clarke's single in the last inning that gave the Snubs team its victory. Oskin hit a home run.

Personalities In Softball

Dominick Bartirome is rated with the best softball outfielders in the city. He is the star center fielder of the Commercial Garage team, which won the Bracket V championship of the senior division by defeating the Fort Black Community Club in a playoff game. His outfielding in this game was wonderful. Dominick, besides being a fine fielder, is one of the hardest hitters in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's tournament. Dominick has a strong pair of hands, and his accurate throws have caught many enemy baserunners trying to score.

D. Bartirome

The Pioneer team, of Carnegie, boasts a classy shortstop in little Alexander Curran, who has been fielding and hitting in great style. His team has lost only one game and that to the Commercials in the junior division of Bracket II, and has qualified for the playoffs. Alex captains the Pioneers and is one of the leading hitters on the team. He graduated from St. Luke's High School last June, earning four letters in basketball and football. The Carnegie entry has lost only three games out of 36.

JOEY SPEIGAL LOSES WEIRD DECISION

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Joey Speigal, Uniontown southpaw welterweight boxer, showed more stuff last night in beating Tiger Joe Randall, Negro puncher, of Elizabeth, in the 10-round main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, than ever before in a local ring, winning handily all of the way after the second round—and he didn't get a single vote from the judges or the referee.

The crowd booed its amazement when the award was announced, and Joey, who was celebrating the first anniversary of his secret wedding, was as flabbergasted as his opponent was shockingly surprised. Judge Phil Scello voted for a draw and Judge Jock Simco and Referee Red Robinson for Randall.

DOMINATES BATTLE

Speigal completely dominated the fight. He started off slowly and permitted Randall to outscore him in the first two sessions, but thereafter hit the Tiger at will, holding him off with a long right hand and socking home lefts. He cut Joe's left eye early and never was in trouble himself. At times he was a bit off the line with some fancy open-gloved mugging and slapping at close quarters, for which he was warned once in his corner by the referee, and there was some low hitting on both sides, but nothing was as foul as the decision.

Johnny Durso, of Oakland, got a tough break in the other scheduled 10-round bout when he lost by a technical knockout to Mike Barto, of New Kensington, after 59 seconds of the ninth round. Referee Joe Zivic stopping the fight to save Durso from further abuse of a badly cut nose, which was bleeding profusely.

DURSO LOSES TOUGH ONE

Durso was far ahead on points at the time, as a result of his consistent scoring throughout, while Barto, who complained of an injury to his punching hand, was wild and ineffective until he finally opened the cut late in the eighth round. Immediately Durso began to hold and he was clinching from the start of the ninth round until the referee finally intervened, whereupon Johnny protested violently, but finally was quieted down. A right to the head knocked down Barto for no count in the first round.

Jimmy Belmont's greater experience proved too much for Jack Dalcherone, Springdale middleweight, and he punched out a victory in a hard-punching eight-rounder in which he jolted Dalcherone with a left hook in the first round and dropped him for a short count in the third.

Nick Maloy bested Chuck Mullins in the five-round opener.

A fair-sized crowd witnessed the bouts after a night's postponement.

Sharon Golfer Thumbs Way Here and Qualifies

John Lucas Makes Grade in Title Tournament

John Lucas had to work his way to the National Public Links golf tournament at South Park.

John is by way of being one of those Buhl Club players, of Sharon, Pa.

He made an eleventh-hour decision to play, had no means of getting here and so hitch-hiked his way, thumbing rides where and when he could.

When he got on the scene he obtained permission to get into the field. No one paid much attention to him. There was talk of Charley Ferrera, the defending champion; Carl Kauffmann, thrice champion, Scotty Campbell and the other big names.

When the qaulifying round of 36 holes ended yesterday, the hitch-hiker was all in, all set for the match play eliminations today, and he won his first match over Dominick Socolli, New Britain, Conn., 1 up this morning.

It's an ennobling and an 'umblin' game—this golf.

DOUBLES STARS IN TOURNEY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The strongest dual field assembled for district competition to date this summer squares off for the start of the first annual Edgeworth Club invitation men's doubles tournament on the four clay courts of the club late this afternoon. Nearly two-score teams are arrayed for the festivities, which incidentally will continue daily until Sunday.

Chairman Charles A. Wood, Jr., went into a special huddle with his committeemen, Frank Stoner, Jr., and Bob Applegate yesterday and, after extra consultation with President Bob Schmertz, of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association, announced a powerful eight-team seeded list. The favored group is headed by the lately re-aligned P. A. A. pair of Dr. Dave O'Loughlin and his younger brother Billy. Second comes the brand new and quite formidable combine of Dr. John O'Loughlin and Sam Harrison. The pairings:

4:30 p. m.—Paul Barber and King Moore vs. Milton King and Sam Keller. Paul Massey and Ralph Massey vs. Robert Applevale and C. A. Woods, Jr. J. H. Moore and J. H. Miller, Jr., vs. C. H. Cochran and Edwin Flint; Frank Vrorda and McCook Reed vs. Jack Redmond and Art Glaser.

5:30 p. m.—W. M. Doolittle and F. R. Stoner vs. George Cooper and Richard Cooper; Robert Grier and H. M. Rimehart vs. Robert Madden and J. W. Madden; Edward Alcorn and Russ Unger vs. Paul Critchlow and Robert Crutchfield; E. A. Knoche and Neal Rumsey vs. Robert Lantus and Crosby Leyda.

6:30 p. m.—Will O'Loughlin and William O'Loughlin vs. J. D. Beatty and William Stimbler; Stephen Emery and A. D. McCabe vs. R. R. Miller and W. A. McCabe; H. E. Clark and W. J. Clardy vs. Ralph Baird and John Baird; John O'Loughlin and Sam Harbison vs. P. F. Smith and Austin Famaress.

THE KEED WINS

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Kid Chocolate, former featherweight champion, moved forward on the comeback trail last night by whipping Buster Brown, of Baltimore, decisively in an eight-round bout tought in the ring at the Coney Island Velodrome. Chocolate weighed 132 pounds, Brown 140½.

BOOKS BAT DORMONT LOOP LEA

Fighting for undisputed possession of first place in the League the Book nine, defending champion, meets Dormont on Dormont High School Field this evening.

The Books, at the present time have a slight edge, but the Dormonters feel that Lentz will have enough stuff to record his second victory over the champions in this game and throw the race into a deadlock.

Other games in the circuit find the J. J. Vaughans traveling to Mt. Oliver and Homewood meeting Parmelee at Frick Park.

The leaders all turned in easy triumphs in last evening's tilts, Dormont walloped Immaculate Heart, 13 to 2, Books crushed the Vaughans, 15 to 5, and Homewood downed Parmelee, 5 to 2.

The Homestead Grays will play the Fort Wayne Berghoffs at Forbes Field next Sunday afternoon in a benefit game, the proceeds of which will be turned over to the National Association for the Advancement of Negroes.

PETS

Last Into Eden

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

CHAPTER XI.

Jerome went to a window and tried to peer out through the slanting jalousies. It was too dark to see anything at all even if the room had not been lighted. There was no moon and the heavy shade shut out the radiance of the tropic sky.

Then they smelled a curious musky odor and heard a rustle that diminished. The creature was moving away as silently as a wild elephant is said to move in a thick jungle.

"That pet seems to object to our living in the master's house."

"Could it have been an elephant?"

"No. That wasn't an elephant's trumpeting."

"That sounds more like the name for it, blowing through a big thick horn. Maybe this hermit has a private zoo here."

"That's an idea. We're getting warm."

"It was rather like a bull stamping its hoof on hard turf."

Jerome thought of the queer musky smell that certainly was not bovine, but said nothing.

They had risen a little after dinner and were both tired. Linda went into the dark bare bedroom and shook her head. "I'm not going to sleep in there alone. Something might come pouncing through the window."

"I'll drag the settee across the window. If any specimen in this zoo sticks in its head I'll whale at it with the oar."

"The settee is too short. You are going to sleep on that bed beside me. Like a nice zoo crocodile."

VOYAGE BROADENING

"The trouble is you're not a crocodiless."

"Then I'll pretend to be one. It was bad enough last night when we thought we were up against nothing worse than native idiots. That thing that bellowed may have been a buffalo, but it sounded like an ogre to me."

He said ironically: "Night before last you couldn't bear the prospect of having me aboard the same yacht with you, and now you insist on having me in the same house. This voyage is broadening your views."

"Yes," she admitted, "if being scared to death is broadening. If we were wrecked on an iceberg I'd want the same sleeping arrangements, but it wouldn't be from a warmer feeling for you."

"No," he admitted. "I quite understand all that. We can lie there side by side and go through the full list of the other's failings—just as if we'd been married a few years too long."

"You're quick to catch an idea, Jerry. That saves me any possible bashfulness about the arrangement. Not that there's room for it when I'm waiting for some fresh horror to be sprung."

"All right, then," he agreed. "Let's turn in. If anything disturbs your slumber just sock me in the jaw."

"Don't worry. I'll do that thing . . . if it comes from you."

"No fear. I'll be a crocodile on ice. That romantic Tommy got us on his yacht, hoping we'd hit it off with each other. We would—with axes."

She observed coolly, "It's different on this horrible island with its varied samples of movie shockers. All the way from little devils to big dinosaurs. Aboard the yacht I felt like shrieking if you came near me; and here I'd shriek to heaven if you got 20 feet away."

WANTS HIM NEAR

"A good place for a quarrelsome couple to spend a honeymoon," Jerome said.

"If they kept their sanity," she agreed.

"Even if we had a change of heart it couldn't get us anywhere. I'm a flat tire financially, and you've got to marry rather more than a mere good provider, or—"

She interrupted. "Or join the Navy and see the world."

"The Navy's due to disarm. There's no longer a plutocracy to make the world safe for. Still, there are a few blighters with buried bones. You've got to find one and pick it with him."

"Got to get out of here first. Oh well . . ." she yawned, "let's turn in. That crack about adversity making strange bed-fellows was right, Sir Galahad."

They went into the forbidding bedroom and stretched out on the cheerless cane-bottomed couch. "If some fortune-teller had told me anything like this was going to happen," Linda said as she rested her cheek on her arm, "I'd have reported it to the police . . ."

"And the police to the coroner," Jerome interrupted.

"I'm glad you appreciate the danger, Jerry."

"Enough to stay awake all night, for fear that I might throw my arm over you in my sleep."

"Whatever you do, don't sneak away, or you'll have on your hands a mad platinum blonde instead of a sore red one."

"I'll stick, so keep still and go to sleep . . . listen!"

There was a rustling, slithering sound outside the window. Linda stifled back a shriek and clasped Jerome. They lay breathless and listening. He gripped the oar-butt and started to rise.

"Keep still . . ." she whispered. "Don't budge . . ."

The faint sounds subsided.

SYNOPSIS

Jerome Crain, young shipbuilder, and a lovely society girl, named Linda, escaped in a skiff from a yacht held in quarantine off San Cristobal. Jerome and Linda dislike each other; but, nevertheless, are willing to risk being mutually bored rather than endure an indefinite stay aboard ship. From the moment they land on a strange island, queer happenings occur. Their boat is set adrift, their clothing stolen; yet there is no other sign of a living human, except periodic cries from the jungle. Exploring, they come upon a small plantation and house having every appearance of being well tended but vacant. Dozing on the porch, Jerry awakens with the creepy impression that something had brushed his face. Soon Linda shrieks—her slip had been torn off her by unseen hands in the dark. Terrified, Jerome and Linda lock themselves in the house. They locate a decaying monastery and a bell. Attached to its clapper is one of Jerry's shoes! No human could have reached the clapper and no monkey had the strength to jam the shoe on it. Jerry and Linda are beginning to care for one another. Their exchange of confidences is interrupted by a thumping sound outside.

No Go On

Jerome heard the rustle of something that moved away as if in light bounds. There came a distant crackling of the stiff tropic foliage.

"It's gone," he muttered. "A deer, probably. Go to sleep. Everything's going to be all right."

"Daddy's here, darling," she said mockingly. "This friendly deer ran his hand down the shutters, then bounced off like a kangaroo."

"Why not? Kangaroos are chummy pets and have hands and bounce."

"In Australia."

Linda relaxed her clasp of him. "There's another idea. This island may be a sort of menagerie depot for imported animals."

NOT CRAZY COLONY

"Something like that. Harmless ones that can get along here on their own. This man may collect them for the circus market."

"Then you don't think it's a crazy colony?"

"No. His books are the best guide, and they're all about natural sciences. Not a medical volume in the lot, nor any on mental diseases."

"Then these pranks were done by monkeys?" she asked.

"Looks that way. Chimpanzees."

"Why those?"

"From the tracks I noticed where I found your shoes hanging from a palm-leaf stem. I took them to be made by native youngsters who were romping about, turning cartwheels and standing on their hands. I think now they were the prints of some good-sized ape's foot. Probably a chimp."

"And they set the boat adrift?"

"Not exactly. The grapnel was new, bright, galvanized iron, and they'd love that. The line was bent to it by an anchor hitch and they took it out. The tide was coming already when I started down the beach to look for you, and the trade wind started it."

"So the boat was merely floated off and drifted out," Linda said disgustedly. "And a band of silly apes stole our clothes and scared us stiff by whooping from the jungle."

"And thumping the old bell with my shoe." He reflected for an instant. "One of them must have hung on to the beam while another climbed down him and jammed the shoe on to the bell tongue."

PUTS HER AT EASE

"That thumping bellowing thing was probably a friendly old howler baboon of a different sort," Linda said.

"Very likely. If there was anything to fear these wise ways would be barred."

Now that her dread had been set aside, she said drowsily: "That Boer whip has taught them to keep off the grass and not to pluck the fruit and flowers."

"Yes, but now that Teacher's gone, they're snooping a little."

She roused enough to say, "It looks as if Teacher's the worst bet on this island, Jerry. The most dangerous brute of the lot."

"That's possible too." Jerome shifted his position a little. Linda clutched his arm.

"All the same . . . you . . . you stay right . . . where . . . you are . . ." she muttered, and fell asleep. Almost immediately Jerome did likewise. An armistice of exhaustion had been tacitly declared.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

This week's big contest ends tomorrow, fellows!

So today is just about your last day to mail a contest letter. The title this week is "What Pet I Would Like to Have the Most and Why." And your letter shouldn't be more than 100 words long.

The prizes are still the same, $2.50, $1.50 and $1. Only Junior Patrol members are allowed to compete. If you haven't joined the Junior Patrol, notice the pledge blank right here on this page. You can either clip it right out of the Sun-Telegraph or you can make a copy of it. Sign up now, fellows! Then mail your contest letters to the Junior Patrol Contest, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Letters have been coming in all week. Seems to be just about the biggest contest ever. Why not try to get your share of that prize money, fellows? That first prize will buy something petty nice. Maybe you would like to save up for a football suit this fall.

Here's another winning letter in last week's contest. It's by first prize will buy some thing avenue, North Side, and he says:

"One day two summers ago I was at my cousin's. His dad was going fishing in the country. My cousin asked him if he would take us and he said, yes. We rode for about two hours. Then we came to a small lake.

"I did not know how to fish, so my cousin's dad showed me how. Then I tried it. I put on a worm, put it in and pulled it out. To my surprise, I saw a fish on the end of the hook. It was about two and a half or three inches long. It was only a little one, but it seemed like a fish five inches long."

That's a good "fish" story, Harry. Tell us about your next fishing trip.

Money Trust :: Daily Short Short-Story

By H. S. M'CAULEY

From back of the showcase Millie saw the $20 bill slip from the woman's half-closed purse and fall upon the heavy plate glass top as the customer turned idly away after receiving her small purchase and carelessly tucking her change away in the coin pocket of the expensive container.

The bill slid down between the showcases and was lost to sight. Dora was away on relief. None of the other girls was looking. Unless Millie called the customer's attention to the loss she would never know where it occurred.

To fish the bill out later with a bit of wire, when no one was looking, would be easy. And what $15-a-week Millie could do with $20 you can imagine. Millie was imagining already.

"I'll bet her shoes alone cost $20," she told herself, "and look at mine! If I wasn't back of a showcase I'd be ashamed to have people see me! She probably spends more than $20 a month on imported cigarets. She'll never miss that bill."

But such pleasant thoughts did not entirely silence something in the back of Millie's mind that kept saying: "You ought to call her back! You ought to tell her!"

"Well, I suppose I should tell her," Millie admitted to herself, "but I won't. I need the money a whole lot worse than she does."

Florence Cassidy from the advertising department, editor of the emporium's house organ, came along smiling and leaned over the counter.

"Miss Torrance," she said confidentially, "we'll be wanting your photo. I have orders to run a story about the girls with perfect records for promptness and neatness. Your department manager sent us a note saying you were a credit to the sales force. Don't forget; we're counting on your picture."

The richly clad customer was pressing the button to stop an elevator sixty feet away and Millie half started to call her back. But $20, as good as in her hand, and nobody on earth could say she had actually stolen it! Even if they caught her fishing it out they could never say that.

The richly clad customer was gazing upward at the red light which meant a down-coming car, but there was yet time to catch her if Millie hurried. Millie really started this time, but as she started she thought of her date Wednesday evening with Fred Harrison of the sporting goods department.

She knew Fred was on the verge of asking her something important, but he was slow in getting to the point. With $20 worth of new finery—Millie's move toward the woman at the elevator died.

Mr. Jennings, the floorwalker, beamed at her over his gold-rimmed eyeglasses as he approached the counter.

"Miss Torrance," he said, "I just heard those two young ladies who were looking over the things in your showcase a few minutes ago tell their mother that you were the most obliging clerk they had seen in a week. Not every girl here can count on a compliment like that."

Millie smiled back, and glanced at the elevators. The door was just closing on the richly clad customer.

Then Millie's heart gave a leap, and a faint tinge spread over her cheeks. Fred Harrison was approaching, a broad smile on his face.

"Don't forget Wednesday evening, honey," he said. "I want to talk to you about something important. I'm counting on you." Then he whispered earnestly over the showcase: "You know, Millie, I think you're the squarest little kid I ever saw." He walked away rapidly.

"The squarest little kid I ever saw." And from Fred, who wanted to talk to her about something important. Millie couldn't find a piece of wire. But there was an old yardstick at hand. A piece of chewing gum on the end of it quickly retrieved the $20 bill. Millie got a relief girl for her counter, and, disregarding elevators, fairly ran to Mr. Katz's office two floors below. She got quite a shock when she saw the richly clad customer chatting with him, but she laid the bill on his desk.

"Mr. Katz," she stammered, "I saw this lady lose this money a short while back." The wealthy customer looked significantly at Mr. Katz.

"I—I was going to keep it, but I decided to turn it in." The words seemed to rush out of their own accord. "I suppose now you'll—" Mr. Katz's hearty laugh drowned out the rest.

"The first thing I'll do will be to shake hands with you, Miss Torrance," he cut in, "and congratulate you on your promotion. I knew we could count on you. You passed an excellent test."

"My promotion? A test?" faltered Millie.

"To the jewelry department," continued the store manager. "We need a good clerk there, but we never select one to handle such expensive goods without testing her honesty first. My wife, here, helps out in such matters."

(Copyright, 1934, The Chicago Daily News, Inc.)

Tomorrow: "Wife's Mistake," by Emily P. Sheafe, recounts how Mrs. Bingham, who prided herself on her honesty, went shopping one day and found herself involved in a furious dispute with a girl who called her a thief.

ODD FACTS

Textiles dating from the eighth century are now deposited in the State Museum at Moscow; these fabrics were made by an ancient Mohammedan people, the Sassonides.

Marriage is conducive to long life, according to the investigations of a German doctor, who found that, in the cases of 124 centenarians, only three were unmarried.

Salt-water gnats, the smallest known flying insects, recently caused the descent of a giant American bombing plane by choking the screen filters of the carburetors.

Agriculture is still declining in England; 75,000 farm workers have left the land since 1923, and 45,000 fewer acres were actually under crops in 1932, as compared with 1931.

Liverpool's new Roman Catholic Cathedral is to be adorned at its summit with a figure of Christ 60 feet in total height. Illuminated at night, it will serve as a landmark to ships far out at sea.

Burglaries and house and shop-breaking cases are increasing in London. Last year there were 13,800 cases, and only 13 per cent of the cases were cleared up.

Cyclists in Montreal must now carry a police permit. They are limited to 15 miles an hour, and must not hang on to moving vehicles, carry passengers on the crossbar, or race in the streets.

Tennis courts and other sports grounds can now be dried immediately by use of a patent rubber roller invented by an Australian. This consists of a roller covered with "sponge" rubber an inch thick which absorbs all the moisture from the ground.

BETTER LUCK NEXT TIME

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

The Ladies' Aid Society met at the church last Thursday for quilting. They urged all members to be present as the losing side was going to treat the other side as they were in a contest. So about 1 o'clock they got all the cars they could get and loaded their crowd in and started for the Cozy Theater and paid their way into the show, which was only 5 cents that day. They made them believe they were going to stop out on the way for a treat. They all had a good time and lots of fun, but we rather thing they were somewhat disappointed in their treat, probably expecting ice cream and cake.

Mull This One Over

Seems strange that politicians are already spinning their local webs in preparation for 1938.

The state is two years away as the crow flaps. But the lads are repairing their fences by sticking their heads in between the barbed wire.

One reason for this unseemly haste, we suspect, is that the Republican camadre boys are tired of the Democratic administration.

Another delightful clue is the November elections when the delegates to Washington are facing the barrier again. They will then finall what their home townies think of their work on the Potomac. Re-election will be considered as appreciation of their earnest efforts to stay awake when their country needed them most.

We are not sure whether Maine votes this fall or not. We hope it does because of that cracked old slogan, "As Maine goes so goes the nation."

If that's true let's hope that Maine never goes to pieces.

We looked into the old political gadget, and we discovered that it ain't so. Sometimes Maine goes somewhere. And sometimes Maine gets balky and doesn't budge an inch.

You might as well say, "As the grasshopper hops, so hop the kangaroos."

Both of those superfluous insects do plenty of hopping. But for different purposes. The grasshopper hops because he wants to bite a chunk out of Kansas. The kangaroo never heard of the place.

Why not say, "As California meanders, so wanders Alaska." It wouldn't mean anything at all. And would probably turn into a campaign slogan that would win the election.

We like our slogans undecipherable and brittle. Remember that old crack, "He kept us out of the war?" Well, some of the lads ain't back from that one yet.

It seems that they should whip a rider into the Constitution running something like this. "Whereas, and in the first place, to the contrary notwithstanding, and even unto the third generation, if it ever gets here, of which there is a doubt, we the pipple, hereby resolve:

"That all future campaigns be run on their merits, and that they must be won honestly without the benefit of slogans."

So, nerts on the goings of Maine and the goings on of New York.

Appeal to the President!

Mr. Roosevelt, Having Intervened Before, May Come To Pennsylvania's Aid

In a statement concerning Pennsylvania's relief needs Gov. Pinchot lets it be known that he was forced to go directly to the White House to get such federal aid as we have received for the unemployed.

"It has only been through the intervention of the President," Gov. Pinchot says, "that we have got as much help as we have."

In this will be found a cue for action that may yet save us from the expense of a special session of the Legislature. President Roosevelt soon will be back at Washington. Let an appeal be taken directly to him.

Let his attention be called to the fact that, while Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins demands, as a condition to further federal aid, a pledge from the Legislature to pay half the relief bill, other states pay only 25 per cent, or 5 per cent, or nothing.

President Roosevelt has intervened in Pennsylvania's behalf before. He may intervene again.

Good Samaritans

Pittsburgh's Hospitals, Daily Caring for the Needy Ill, Deserve Better Treatment

The suggestion that July 29 be observed each year as "Good Samaritan Day" brings to mind 19 Pittsburgh institutions which observe every day as "Good Samaritan Day" by ministering to the ill and the injured, and not only to those who can pay but to the destitute as well. We refer, of course, to the hospitals.

The hosiptals' splendid service is taken too much for granted. More thought should be given to the work they are doing and to the difficulties they face.

State Treasurer Charles A. Waters recently said that if the condition of the state's finances did not improve it would be necessary to curtail or withhold the appropriations to state-aided institutions. What a cruel and undeserved blow that would be to the hospitals!

Even with state aid they have had a hard time paying their bills. Some of them would have had to close their doors if they had not had a little income from endowments to help them out.

Men and women who wish to dispose of their property at death in ways that will do the most good will make no mistake if they remember the hospitals in their wills. A legacy to a hospital will permit you to continue doing the work of a Good Samaritan long after you die.

Enforce the Ordinance!

The Use of Streets for the Sale of Merchandise Is an Intolerable Nuisance

At the noon hour yesterday an automobile parked on the east side of Smithfield street about a hundred feet south of Sixth avenue was being used as a store for the sale of merchandise.

An auto polish was being demonstrated. There were bottles of the polish on the roof of the car. Salesmen shouted their ballyhoo to the crowd that gathered on the sidewalk.

The traffic policeman at the corner paid no attention.

This has happened on several days lately.

There is an ordinance which specifically forbids such practices, and it should be enforced.

To have the already congested downtown streets preempted by hawkers is unendurable.

It is unfair, too, to merchants who pay rent and taxes.

We can think of no excuse for the attitude of the city administration in permitting this nuisance.

Trend Buckers

Companies Which Increased Their Selling Efforts Last Year Have Found it Paid

Companies, led by courageous executives, which bucked the depression tides, were for the most part vigorous advertisers.

Effective advertising is the star salesman of business, and timid enterprisers, who fired their star salesman in order to economize, were confronted by heavy losses.

A bulletin of the bureau of advertising, American Newspaper Publishers' Association, reveals the arresting fact that in 1933 25 companies which increased their aggregate expenditures for newspaper advertising by 43.6 per cent realized a combined increase in net income of 154.9 per cent. Each of the companies increased appropriations for advertising, and all but one showed a gain in net income over the previous year.

On the other hand, 25 other companies, which decreased their newspaper advertising by 33.4 per cent in 1933 realized a 34 per cent drop. In this group only five companies showed a slight increase in earnings; all the others showed decreases, with six recording deficits in 1933.

This experience was in line with what had happened earlier in the depression.

With few exceptions, the trend buckers were outstanding advertisers and merchandisers.

Many of these exceptional companies took the view that the lack of congestion on advertising pages in time of depression made each dollar expended buy more attention value than normally.

The full fruits of such a far-sighted policy have not yet been fully reflected in earnings statements.

Those companies also built up important intangible hidden assets in good will and public acceptance, which will not be fully reflected in the profit account until the buying power of the public returns to normal levels.

It is heartening to know that courage and intelligence pay dividends in business even during hard times.

Pittsburgh's Good Credit.

Bankers Continue to Regard the City's Bonds as an Excellent Investment

Pittsburghers may well take pride in the city's high credit rating, as revealed in the sale of two million dollars of municipal bonds yesterday. Although the bonds bear only 3½ per cent interest, they commanded a substanial premium, which is the best sort of evidence that the financial authorities have no fear of our fiscal future.

The fact that eight syndicates, representing 40 of the most substantial banks, trust companies and investment houses in the country, submitted bids for the bonds is an eloquent testimonial to Pittsburgh's sound financial condition.

Under the Wall

(Copyright, 1934.)

Appearance of a "Rum Row" off the North Atlantic States has been reported, and Coast Guard vessels are keeping vigilance.

The Government is especially concerned because narcottic smuggling is mixed up in the illicit traffic.

Former rum runners at St. Pierre and Miquelon went into the "dope" traffic when Prohibition was repealed in this country.

And now the two "trades" are merged!

This news must be regarded from two aspects.

In the first place, there would be no such problem at all if we had not tried for eleven years to have Prohibition.

Rum smuggling became "good" during those years, and rum smugglers, like some of our bootleggers, do not want to give up.

On the other hand, Government has proceeded in exactly the way to help the rum smuggler and the bootlegger stay on.

Congress seized on repeal as a new revenue opportunity, laying heavy taxes on all liquor plus import duties on foreign products.

Then States piled on still more taxes—making it attractive to rum smugglers and bootleggers to remain in business and PAY NO TAXES.

What we need is stiff TARIFFS to protect the home market for American wines and spirits and LOWER tariffs on goods that do not compete with ours. That will assure legal supplies—provided that taxes, other than the tariffs, are KEPT LOW.

Thousands of people are going to drink, whether Prohibitionists like it or not.

And if greedy Government makes it too expensive to drink legally and decently, nobody but the rum runner and the bootlegger will benefit.

For certainly Government will not.

Her Big Chance

By Winifred Black

The celebrity lay dying in his great house the other day.

The sidewalk in front of the house was crowded with quiet people, watching anxiously for bulletins of the beloved celebrity's condition.

The hall table was piled high with telegrams. Messages from close friends all over the world.

Statesmen and artists and singers and writers and policemen and firemen and cooks, yes and even waiters—for the celebrity was one of those human beings who have the gift of being loved.

The porch of the great house was full of anxious friends—they talked in whispers and watched the faces of the arriving and departing doctors with eager scrutiny.

He didn't think he was going to die—the celebrity.

He thought he was just a little tired, that's all, and he loved to close his eyes and see again the little path that led through the woods to the little red school house on the hill.

He was a little worried about his arithmetic test and he did hope that teacher would be good humored about it.

And the little red-cheeked girl who always sat in the seat in front of him—her arithmetic would be all right—she always stood at the head of the class, but anyhow he could run faster than she and swim better, too, and he was very glad of that, for somehow it was very important to have the little red-cheeked girl admire him.

Downstairs in the dool library the little red-cheeked girl was sitting or she didn't sit very long to be sure.

A busy person, the little red-cheeked girl, servants to watch, telephones to listen in, people to send away—it is no joke having a sick celebrity for your husband.

And it was all so tiresome this fuss they were making about a poor, foolish fellow who never would learn how to save money, and who threw away banknotes as if they were so much blank paper.

She would see to that now—and she did.

No pots of hot coffee for the nurses or the doctors either. No supper at midnight for anyone, she got on without a midnight supper, why shouldn't you?

And the old friends who were so persistent, what joy it was to send them away with a little tight mouthed smile—they had always tried to monopolize him — they came between her and her husband.

And now it was her turn—she'd show them who was important.

And all at once those close about the dying man—understood his strange look of tense endurance.

Perhaps it would have been better for a little red-cheeked girl if she had never grown up and married the celebrity, for his ways were not her ways, and she could never make him walk happily in the narrow little path she loved to tread.

She could not take him for what he was and love him and forgive him, and smile at his boyish exuberance.

And he—ah, well, he is free now to go his own friendly, boyish way, and if I were close to him in love and friendship I should not be sorry.

I always hate to see the mark of the collar on the neck of even a dog.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

We Do It Because It's Exciting

She wondered—rather sheepishly—why we listen to gossip. Really malicious gossip.

The truth is, she's gotten herself into an unhappy predicament—all from listening to a malicious story about another woman. She'd never met the other woman. Had heard of her, of course, for she's a well known person. So, naturally, she was interested when one of her friends came to her with the amazing tale.

Quite a horrid tale. About a cruel and crooked thing the famous woman was supposed to have done. One of those dreadful things that a decent person would never dream of doing. It didn't seem possible that any woman who cared a whoop about her reputation would do a thing like that.

And yet how could she doubt it? The friend who told her was an important person too, in her own way—a prominent club woman. That's how she'd happened to hear the story in the first place. The poor little woman who was the victim of the dreadful affair had come to her seeking help. Such an appealing little thing—not used to the ways of the world and utterly crushed by the awful thing that had happened to her.

Of course, the clubwoman and her friends were simply furious and decided to champion her at once. In no time at all they had Started Things. And were enlisting other sympathizers. Naturally, my correspondent felt the cause must be a worthy one—

Did she try to find out for herself whether the tale was true or not? No—she hates to admit it—but she really didn't. As I said before, the position of the woman who told her seemed sufficient guarantee. Besides — you know how it is with stories like that. They're so exciting—so different from the rest of one's humdrum days—that perhaps one wants to believe they're true. It's like seeing a dramatic show . . . like being part of the show one's self—

So my troubled friend accepted the story and passed it on. And was as indignant about it as the clubwomen were. Took sides with them. Said quite awful things about the famous woman who was supposed to have been so cruel. . .

And now it seems that there wasn't a word of truth to the story! The "poor little woman" had concocted it out of whole cloth just to gain sympathy and attention for herself. And hung it on the well-known woman merely because that made it more exciting!

So, of course, my correspondent feels Perfectly Dreadful. Why, oh why, did she listen to that awful lie? Why did she say and do such inexcusable things—judging a woman she'd never met—a woman who'd never harmed her? Why didn't she at least try to find out if it all were true—give the other woman a chance to defend herself?

Why—why—why? You've asked that question and so have I. You and I have listened to just such tales and handed them on—cruelly hurting many an innocent soul. Why do decent, honest people do things like that? There's the answer in my correspondent's own letter.

We're bored with our dull lives. We wish "something would happen" . . . something that would stir life up and make us feel important. Something does. Along comes a story that's like seeing a show . . . like being in a show ourselves.

A story that gives us a chance at the spotlight. We don't stop to ask whether it's true. We don't stop to consider that a real human being is involved in this story—someone with a heart that can ache, eyes that can weep as do ours. We only know that here's a chance to make our own lives seem more colorful and powerful. And so—we pass the story on.

Cruel, isn't it?

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Two Years Old

With eyes like heaven
And hair of gold,
This joy is given.
Now two years old!

When have we caught this Flower, this song?
Who would have thought bliss
Could last so long?

Here is beguiling,
Embodied mirth.
Like April smiling,
No taint of earth!

This trust is given
For us to hold:
Eyes dear as heaven,
Heart pure as gold!

Will Rogers Says:

KULAMAUI, Aug. 1.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Did you ever hear of the Hawaiian Islands? Well, if you didn't you have heard of Baldwins. Flew into an island here that is just chuck full of Baldwins. Frank Baldwin has the biggest sugar plantation and the most up to date and best run. A water pump system that is big as San Francisco. Then they got a big cattle ranch. All riders and ropers and polo players. These visitors that never get away from the Whykiki beach when they come out here miss a lot. This island must have the best politicians. For they got the best roads. Over home a Congressman is never any better than his road. And sometimes worse.

Marry Go Round

By Helen Rowland

What Wives Don't Tell

Here and there you meet the sort of woman who is always apologizing for her husband as though he were a black eye or a spot on the tablecloth.

The trouble with most marriages is too much rugged individualism and too little teamwork. A husband and wife will put things over on each other that they wouldn't dream of trying to put over on a traffic cop.

The one thing that makes the biggest difference in a woman's life is the "difference" in the sort of human being with whom she happens to get tied up.

The man who drives his own car sometimes looks a lot more impressive to his wife than the one who has a handsome young uniformed chauffeur to compete with.

Just about this time, the bride and groom come back from the honeymoon trip and have to face the problem of how to hide most of the wedding presents (where they won't spoil the ensemble) until they can be used as bridge prizes.

When his problems become too complicated, a man either goes fishing or jumps out of a window; but a woman merely goes out and gets a "facial," and, somehow, everything seems all smothed out.

A man's importance in this world is usually in inverse ratio to the amout of noise he makes—a woman's importance is in inverse ratio to the amount of dog she puts on.

* * *

In the matter of business a man may act deliberately and premeditedly; but in mattters of love he is purely a creature of impulse, as irresponsible as a motorcar on a slippery hill.

* * *

Man was once a savage and expressed himself to his lady-love in dumb signs and grunts; now he is civilized and goes as far as monosyllables, mumbles, wisecracks and baby-talk.

ISN'T IT SO?

Art is common sense made beautiful.

All that glitters isn't inspired by the golden rule.

A decent deed always sows a seed sure to grow.

A man may not be able to come out on top, but by and by his hair will.

Russians Are Training Thousands of Youths as Parachute Jumpers to Make the Nation Air Conscious

By Edwin C. Hill

HIGHER and higher climbs the plane until at last the altimeter read 26,575 feet, a height of more than five miles. Out of the cockpit drops a man bundled and masked as a protection against the severe cold. He falls at the amazing speed of two miles a minute. Down, down he comes and it is almost certain that he will crash to death with every bone in his body broken. But no, a scant 659 feet above the ground he releases a parachute strapped to his back and he glides gracefully to safety. "Nikolai Evdokimoff has done it again!"

That is the news which spreads through Russia like wildfire, news which the youth of that country seizes upon as our own do the news of another spectacular feat by Babe Ruth or Carl Hubbell on the baseball field.

For, strange as it may seem, Russia has gone in for parachute jumping as a national sport. Already 20,000 young men and young women have qualified as experts, and the aim of the authorities is to raise that number to 100,000 within a year. Why? because the Soviet want an air-minded nation and because they look on parachute jumping as means also of inculcating courage and self-reliance in the young.

Japanese Are Not Adept in the Air

THEY figure that it will be the airplane and not the railroad which will draw together and develop their vast empire. They know, too, although they do not say it, that the Japanese are not adept in the air and a preponderance of strength in that branch will give them a sort of Sword of Damocles over a none too friendly neighbor.

A not uncommon sight in Russia today is the practice tower, a structure of 150 feet or so, for the training of parachute jumpers. The opening of the season in Moscow recently took on the character of a miniature Epson on Derby Day.

Six thousand spectators were at the carnival, and 30 parachute jumpers went through their act. The air was filled with young men and young women dropping from the skies, suspended from their huge and brightly colored "beach umbrellas."

Oddly enough, the airplane parachute did not reach its full development until after the World War. It can be traced back nearly five centuries to that supreme genius, Leonardo da Vinci, who designed one in the fashion of an umbrella at the same time that he drew the plans for an air machine. But it was not until October 22, 1797, that the first official parachute drop was recorded. On that date Andre Jacques Garnerin jumped from a balloon at a height of 2,200 feet above Paris and landed safely, to repeat the feat on later occasions.

The type now generally in use was perfected by the United States Army Air Service. It consists of a pack, weighing 18 pounds, which serves as a seat cushion. It is strapped to the body, and when the aviator or passenger "bails out" of the plane and releases the parachute, the effect is the same as opening an umbrella which has a spread of 24 feet of silk.

American Aviators' 'Caterpillar Club'

AMONG American aviators there is a mythical society known as "The Caterpillar Club." Any flier who has had to make a parachute landing is a member, and the number today is about 500, whereas in 1919, it was only two.

Parachute jumpers have no sensation of falling or of losing their senses in the rapid descent. They say that they seem to hang in the air after the parachute has jerked them upright and that they become conscious of descending only when near the ground.

The Russians, who use the American type of parachute which they manufacture themselves, have had few, if any fatalities in their newly-found national sport. They report, too, that for beginners, the women are the best, as they do not lose courage as quickly as the novices among the men.

However, the greatest Russian of them all is the man—Evdokimoff—who goes up in heavy clothes and an oxygen mask and thinks nothing of a drop of less than four miles. He has 100 descents to his credit and the world's record of 26,575 feet, as recorded above. He is indeed a daring young man, who "floats through the air with the greatest of ease"—covering as he does, five miles in 142 seconds.

'Mind Our Own Business' To Keep Out of War

By James T. Williams, Jr.

THOUGHTFUL and appreciative Americans, as they read the bad news from Europe, will rejoice and give thanks for their inheritance from George Washington and the long line of American presidents who have followed where he blazed the way.

They will be thankful that Washington had the vision to formulate for his country a foreign policy that has stood the test of time. It is the traditional foreign policy of the United States. It keeps us out of the political entanglements of Europe and it puts Europe on notice that meddling in the political affairs of the Western Hemisphere will be at her peril.

They will be thankful that the United States Senate refused to advise and consent to the ratification of the Treaty of Versailles. That refusal kept us out of the League of Nations and the League Court. It kept us from throwing overboard at one and the same time the policy of Washington, the doctrine of Monroe and all that independence in our foreign relations under which we have grown to greatness.

There were several reasons why President Wilson could not obtain the necessary two-thirds vote for the ratification of the Versailles treat. One was because the treaty included the covenant of the League of Nations. Another was that it imposed upon the defeated powers in the Great War terms which Senator Knox, of Pennsylvania, declared to be intolerable and certain to lead to future wars in Europe.

Wisdom of Senate Minority Shown

THESE two main objections—objection to entangling this country in the League of Nations and objection to imposing upon this country task of helping to enforce the Versailles treaty—were persisted in by one-third of the membership of the Senate and that kept the United States out of the mire of European politics.

What is happening in Europe today—what has been happening there ever since the end of the Great War—goes to prove the wisdom of that militant minority of the Senate which rejected the Versailles treaty. Rumors of war will continue to plague Europe.

If the United States were in the League today Europe would be telling us how many troops to mobilize and how many naval vessels to hold in readiness for service in European waters. Europe would be making up her own mind who should police Austria and how many American troops might be required for that purpose. All of the decisions regarding the future map of Europe would be made in Europe. The contribution of America would be money and men to help carry out these decisions.

As we are today we have only to mind our own business and build up our army and navy, by way of convincing the world that it would be wise to respect our rights. Before President Roosevelt leaves the White House, provided Congress appropriates the money, our navy will be equal to the strongest in every class of batant ship.
